CHICAGO MAYOR ORDERS PICKETED MILL EVACUATED

Republic Steel Corporation Given 48 Hours to Remove Besieged Non-Strikers.

ACTS UNDER HEALTH AND BUILDING CODE

Five Men Detained for Questioning in Fatal Rioting, Including Union Organizer.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 5. — Republic Steel Corporation, which for 10 days has defied a strike and operated its South Chicago mill, was ordered by Mayor Edward J. Kelly today to cease housing non-striking workers inside the plant within 48 hours.

While police carried the order to company officers, State's Attorney's officers held five men for questioning about last Sunday's rioting in which seven persons were shot to death and many injured near the mill.

One of them was Joseph Weber, an organizer for the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, who was the last of three speakers at a mass-meeting preceding the pickets march toward the plant. The others were John Riffe, George A. Patterson, Mario Pecocicz and Richard Lewis, all detained on open charges.

Mayor Kelly's order followed an investigation which he said showed the corporation was violating the city building codes and health regulations in housing employes without a permit. He said police would be instructed to act if the violations continued.

COURT ORDERS PICKETING CURBED

By the Associated Press.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 5.—Republic Steel Corporation obtained a court order today directing strike pickets of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee to permit access to its Warren and Niles plants and to give up "clubs and other weapons."

Judge Lynn B. Griffith, of the State Common Pleas Court at Warren, directed the pickets and union leaders to comply or show cause next Thursday why an injunction should not be issued. Republic had sought an immediate temporary injunction. Judge Griffith explained violation of today's order would not constitute contempt of court.

With the strike in its eleventh day, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and the Inland Steel Co. showed no signs of retreat from their stand that signing of a contract with the S W O C would lead to "a closed shop and the checkoff." Nor did the union relinquish its insistence that signed contracts were necessary to send 73,000 men, idle in seven states, back to work.

Tension grew in Ohio's Mahoning Valley, where more than 30,000 men are idle.

The pickets had gathered when a locomotive ran a box car of food quickly into the company's grounds. The officers fired no shots.

Two men were arrested when a rail was discovered to have been torn from a Pennsylvania Railroad switch near the Youngstown plant. One had a crowbar, the other a wrench. One was a strike picket, police said. Bail was denied as the charge was held open in view of the possibility of Federal charges, police told C I O officers who went to the prisoners' aid.

The S W O C pressed forward its campaign to "shut off the source of supply" by calling out iron miners in Minnesota and Michigan. Workers at two plants were idle because Republic was unable to unload shipments at its mills. Two Maryland manufacturing plants closed because of their inability to obtain steel.

J. P. Morgan Convalescent at Sea.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD S. S. QUEEN MARY, AT SEA, June 5.—J. P. Morgan, who was carried aboard ship when he sailed from England, was in much improved health today. He has gained strength sitting for considerable periods on deck. His poor health prevented him from attending the coronation of King George VI last May 12. He is scheduled to arrive in New York Monday.

9 C I O ORGANIZERS CONVICTED OF CONSPIRACY IN SHOE STRIKE

Three Other Aids of John L. Lewis Acquitted in Trial at Lewiston, Me.

By the Associated Press.

LEWISTON, Me., June 5.—Nine John L. Lewis aids were convicted tonight by an Androscoggin County jury of conspiracy charges growing out of the Lewiston-Auburn general shoe strike. Three others were acquitted. The trial began 11 days ago. Judge Arthur Chapman deferred sentence.

Those acquitted were Benjamin J. Arena, Lewiston, counsel for the Committee for Industrial Organization; Miss Nina Regar, Lynn, Mass., organizer, and Maurice Filteau, Lewiston shoe worker. Convicted were Paul Doyle, Auburn shoe worker; and a group of CIO organizers from Massachusetts, William E. Thornton, Swampscott; John D. Nolan, George Kandor, and Paul Salvaggio, all of Boston; and William J. Mackesy, Martin J. Lawless, William B. Mahan and Mrs. Mary Dauphine, all of Lynn.

All were charged with conspiring to injure the business of the Charles Cushman Co.

LITTLE PRINCESSES CRITICISED FOR CORONATION FAUX PAS

Letters Written to Editors About Failure to Cover Heads Before Parents Were Crowned.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 5.—When Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose deserve criticism, great or small, they get it.

It seems Elizabeth and Margaret Rose did not cover their heads in Westminster Abbey before their mother and father were crowned King and Queen, and England's tireless letter writers have been writing to the editors about it. The writers state that the two Princesses were the only ladies in the Abbey who did not comply with the rule. They add that even if they had put a handkerchief on their heads it would not have been so bad. But nobody suggests what can be done about it now.

MOON OFF ITS CALCULATED COURSE, ASTRONOMER SAYS

Deviation a "Mystery" to Science, Is Greater Than at Any Other Time Since 1860.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 5.—The moon is moving off its calculated course, the Astronomer Royal, Dr. H. Spencer Jones, said today.

"The departure of the moon from its mathematically prescribed course continues to increase," he declared, "and now is greater than at any other time since the year 1680"—the year the Greenwich Observatory was founded.

Dr. Jones was addressing the annual meeting of the observatory's board of visitors. He said the moon's deflection was "a mystery" to science.

RAIN HALTS PERFORMANCE AT MUNICIPAL THEATER

Heavy showers, which began at 9:50 o'clock last night, prevented completion of the second performance of "The Great Waltz" at the Municipal Theater. The first shower fell during the second scene of the second act.

In about half an hour the rain stopped and the show began again, but after 10 minutes another shower forced it to close. The interruption came too late to make rain checks valid.

O'MALLEY HELPS MISSOURI HOUSE TO DETOUR LAW

"Lent" It Miss Taul as Clerk While Retaining Her on Insurance Department Payroll.

GLAD TO OBLIGE, HE DECLARES

To Query Whether This Wasn't Dodging Constitution He Laughs, 'Why Ask Me?'

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—The Missouri House of Representatives, thanks to Superintendent of Insurance R. Emmet O'Malley, has been able to evade the constitutional provision that neither House of the Legislature may employ more than 75 employes.

While Thomas King, clerical appointee of two St. Louis representatives, was on the House payroll at $150 a month although regularly employed in St. Louis as a brewery truck driver, Miss Opal Taul, a valuation clerk in the Insurance Department, was performing duties of a House clerk while on the Insurance Department pay roster at $137.50 a month. King has been charged with obtaining money from the State by false pretenses.

No more than 75 House payroll warrants could be approved by the State Auditor on pay day. However, the services of Miss Taul, sought by House officers because of her competence, were obtained by the simple expedient of "borrowing" her from the Insurance Department, thus removing the possibility of injuring the feelings or purses of relatives and friends of representatives on the payroll or interfering with their leisure.

O'Malley "Lent" Clerk.

Each of the House payrolls since the session began Jan. 6, has had its full quota of 75 names and the name of Miss Taul appears on none of them.

O'Malley, whose fire insurance rate compromise was whitewashed by the House Insurance Committee after a so-called investigation, and whose department appropriations are fixed by the Legislature, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that Miss Taul had been "borrowed" from his department.

The request, he said, in a telephone conversation from Kansas City, was made by House officers who had observed Miss Taul's efficiency in the office of the Chief Clerk of the House in several past sessions. The season being less busy than usual, he said, he was glad to comply. When another insurance department employe became ill about 10 days ago, Superintendent O'Malley added, Miss Taul was sent for to take care of Insurance Department work, but later returned to her legislative employment.

When O'Malley Laughed.

Asked if this hitherto undisclosed arrangement was not for the purpose of detouring about the constitutional limitation on clerks, he laughed and replied, "Why ask me about that?"

Superintendent O'Malley readily confirmed the evidence of payroll records showing that Miss Taul had continued to receive compensation from Insurance Department appropriations during the five months she had worked in the office of Chief Clerk Joseph A. Bauer.

This, however, was a surprise to Speaker John G. Christy. Expressing disbelief that Miss Taul was performing services for the Legislature although not paid from House clerical funds, he immediately checked the certified clerical roll and found he was mistaken.

"This is news to me," he said, "no one ever told me about it."

Miss Taul, formerly of Smithville, Mo., said she had been asked to work in the chief clerk's office by John B. Haskell, chairman of the House Accounts Committee, because of her familiarity with the duties of that office. She said she received only her regular salary from the Insurance Department.

Illegal, McKittrick Thinks.

When informed of the facts today, Attorney-General Roy McKittrick, who has been conducting House payroll investigation, expressed the opinion that the practice was contrary to State laws relating to appropriations.

"An appropriation for a certain State department," he said, "must be used for that department only. I think it is contrary to State law to use appropriations made for specific purposes of a State department in the executive branch of

VANDENBERG SAYS THERE IS NO NEED OF WAGE-FIXING

In Radio Speech Declares Industry Needs Breathing Spell, Not New "Medicine."

MINIMUM TOO LOW, UNION MAN THINKS

Merle Vinson Testifies $1200-a-Year Is Not Enough — Employer for Gradual Rise.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, opposed today the immediate enactment of wage and hour legislation. He contended that industry needed a "breathing spell" rather than new "medicine."

In a radio address, Vandenberg accused the administration of "snap judgment," because it wants Congress to enact minimum wage and maximum hour standards at this session.

He proposed instead that Congress defer action until interim committees can prepare "seasoned, sustained and mature recommendations."

Senator Black (Dem.), Alabama, co-author of the administration bill, announced that hearings on the measure may be completed by June 14. This prompted Vandenberg to say:

"The idea that such a program might be perfected by June 15 and rushed to quick conclusion—involving, as it ultimately does, the whole American economy—is a travesty on prudence."

Warning his listeners against "economic indigestion and suicide," Vandenberg said "the whole related economic problem must be painstakingly explored lest our zeal lead us unwittingly astray."

"No Imminent Emergency."

"There is no imminent emergency which calls for Federal control of hours and wages at the moment; and there is less than no experienced assurance that the proposed control would contribute to trade and employment and the general welfare if there were an emergency. Probably we are coming to some sort of ultimate Federal direction in these fields. But haste makes waste.

"The uncertainties of an unbalanced Federal budget and the restless implications of our giddy gold and silver purchase policies warn all realists that the value of money is utterly speculative until these inflationary forces come to curb. Until money values are standardized, wage values cannot be standardized."

Vandenberg said questions which should be studied before the enactment of wage-hour legislation included "new dislocations in relative agricultural parity and the deadly menace of an ultimate consumer, who will one day himself, strike against commodity prices which are driven too swiftly upward by artificial Governmental means.

"They include the probability that Federal wage-fixing, once initiated, may lead to Federal price-fixing. They include the probability that Federal wage-fixing and price-fixing together will lead to compulsory arbitration in labor relations—not voluntarily, but by sheer force of necessity as we are driven closer and ever closer to the centralized, authoritarian state with its tyranny of oppressive, Government-blessed monopolies."

Thinks $1200 a Year Too Low.

The joint congressional committee conducting hearings on the bill heard Merle Vinson, representing the International Ladies' Garment Workers, a C I O affiliate, testify today that enactment of wage and hour legislation was "imperative" as a means of reducing unemployment and increasing purchasing power and production.

He advised increasing the contemplated $1200-a-year limit, beyond which the Connery-Black bill would not permit fixing minimum wages.

Vinson asserted this was "too low" and in many localities would not be sufficient to provide "minimum necessities."

He proposed that the bill provide a maximum work week of 40 hours, with a lower, limit of 30 hours for some industries to be determined by administrative action.

R. C. Kuldell, Houston, Tex., manufacturer, indorsed the administration program but recommended that its administrators serve in the role of "doctor and not policeman," applying wage increases gradually to prevent "disruption" of industry.

ESTATE IN TRUST TO ROCKEFELLER'S GRANDDAUGHTER

Others Received Share Before—Taxes on $25,000,000 May Take as Much as $15,000,000.

CODICIL TO WILL DATED OCT. 3, 1934

At Time of His Death Holdings Were Described as "Relatively Small" and "Very Liquid."

By the Associated Press.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 5.—The "relatively small" estate left by John D. Rockefeller Sr., turned out today to be about $25,000,000, which may shrink to $10,000,000 by the time the tax collectors are through.

Principal beneficiaries named in the capitalists's will, which was filed here for probate, were Mrs. Margaret Strong de Cuevas, a granddaughter, and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

Rockefeller explained, in a codicil dated Oct. 3, 1934, that he already had made ample provision for his other heirs.

Rest of Family Got Gifts.

Much of the fortune he developed during the first half of his life from the Standard Oil trust, mines, railroads and numerous other enterprises had been distributed among members of the family and given away through the various agencies he set up. He died May 23 at Ormond Beach, Fla. His public relations counselors announced at the time of his death that his estate was "relatively small" and "very liquid."

His public gifts totaled $530,830,000.

The petition for the probate of his will listed his personal holdings as "over $10,000." The $25,000,000 estimate was supplied by persons familiar with his affairs.

As originally drawn, on June 2, 1925, the will directed that the residuary estate be divided equally between his son, John D. Rockefeller Jr. and the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Foundation, organized in 1918 in memory of his wife.

Codicils were added on May 14, 1930, and Nov. 4, 1932, but they were of no particular importance in the light of the final codicil, which made a radical change in the disposition of the estate.

Why Provision Was Made.

By the final codicil the entire residuary estate was left in trust to Mrs. de Cuevas and her children. The three trustees, John D. Rockefeller Jr., Bertram Cutler, a corporation director, and Thomas M. Debevoise, attorney, were empowered in their discretion to pay the income to Mrs. de Cuevas, to her children, or to the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

On the death of Mrs. de Cuevas the trust is to be divided among her descendants and in turn, passed on in principal to her grandchildren, with the proviso that if there are no descendants living it is to revert to the Rockefeller Institute.

Broadly, the will contained only two bequests. The first gave to John D. Rockefeller Jr., all of his father's personal belongings, such as books, furniture, paintings, art objects and other household effects as well as "all of my horses, carriages, automobiles and stable and garage equipment of every description, and all of my clothing, jewelry and other articles of strictly personal use and adornment of every description."

The second made elaborate provisions for the distribution of the residuary estate among Mrs. De Cuevas, her descendants, and the Rockefeller Institute.

There were no bequests of cash or other property to servants, retainers or friends.

The will and codicils covered 52 typewritten pages. Most of it was devoted to an effort to anticipate any legal contingencies that might arise in the administration of the residue.

Married to Spanish Marquis.

Bessie Rockefeller Strong died on Nov. 14, 1906. Her husband, Dr. Charles Augustus Strong, former professor of psychology at the University of Chicago, now lives in Fiesole, Italy.

Their daughter was married Aug. 3, 1927, to George de Cuevas, a Spanish Marquis. They maintain a home at Lakewood, N. J., but spend most of their time abroad. They are traveling there now with their two children, Elizabeth and John.

Internal revenue officials in Washington estimated the maximum taxes on the estate, if it amounts to $25,000,000, would be $15,112,600. A little less than one-third, or about $4,350,000 of this, would go to New York State. They

Rockefeller's Death Recalls Solution of Mystery About Father

Post-Dispatch in 1908 Found Oil Man's Parent Had Been Buried as "William Levingston" at Freeport, Ill.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FREEPORT, Ill., June 5.—Since the recent death of John D. Rockefeller, many residents of Freeport, and visitors, have gone to Oakland Cemetery, two miles west of town, to view the grave of the Oil King's father, Wiiliam Avery Rockefeller.

The body rests in a grave which was unmarked for several years, and which is now marked by a stone bearing the name, "William Levingston."

Freeport folk are familiar with the fact, established nearly 30 years ago, that "Dr. William Levingston," who died at his home in Freeport, May 11, 1906, aged 96 years, was the long-missing father of John D. Rockefeller—the father who deserted his wife and family in John D.'s youth, contracted a bigamous marriage, and in the long latter part of his life, masqueraded as "Dr. Levingston."

Second in Town's Tradition.

The Levingston-Rockefeller episode is second, in Freeport's local traditions, only to the memorable Lincoln-Douglas debate held here in 1858.

The fact of "Levingston's" identity as Rockefeller was demonstrated by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch early in 1908, and proved by documentary evidence. As a circumstance of the case, the Post-Dispatch related in 1908 that "Levingston's" grave had remained unmarked since his death nearly two years before. It was believed in Freeport that the wife, known as Mrs. Levingston, a worthy woman who had long supposed herself to be lawfully married, was unwilling to carry her husband's imposture further.

But the grave, now shared by the wife, is headed by a granite stone four feet high, engraved with the names "William Levingston, 1809-1906" and "Margaret L. Levingston, 1834-1910." In the death notice printed in a Freeport paper in 1906, "Levingston's" year of birth was given as 1810.

Fred Wieneke, caretaker in the cemetery since 1909, said to the Post-Dispatch correspondent that the stone was placed over the grave of "Levingston" shortly before the wife's death in 1910. He recalled that Mrs. Levingston, the last time that he saw her at the cemetery, said to him that she had not had the grave marked previously because she thought "the family in the East" might claim her husband's body. He understood her to mean the Rockefeller family, as the story published by the Post-Dispatch, and in other newspapers, was still fresh in the minds of Freeport people.

No Claim Made for Body.

Leslie T. Fargher, superintendent of the cemetery, said that, aft-

ROOSEVELT REFUSES NOBEL NOMINATION IN FAVOR OF HULL

Declines Cuba's Proposal and Asks It to Substitute State Secretary's Name.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, June 5.—State Department officials tonight said President Franklin D. Roosevelt had declined Cuba's nomination for the 1937 Nobel Peace Prize and asked that the name of Secretary of State Cordell Hull be substituted.

Subsecretary Miguel Angel de la Campa said the Cuban Government would follow "President Roosevelt's generous suggestion, supporting the candidacy of Secretary Hull and postponing its previous nomination until 1938."

Cuban officials said President Roosevelt thanked the Cuban Government for its nomination but asked the honor for Secretary Hull whose merits he urged as an "unceasing worker for harmony and understanding between the nations."

Hull said recently he had "eliminated" himself from consideration, and seconded the nomination of Roosevelt.

BOAT LANDS 3 CONDEMNED SPANISH LOYALISTS IN FRANCE

Captain Says Fugitives from Rebel Prison Forced Him at Pistol Point to Aid Them.

By the Associated Press.

BREST, France, June 5. — A Spanish fishing boat arrived here today with three refugees who, the captain said, forced him at pistol point to take them aboard after they escaped execution by Spanish insurgents.

The three—described as an Anarchist, a Socialist and a Communist—asked that they be sent back to Government-held territory in Spain.

The captain, Luis Eiroa, said the men boarded his vessel, the Constante Viga, at Corunna on Thursday night and ordered him to take them to sea. He said they told him they had been condemned to death by the insurgents but escaped from prison.

Snow Blocks Black Hills Roads.

By the Associated Press.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., June 5. — Snowdrifts three to four feet deep and roads blocked by snow and fallen trees were reported from Black Hills territory tonight following a spring storm that piled 10 inches of snow on some mining communities and temporarily isolated several small towns.

FRESH REBEL ATTACKS ON BILBAO FAIL BASQUES SAY

Announce Repulse of Attempts to Recapture Mount Lemona, and Bombing of Several Villages by the Enemy.

DENY REPORTS OF LOSS OF PLANES

Insurgent Communique Declared Five of American Make Were Shot Down —Franco Creates 'Harvest Army.'

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, FRENCH-SPANISH BORDER, June 5.—Basque officials reported their defense around Bilbao withstood several insurgent attacks today.

The report also said insurgents had bombed several villages in the southern sector of the Bilbao front and had tried unsuccessfully to recapture Mount Lemona, six and a half miles southeast of the Basque capital.

An insurgent communique announced that five American-made planes had been shot down by insurgents. This the Basques denied.

The insurgents made a heavy artillery attack on El Gallo fortifications, the last defense line around Bilboa. A report yesterday said that the rebels had placed 800 pieces of artillery against El Gallo lines.

Government warplanes shot down two insurgent planes which had participated in an air raid on Bilbao suburbs. A woman was killed and two children were seriously injured in the raid.

"Basque officials said they took from the pilot of one plane "which had Italian markings," documents indicating he was an Italian. The other plane was shot down over the sea. The pilot was drowned.

From Salamanca, Spain, it was reported that Generalissimo Francisco Franco today ordered the mobilization of insurgent Spain's men and farm machinery into a "harvest army" to save the crops in districts where farmhands became soldiers.

French naval authorities tonight ordered warships attached to the port of St. Jean de Luz to protect French fishing boats from that and neighboring ports after armed Spanish insurgents boarded and searched the French fishing boat Croix du Jour.

Rebel Attack on La Granja Beaten Back by Machine Gunners.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, June 5.—An insurgent counter-attack to beat back the Government forces at La Granja was reported today to have been stopped by Gen. Jose Miaja's machine gun crews.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces, trying to hold the Madrid troops back from Segovia, six miles north of La Granja, turned from defensive to offensive tactics and tried yesterday to take San Benito Hill by storm. La Granja is 30 miles northwest of Madrid.

The attack opened with fire from heavy guns and a fleet of tanks, followed by infantry armed with hand grenades and machine guns.

The intrenched Government troops withstood the bombardment.

It was announced that 20 persons were killed and 60 wounded in yesterday's insurgent artillery bombardment of downtown Madrid.

From Valencia it was reported that four insurgent planes, presumably bombers, started to fly over that city today but turned back toward Palina, Mallorca, when Government pursuit craft took the air for combat.

ROOSEVELT ON RIVER CRUISE

Embarks After Conference With Democratic Leaders.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—President Roosevelt embarked at the Navy Yard today for a cruise on the Potomac River. He boarded the Yacht Potomac after a conference with Democratic leaders.

Accompanying the President on the cruise were James Roosevelt, his wife and their daughter Sara; Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, and Mrs. Hopkins; Robert H. Jackson, Assistant Attorney-General, and Mrs. Jackson, and Miss Marguerite Lehand, a personal secretary to the President.

President Roosevelt will return tomorrow evening.

RALLY NEAR FORD PLANT IN PROTEST AGAINST BEATINGS

COMPANY PLANTS CALLED ARSENALS

Independent Group of Employes Loyal to Industrialist Plan to Oppose C I O Union.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 5.—Henry Ford was assailed by speakers addressing a rally of members of the United Automobile Workers of America today within sight of the Ford Motor Co. Rouge plant.

The meeting, part of the union's drive to enroll Ford workers, was held as a protest against the beating of U. A. W. A. members near the plant last week and as a challenge to the formation of an "independent" group by company employes.

Homer Martin, International president of the U. A. W. A., said that the union would "drive Henry Ford out of business" and demanded that the Federal Government "disarm the Ford arsenal and Ford thugs."

An Effigy of Henry Ford.

An effigy of Henry Ford beside a German Nazi swastika faced the speaker's stand.

Martin described Ford's labor policies as "Fascism" and, turning to the effigy, said:

"If you stay in America, you are going to go along with the American people."

Representative Maury Maverick (Dem.), Texas, said the union's campaign to organize Ford employes is "the major surge of the Workers' Movement of America" and said Ford would be "stupid" not to line up with the union.

"You have as much brains and better leadership than the industrial leaders of this country," the Congressman told the union auto workers.

Another U. A. W. A. outdoor rally at Flint tonight was postponed to tomorrow night because of a thunderstorm.

The organization of the Ford Brotherhood of America, with a claim of 7000 members signed in two days, was revealed by one of the founders, Byrd W. Scott, who said he had been a machinist at the Ford company for 20 years.

Immediate charges of U. A W A leaders that the brotherhood was a "company union" were met by a statement from Scott that the group had received no backing of any kind from the company.

Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, said he had no knowledge of the organization and intended to investigate.

80,698 Sign Loyalty Pledges.

Bennett said 80,698 of the 82,064 workers employed at the Rouge plant have voluntarily signed "loyalty" pledges stating "complete confidence and agreement with the policies of Mr. Henry Ford" and expressing hope they will be continued "without hindrance from any source."

Scott said, "the organization was formed because we wanted an independent labor organization, one not affiliated with any national union." He said the F B A would seek to extend its activity to Ford plants in other parts of the country.

Common Pleas Judge Ralph W. Liddy, conducting a one-man grand jury investigation into the May 26 disorder at the Ford plant, heard additional witnesses today. Bennett, who is in charge of the service department which polices the plant, has agreed to appear Monday for the inquiry. A subpena also has been issued for Edsel Ford, president of the company, who was reported to be out of the city.

Richmond Ford Plant Strikers Asked to Return to Work.

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Cal., June 5.—United Automobile Workers who rejected overwhelmingly today a proposal by their own leaders to end their strike at the Ford Motor plant here were asked immediately to reconsider their action in time for a projected work resumption Monday.

Plans of both the union leaders and the plant management received an unexpected setback by the vote, which came after an all-night debate on the terms involved.

The agreement, offered by Frank Slaby, local president of the U A W A proposed a return to work pending company consideration and adjustment of the workers' demands within 10 days.

Slaby said his membership voted 2 to 1 against it, on the theory that it would not assure them of victory in their fight for national recognition of their union, $8 for a six-hour day and adjustment of grievances.

MYSTERY ABOUT ROCKEFELLER'S FATHER RECALLED

er publication of the facts about "Levingston's" identity, Mrs. Levingston told him that, now that the Rockefellers knew where "he" was, they would probably come for his body. No claim to the body was ever made, though some persons here still credit a report that it was removed from Freeport on the night of "Levingston's" death, and that an empty coffin was buried in the cemetery lot. A farm hand is said to have related that he helped to place the body in a private car, which he was told was that of John D. Rockefeller.

The home in which "Levingston" and his wife lived, a brick house at 515 West Clark street, has been made over into two flats. Most of the documents left by the Levingstons were burned, but their marriage license, for a ceremony performed by a clergyman at St. Nicholas, N. Y., June 12, 1855, was preserved.

How Mystery of Rockefeller Identity Was Disclosed.

The mystery of William Avery Rockefeller's identity was solved by the Post-Dispatch, which in an exclusive news story Feb. 2, 1908, demonstrated that W. A. Rockefeller was the "Dr. William Levingston" who died May 11, 1906, in Freeport, Ill. He had deserted his wife and children in 1857, after having contracted a bigamous marriage, which accounted for the efforts of his sons, John D. and Frank Rockefeller, to keep him from the public eye in his later years.

A bitter family quarrel, beginning more than 30 years ago, between John D. Rockefeller and his younger brother, Frank, was accentuated by the publicity attending the search for their father. Both John D. and Frank Rockefeller denied, at various times, that their father was the same person as the deceased "Dr. Levingston"; and Frank said that the facts about his father would be made known in time. But neither ever accounted in any other way for the elder Rockefeller, who, if now living, would be 126 years old.

In July, 1905, McClure's Magazine published an article by Ida M. Tarbell, telling of her search for the father of John D. Rockefeller. She learned that William Avery Rockefeller was born Nov. 13, 1810, was married in 1837 to Eliza Davison, and that the eldest of their five children, John D., was born in 1839. In 1855, after he and his family had lived two years in Cleveland, W. A. Rockefeller disappeared. Miss Tarbell stated that she had been unable to trace him from that time and place.

All the Vices, Save One.

In her article, Miss Tarbell described the elder Rockefeller as having "all the vices save one—he never drank." She said he was a quack doctor, a trickster in trade, a crack rifle shot, and a man in whom "strength and fearlessness and joy in life, unfettered by education or love of decency, ran riot."

A photoghaph of William A. Rockefeller, obtained by Miss Tarbell from a member of the Rockefeller family, was printed with her article in McClures. Many persons in Freeport, recognized the picture as that of the man known to them as "Dr. Levingston." The latter was then in his ninety-fifth year, and very feeble. A bank cashier in Freeport recalled that "Dr. Levingston," years before, got him to cash a $3000 check for a dividend on stock of the Standard Oil Co. The stock of that company was then held very closely, and the cashier expressed surprise that any of it should be in the hands of his customer. "Dr. Levingston" replied the cashier said, that he got the stock from John D. Rockefeller, to secure a loan.

When "Dr. Levingston" died in 1906, news dispatches spoke of him as the "reputed father" of John D. Rockefeller. The photograph, the stock dividend incident, "Dr. Levingston's skill as a rifle shot, and other circumstances pointing to the same conclusion, were recounted. The death notice of "Dr. Levingston," in a Freeport paper, stated the date of his birth as Nov. 13, 1810, which was the exact date of the elder Rockefeller's birth.

Various lines of inquiry were followed by the Post-Dispatch and by other newspapers, in the endeavor to prove completely, or to disprove, the identity of the deceased elder Rockefeller with "Levingston." When a Post-Dispatch reporter called on "Dr. Levingston's" widow at Freeport, she refused to answer questions, but said, "Let John D. Rockefeller tell all if he will."

After following many clews which led to no conclusive evidence, the Post-Dispatch reporter, early in 1908, learned the location of the place "up North," where "Dr. Levingston" had gone for long absences, during his period of residence in Freeport. The place was Park River, N. D., near the Canadian border.

Going to Park River, the reporter learned that the published pictures of the elder Rockefeller had been recognized there by acquaintances of "Dr. Levingston." More significant, he learned that "Levingston" had engaged in several real estate transfers. He then found deeds on record at the Courthouse in Grafton, county seat of Walsh County, N. D., which furnished positive proof that "Levingston," as he was known there and in Freeport, was in reality the masquerading head of the house of Rockefeller.

"Rockefeller" on Deed.

A deed executed and recorded at the North Dakota county seat in 1886 conveyed a tract of land in the county from Pierson D. Briggs to William A. Rockefeller. In 1889, selling parts of this land, the supposed "Levingston" twice signed the deeds as "William A. Rockefeller, widower, of Cleveland, O." His lawful wife, Eliza Davison Rockefeller, had died earlier in that year. Briggs, who bought in 1883 the land which he later conveyed, was formerly William A. Rockefeller's son-in-law. Mrs. Briggs, formerly Lucy Rockefeller, died in the '70s, and Briggs had married again. The man who sold the land to Briggs said afterward that he received the money for it from "Dr. Levingston," and supposed he was transfering it to "Levingston." It was believed, in the light of the later development, that Briggs acted in the matter for his former brother-in-law, John D. Rockefeller, but this was not established.

After finding the documentary evidence in North Dakota, the Post-Dispatch reporter went to Cleveland and saw Pierson Briggs and Frank Rockefeller. Briggs admitted that, as shown by the deeds, he had had a real estate transaction in North Dakota with a man named Rockefeller. Asked whether the man was his former father-in-law, he said the matter was one of private business, which he would not discuss.

Refuses to Say a Word.

Frank Rockefeller, in reply to questions, said "I don't wish to say a damned word about it one way or the other." After publication of the news story in the Post-Dispatch and the New York World, Frank Rockefeller said that if his father was dead, he was not aware of the fact.

At the time of "Dr. Levingston's" death in 1906, John D. Rockefeller, through a household servant, issued a denial that "Dr. Levingston" was his father. He said that his father, William A. Rockefeller, died before his son, John D. Rockefeller Jr. was born. John D. Jr. was born in 1874.

In 1906, the year of the old man's death, John D. Rockefeller erected a monument in Owego, N. Y., to an ancestor, Johann Peter Rockefeller, "who came from Germany about 1723, died 1763." Neither he nor any other member of the Rockefeller family ever honored in this manner their nearer ancestor, William Avery Rockefeller.

LAST OF SUPPLY PLANES REACHES NORTH POLE CAMP

Brings Dog Which Will Spend Winter With Soviet Men on Floe.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, June 5.—Dr. Otto J. Schmidt, head of the Soviet Union's North Pole expedition, radioed that I. P. Mazuruk landed the last of three supply planes at the ice floe camp today.

Mazuruk, pilot of one of the ships that flew about 560 miles from the Rudolf Island base May 26, had been unable to find the camp and came down about 32 miles away.

The population of the ice floe camp immediately began unloading stores from Mazuruk's craft so all but four members of the expedition could fly back to Rudolf Island as soon as weather permits. Mazuruk's plane brought a dog which will live through the winter with the four men in their eiderdown-lined hut.

Skies were overcast today and the temperature had dropped from 26.6 degrees Fahrenheit to 24.8 in the last 24 hours. There was a one point South-Southwest wind blowing. The position of the ice floe shifted slightly to 88.50 degrees North and 28 degrees West.

Rockefeller made provisions in the final codicil to prevent the Rockefeller Institute from receiving more of the estate than is permitted under State laws, and for filling vacancies that might be created by the death of any of the trustees. Most of the successor trustees named are members of the family.

Aside from Mrs. de Cuevas, the immediate survivors included a son, John D. Jr., a daughter, Mrs. E. Parmalee Prentice, eight grandsons and two granddaughters.

the Government for the legislative branch."

McKittrick's inquiry into alleged payments of salaries from House clerical funds to persons who had not performed regular services has centered on seven appointees of St. Louis Representatives. One of them, King, is at liberty under $1500 bond returnable here June 24, when he will answer to the charge of obtaining money by false pretenses. He was certified for appointment by Representatives Edward J. (Jellyroll) Hogan Jr., and Edward M. Brady of St. Louis and was assigned to them as a personal clerk.

Miss Dorothy Schroer of St. Louis has made an affidavit that she did no work for the Legislature and received no money although House payroll records show warrants amountnig to $475 had been issued in her name and cashed. Her name was certified by Representatives Edwin G. Foerst and Michael R. Kennedy, both of St. Louis.

"We Banged It Off Fifty-fifty," New Yorker Reports

ROME, June 5.—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York and Premier Mussolini talked cordially for 15 minutes at the Palazzo Venezia today. Smith came from Florence for the interview. He leaves Rome tonight.

"We banged it off 50-50," said Smith, later. "I interviewed him half the time and he interviewed me half the time. As to what they said, Smith added: "I am going to write about that myself. He gave me a typical Tammany greeting. He grabbed me by my hand and pulled me close to him." Smith wore his brown derby and a blue suit to the audience.

FILIBUSTER TO BAR ANY COMPROMISE ON COURT SCHEME

Senator McCarren Threatens to Talk to Death Suggested Alternative Proposals.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Senate opponents of the Roosevelt court bill threatened today to filibuster against any compromise increasing the size of the Supreme Court. This was their reaction to negotiations begun by administration men in an effort to obtain a vote on a compromise bill this summer.

Denouncing the move as "pure face-saving," Senator McCarran (Dem.), Nevada, said "I will stand in the Senate until I drop against any compromise."

Senator Burke (Dem.), Nebraska, echoing his views, told newspaper men 40 opponents of the court bill were ready to filibuster to prevent any compromise that would increase the membership of the Supreme Court. But he and others said a filibuster would not be necessary, because they would have the votes to beat any such attempt.

Alternative Suggested

The administration men have not announced what compromise would be acceptable to them, but speculation has centered on proposals to name two or three additional judges now or one a year. The administration legislation as it now stands would add five at once unless the five incumbents past 70 years of age retire.

Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, announced that he was opposed to "any plan, or scheme, which gives, or tends to give, political control over the courts."

Charging that for years lower court judges had been picked by political machines, Borah took the offensive with a demand that "instead of bring the court nearer to the political influences of the Government, we could do the people of this country a great service by removing the courts farther and farther away from political control."

Replies to President's Criticism.

Opponents of the court bill struck back at President Roosevelt for his recent statement that the court should not have gone away on summer vacation leaving important cases undecided.

McCarran told newspaper men the court had "made a big mistake iin adjourning instead of going fishing." Burke commented: "I expect we will get a bill to eliminate vacations for the court. When we do we will amend it to eliminate presidential fishing trips."

Administration men privately admitted the difficulty of their task. They indicated the compromise was in the same position as the original court bill a month or two ago, when they said they had enough votes to pass it, but were not sure whether they could ever get it to a vote.

Compromise, Minton Says.

Senator Minton (Dem.), Indiana, one of the most ardent defenders of the President's original proposal, conceded that a compromise was the best that could be hoped for now.

"I don't think we could ever pass the bill as it now is," Minton said. "We'll have to work out a compromise to save the bill. We owe it to the people of the country to make some change in the personnel of the court, however, to make sure that our constitutional government will work."

The indications are that administration forces are working toward the Hatch compromise, which would permit the court to be temporarily increased in size at the rate of one Justice a year so long as Justices more than 70 years of age were serving.

Senator Hatch (Dem.), New Mexico, author of this plan, said he would not support it himself, however, if it were to be used as the means to get the bill through the Senate with a view to restoring its original provisions in the House.

PENSION-SEEKING ENGLISH SPINSTERS PARADE IN LONDON

Leaders Denounce Government in Hyde Park to Cheers of Men in Crowd.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 5.—Thousands of footsore spinsters gathered tonight in Hyde Park to hear their leaders denounce the Government for not providing pensions for unmarried women who reach the age of 55.

They were members of the National Spinsters' Pension Association. Assembled from all parts of Great Britain, they had paraded from the West End to the park behind automobiles decorated with their slogans.

A delegation earlier had presented to Sir Kingsley Wood, Minister of Health, their demand that spinsters be made eligible for pensions at 55 instead of 65, as under the present pension scheme. Wood said this would cost too much.

While waiting for the meeting to start the spinsters sang their campaign song, "When We've Worked to Fifty-five," to the tune of "When I Grow Too Old to Dream," and "Fight, Fight, Fight for Spinsters' Pensions," to the tune of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching."

The meeting was augmented by a good-natured week-end crowd, including many men, who cheered the spinster diatribes against the Government.

Morris Schweig, 74 years old, and Arnold Rosenfeld, 72, both of 702 Westgate avenue, University City, were attacked last night while walking near their home by three young men, who took $7 from Schweig.

One of the robbers clubbed Schweig over the head, knocking him down, while another felled Rosenfeld, hitting him with his fist.

ITALY, GERMANY BALK AT EDEN COMPROMISE

Said to Object to Consultation Preceding Reprisals When Patrol Is Attacked.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 5.—Both Germany and Italy sent replies today to the British proposal outlining a basis for their return to co-operation with the European "hands-off Spain" committee following their withdrawal Monday after warships of both were bombed by Spanish Government warplanes.

It was reported unofficially both Rome and Berlin balked at the British suggestion the commanders of the international patrol should consult before undertaking any reprisals in event of an attack on a patrol vessel.

Soon after Germany's note in reply was delivered to Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in London, Joachim von Ribbentrop, German Ambassador, flew to Berlin to discuss the situation with Hitler.

Italy's reply was delivered to Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador in Rome, but a copy was not received immediately in London.

Both replies are said to have followed a similar pattern.

British officials reserved comment but it was understood strong hopes were held here Hitler and Premier Mussolini would fall into line after further negotiations.

France's reply also is being studied. Paris was understood to be concerned over what some interpreted as an effort to "freeze out" Soviet Russia from the nonintervention diplomatic and naval maneuvering.

FRENCH TROOPS IN ANTIOCH TO HALT ARAB-TURK RIOTING

Syria Refuses to Make Sanjak District Autonomous Despite Turkish Insistence.

BEIRUT, Syria, June 5.—French troops were rushed into Alexandretta and Antioch today to control Arab-Turk rioting in which 27 persons were wounded.

It was reported here the Turkish army sent reinforcements to the Syrian border because of the outbreak.

The rioting started Wednesday after the Syrian Parliament refused to ratify the League of Nations' decision to make the Sanjak district, which includes the two cities, autonomous.

Turkey had insisted on separation of the region in line with establishment of the autonomous states of Syria and Lebanon, which have been supervised by France under League mandate and are to become independent in 1939. The Syrian Parliament declared Syria was indivisible under the Franco-Syrian treaty which provided for Syrian independence.

STATE SENATE CUTS RELIEF BUT ADDS TO PENSION FUND

Reduces Former by $2,000,000 and Increases Latter by Equal Amount in Passing Security Bill.

THIS WOULD SWELL FEDERAL AID TOTAL

House Refuses to Concur Forcing Conference— It Previously Rejected One Change Voted.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—The State Senate, in passing the social security appropriation bill this afternoon, reduced the amount of State relief funds to be used during 1937 and 1938 from $10,000,000 to $8,000,000 and increased the appropriation for the payment of old-age pensions from $15,000,000 to $17,000,000.

As passed by the Senate, the bill calls for the appropriation of $46,462,500 of State and Federal funds for old-age pensions, relief, child welfare and administrative costs. Of that total, $27,825,000 represent State funds and $18,637,500 Federal funds.

The bill was thrown into conference when the House refused to concur in the Senate amendments.

The House, in passing the bill several days ago, defeated decisively attempts to reduce the relief appropriation to $6,000,000 and $7,500,000 and insisted upon keeping the figure at $10,000,000. If the conference retains the Senate changes, and the House finally recedes from its position, it will mean the State will receive an additional $2,000,000 in Federal funds, as the national government matches equally all State allotments for old-age pensions but will not contribute for direct relief.

Senator Rollins, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the committee decided to increase the appropriation for old-age pensions so that the 70,000 persons now on the rolls would be assured of receiving minimum pensions of $20 a month.

He told the Senate the Legislature already had passed emergency relief appropriations amounting to $2,180,000 since January, which would leave $5,820,000 for State relief purposes during the next 18 months under the revised Senate figure. An emergency relief appropriation for June has been provided.

Senator Rollins also said that the payment of additional funds for the old-age pensions would materially reduce the State relief needs.

In addition to the relief and pension appropriations, the bill provides $1,500,000 for child welfare. It was originally supposed the Federal Government would match this with an equal amount, but it was learned from Washington yesterday that the Federal allowance will be 50 per cent of the State allotment.

Relief, old-age pension and child welfare will be administered under provisions of the Casey bill which establishes a non-political board to supervise the State Social Security programs. The bill allots $2,212,500 for administration expenses, of which $1,325,000 is to be paid out of State funds and the rest from Federal grants.

ARMOUR WORKERS SANCTION STRIKE AT NATIONAL CITY

C I O Members Vote 321 to 281 for Such Action If It Is Necessary.

Employes of the Armour & Co. plant in National City, Ill., who are members of a Committee for Industrial Organization union, voted 321 to 281, last Tuesday, in favor of a strike should such action become necessary to enforce demands for higher wages and recognition of Local Union 328, United Packing House Workers.

The vote, announced yesterday by Angelo Verdu, union organizer, authorized the nion executive committee to call a strike at its discretion. Verdu, who says he represents 1300 of the 1650 plant employes, said he expected to resume negotiations with the company Tuesday for a wage increase of 20 cents an hour demanded by employes.

MAN FIXING TIRE IS HIT BY PASSING STREET CAR

John Lancaster Leans Over Tracks —Motorman Told of Accident by Police.

John Lancaster, 26 years old, a tinner, 4207 North Broadway, suffered fractures of the skull, ribs, shoulder and nose yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a street car while changing a tire on his automobile opposite Ruskin Avenue Police Station, 5076 West Florissant avenue. He leaned over the car track just as the car passed.

Unaware of the accident, Walter Gray, operator of the one-man Bellefontaine street car, continued east in the right-of-way on the north side of West Florissant avenue. Police in a scout car stopped the street car three blocks from the scene of the accident, and told Gray to report at the police station later.

Lancaster is in a serious condition at Christian Hospital.

Senator Rollins also said that the payment of additional funds for the old-age pensions would materially reduce the State relief needs.

In addition to the relief and pension appropriations, the bill provides $1,500,000 for child welfare. It was originally supposed the Federal Government would match this with an equal amount, but it was learned from Washington yesterday that the Federal allowance will be 50 per cent of the State allotment.

Relief, old-age pension and child welfare will be administered under provisions of the Casey bill which establishes a non-political board to supervise the State Social Security programs. The bill allots $2,212,500 for administration expenses, of which $1,325,000 is to be paid out of State funds and the rest from Federal grants.

ARMOUR WORKERS SANCTION STRIKE AT NATIONAL CITY

C I O Members Vote 321 to 281 for Such Action If It Is Necessary.

Employes of the Armour & Co. plant in National City, Ill., who are members of a Committee for Industrial Organization union, voted 321 to 281, last Tuesday, in favor of a strike should such action become necessary to enforce demands for higher wages and recognition of Local Union 328, United Packing House Workers.

The vote, announced yesterday by Angelo Verdu, union organizer, authorized the union executive committee to call a strike at its discretion. Verdu, who says he represents 1300 of the 1650 plant employes, said he expected to resume negotiations with the company Tuesday for a wage increase of 20 cents an hour demanded by employes.

John Lancaster, 26 years old, a tinner, 4207 North Broadway, suffered fractures of the skull, ribs, shoulder and nose yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a street car while changing a tire on his automobile opposite Ruskin Avenue Police Station, 5076 West Florissant avenue. He leaned over the car track just as the car passed.

Unaware of the accident, Walter Gray, operator of the one-man Bellefontaine street car, continued east in the right-of-way on the north side of West Florissant avenue. Police in a scout car stopped the street car three blocks from the scene of the accident, and told Gray to report at the police station later.

Lancaster is in a serious condition at Christian Hospital.

EX-ALDERMAN DEAD

JOHN NEU JR.

EX-ALDERMAN NEU DIES OF HEART AILMENT

Sought Republican Nomination for Mayor in 1933 —47 Years Old.

Former Alderman John Neu Jr., who in 1933 was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination, died yesterday of a heart ailment in Park Lane Memorial Hospital.

He was 47 years old and resided at 3955A Wilmington avenue. He had been a patient at the hospital since suffering a heart attack about three weeks ago.

Born in St. Louis, Mr. Neu graduated from Benton College of Law and was a practicing attorney 16 years. For 12 years he was Alderman from the Thirteenth Ward, aligned with the Republican faction friendly to former Mayor Henry W. Kiel.

In 1932 he was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff, and the following year opposed Walter J. G. Neun for the mayoralty nomination, after filing at the last minute and withdrawing his candidacy for re-nomination as Alderman.

In order to have his name placed on the ballot as Neun's opponent, it was necessary for him to appeal to the Missouri Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus, the Election Board having ruled that he could not withdraw as a candidate for Alderman. Neun defeated him by a heavy majority.

He is survived by Mrs. Neu, a son, Joe Bernard Neu, and three brothers, Philip, a druggist at 3301 Lemp avenue, Erwin W., 2427A South Third street, and Theodore Neu of East St. Louis.

Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. Tuesday from the Oscar J. Hoffmeister Undertaking Chapel, 4016 Chippewa street, with interment in Sunset Burial Park.

WIFE OBTAINS DIVORCE FROM PAUL CHENOWETH

Oil Man to Pay $250 a Month as Alimony With $2750 as Property Settlement.

Mrs. Louise J. Chenoweth of Ferguson obtained a divorce, $250 a month alimony and a cash property settlement of $2750 from Paul R. Chenoweth, assistant secretary of the Shell Petroleum Corporation, before Judge David J. Murphy in Court of Domestic Relations yesterday. Chenoweth was represented by counsel, but did not contest. The charge was desertion.

The decree stipulates that the alimony shall be paid so long as Mrs. Chenoweth remains single, or Chenoweth retains his connection with the Shell corporation. In case he leaves the corporation, she is to receive $25,000, her share of the Provident Fund of the Combined Petroleum Cos., a fund for executives which is pro-rated on cessation of employment. A previous suit for separate maintenance, filed by Mrs. Chenoweth last September, was dismissed.

The Chenoweths were married in 1912, and separated in September, 1935, when, Mrs. Chenoweth alleges he left and did not return. Chenoweth lives at the Congress Hotel.

WIDOW, TAKEN ILL ON VISIT DIES IN AN AMBULANCE

Daughter Says Mother Was Injured in Automobile Accident on May 7.

Mrs. Nettie Long, 47 years old, a widow, 1715 South Tenth street (rear), died in an ambulance on the way to City Hospital yesterday. The ambulance was called after she began bleeding from the mouth and nose when visiting her daughter, Mrs. Bernice Canterbury, 3008 McNair avenue.

Mrs. Canterbury told the police her mother had complained of being ill since she was in an automobile accident May 7. The accident occurred on Highway 61 near Troy, Mo., while Mrs. Long was a passenger in the automobile owned by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stevenson, who boarded with her. Stevenson told police the occupants of the car were shaken up when it struck an embankment after a tire blew out, but said none appeared to be seriously hurt.

27 OF 40 AUTOS SOLD BY USED CAR DEALER STOLEN

75 More Still to Be Examined by Police Investigating Activities of Eugene Tebeau.

Police investigating the activities of Eugene Tebeau, former convict, who operated a used automobile agency at 4619 Delmar boulevard, say they are uncovering the largest and most systematic series of motor car thefts on record here.

Going on the theory that any car sold by Tebeau in the last 18 months is open to suspicion, detectives of the Automobile Theft Bureau have obtained the names of 115 of Tebeau's customers from finance concerns. Forty machines have been given expert examination so far, and acid and heat treatment of engine blocks revealed original numbers, which led to the identification of 27 stolen cars. The 27 automobiles have been restored to their owners, while the innocent purchasers have nothing to show for their money.

Tebeau, who is being sought following his failure to answer on a $1500 bond, which was declared forfeited May 21, dealt chiefly in 1935 and 1936 model Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth machines. Detectives said the practice was to obtain title to cars sold to junk dealers and change motor numbers of stolen machines to correspond with those of the junked machines. Thus it was possible to obtain license plates and sell the automobiles, many of which were repainted. There are 75 cars still to be examined.

The uncovering of the systematic sale of stolen cars began last month after Justice of the Peace Andrew M. Lake of St. Ferdinand Township dropped his pliers on the fender of a tan sedan he had bought from Tebeau. The pliers broke the tan covering, revealing green paint underneath. Further examination showed that the car had been owned by Joseph Sindelar, 2615 North Fourteenth street, who reported his green sedan was stolen last Feb. 7.

Other innocent buyers of stolen cars included Justice of the Peace Henry James of Jennings, and City Detective Sergeant Kenneth McGuire. McGuire returned the stolen car to the owner, Allan Wolf, 5917 Maple avenue, then consulted a lawyer and obtained possession of an "honest" automobile from Tebeau's stock.

Tebeau, arrested 53 times in the last 10 years, served part of a two-year term in the Jefferson City penitentiary for automobile theft. Warrants charging him and Edward S. McIntosh, said to have been associated in the used car agency, with larceny of motor cars have been issued by the Circuit Attorney.

WOMAN ADMITS MARRYING 3 TIMES WITHOUT DIVORCE

Mrs. Eva May Heath, 38 Years Old, Arrested on Complaint of Fourth Husband.

Mrs. Eva May Heath, 38-year-old brunette, arrested on complaint of her husband, Paul Heath, whom she left 10 days ago, admitted last night, according to police, that she had been wed three times, but never divorced, before marrying Heath at Waterloo, Ill., Dec. 13, 1935.

Taken into custody at a rooming house in the 1300 block of Chouteau avenue, Mrs. Heath told detectives that her first marriage was in 1912 at the age of 13, to a man in Memphis. She left him in 1915, after bearing him a daughter, and three years later married another man in Alexander, La., she continued. They lived together 11 years, she said, and had six daughters, two of whom died. The daughter of the first marriage is married, resides in Arkansas and has a child, Mrs. Heath said.

In 1933 she married again in Little Rock, Ark., and left that husband the following year, she related. Heath told police his wife had told him she had married before, but that he never learned of her lack of divorces until after their recent separation. Two of Mrs. Heath's daughters, aged 9 and 14, have been living with her, two are married and the other lives with relatives, she said.

RETIRED DENTIST FOUND DEAD IN AUTO IN WOOD IN COUNTY

Hose to Exhaust Indicates Dr. George Burrows Died of Carbon Monoxided.

The body of Dr. George W. Burrows, retired dentist, was found in his automobile in a woods three miles west of Vandover road, near Highway 66, in St. Louis County yesterday in circumstances indicating he had died of carbon monoxide poisoning. Apparently he had been dead two days.

Coroner John O'Connell reported that a garden hose led from the exhaust pipe through the floor of the closed car. The ignition was turned on and the fuel supply had been exhausted. A partly-filled bottle of whisky and an empty soda bottle were in the machine, and a note requesting that Dr. N. A. Slane, a dentist, 2826A North Vandeventer avenue, be notified "in case of accident."

EMPLOYES of the J. J. Newberry Co., 7352 Manchester avenue, after their walkout yesterday. The strike closed the store.

AUTO IN CRASH JUMPS CURB AND KILLS BOY, 4

Father of Eugene Schwaebe Injured—One Driver Abandons Car, Is Found at Home.

Eugene Schwaebe, 4 years old, 4933 Arlington avenue, was fatally injured, and his father, Henry Schwaebe, a bookkeeper, suffered fractures of the left arm and left ankle when struck by an automobile while standing on the sidewalk on the east side of Lillian avenue, 50 feet south of Arlington avenue at 7 o'clock last night.

The car, driven by John Meyer, an accountant, 4505 Adelaide avenue, was struck at the interesection by one driven by Jack Sayer, service car driver, 4933 Davidson avenue. Meyer said his automobile was turned around and he lost control.

Sayer abandoned his car. Arrested three hours later at his home, he told police he had "gotten excited and walked away." Eugene died an hour after the accident at DePaul Hospital, where his father also was taken. Meyer's wife, Virginia, was treated by a physician for contusions. Each driver accused the other of speeding.

Romping Child Injured Running Into Side of Car.

Donald Brindley, 13-year-old son of Mrs. Lester Walker, 1951 Warren street, is in City Hospital in a serious condition with skull injuries and lacerations inflicted yesterday afternoon, when he ran into the side of an automobile when playing in front of 3727 McDonald avenue. The driver of the car, Frank Kaplanek, a tinner, 3736 Connecticut street, is held on charges of felonious wounding and careless driving.

Donald, the police were told, was being chased in play by his brother Ralph, 14, and a companion, Donald King 9, of 3725 McDonald avenue, and ran from the north to the south side of the street, into the right front fender of Kaplanek's auto, which was going west on McDonald avenue. His head struck the fender. Kaplanek said he was unable to swerve in time to avoid the boy.

TWO CITED IN CONTEMPT TO APPEAR ON JUNE 17

Stanley and Conrad Zalewski Charged With Practicing Law Despite Injunction.

A citation was issued yesterday by Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood against the International Association of Commerce, Inc., International Credit Corporation and their officers, Stanley Zalewski and Conrad Zalewski, to show cause June 17, why they should not be punished for contempt of court. They are charged with violation of an injunction prohibiting them from engaging in unauthorized practice of law. The injunction was issued by Judge Kirkwood March 8, on petition of the Bar Association of St. Louis.

Harry Gershenson, chairman of the bar committee on unauthorized practice told the court he was informed that since the judgment was rendered the defendants continued to represent creditors in adjustments and to render legal services in that connection.

Deportees Go Through St. Louis.

Twenty-six deportees, including five women, en route to the Mexican border and San Francisco from New York, passed through St. Louis last night. Railroad special agents guarding two prison cars said 16 Mexicans, three Filipinos, two Hindus and several Chinese were in the cars.

STRIKE SHUTS ONE OF FOUR J. J. NEWBERRY CO. STORES

15 Women Employes at Maplewood Variety Establishment Demand Recognition of Union.

The J. J. Newberry Co. variety store at 7352 Manchester avenue, Maplewood, was closed yesterday when about 15 woman employes, members of the Retail Clerks' Union, Local No. 655, went on strike, forming a picket line instead of reporting to work.

The strike followed negotiations which had been carried on for 10 days in a futile effort to gain recognition of the union as the sole bargaining agent for the clerks, Vernon Housewright, secretary and business agent of the union, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. All the employes of the place are members of the union, he asserted.

Housewright declared that unless the conferences which ended Friday are resumed with a view to early settlement strikes will be called at the company's three other St. Louis stores, at 1600 and 7525 South Broadway and at 2703 North Fourteenth street.

Negotiations on wages and working conditions are sought in addition to recognition of the union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, Housewright said. Company officers could not be reached.

MAN SOUGHT NINE YEARS QUESTIONED IN GANG MURDER

Joe Emma Found in Pine Lawn, Where He Has Lived for Three Years Under Another Name.

Joe Emma, who had been sought for more than nine years by police for questioning in connection with the murder of Bennie Amato, a baker, in a feud between two Sicilian gangs of extortionists and bootleggers in 1927, was taken to police headquarters yesterday from his home at 4615 Ravenwood avenue, Pine Lawn. He had been living there, under the name of Guccione, for three years.

Two men shot Amato six times Nov. 15, 1927, when he turned away from them in anger after an argument at High near Twelfth and O'Fallon streets. They fled in an automobile driven by a third man, after one of them had flung his pistol at the dying Amato.

Dominic Emma, a middle-aged painter and poolroom proprietor, brother of Joe Emma, was identified by William Kocher, a hauler, then living at 4254A Linton avenue, as the killer who had thrown the pistol. Dominic Emma was convicted by a jury and sentenced to life imprisonment June 14, 1928. Three other State's witnesses said they were unable to identify Dominic, who is now serving his sentence in the Jefferson City Penitentiary.

Police said that at the time Dominic was arrested, six weeks after the murder, a witness who identified him also said that Joe Emma was the other armed man, but they were unable to find Joe. The witness will be asked to look at Joe today at police headquarters, but Joe, now 50 years old, has grown gray-haired and stout, and police said the man might have difficulty recognizing him.

Joe Emma denied he had anything to do with the murder, said he had not left St. Louis and refused to explain why he had been living under another name.

He was arrested Monday by Federal Alcohol Tax unit agents on a charge of possession of illicit alcohol, but as he gave the name of Guccione and the agents did not know he was wanted otherwise, he was released on $1000 bond. Information then reached the police that he was Joe Emma.

GIRL DROWNED

PEARL MIRGAIN

GIRL, 13, DROWNED AT SCHOOL OUTING

Pearl Mirgain Sinks as 200 Swim in Pool at Sauter's Park.

Pearl Mirgain, 13-year-old Luxemburg grade school pupil, was drowned yesterday afternoon while on a school picnic at Sauter's Park, 8614 South Broadway.

More than 200 persons were swimming in the pool at the park, and the girl sank without attracting attention. She was found in 12 feet of water at 2:30 p. m. by Paul Feligo, 8319A Alabama avenue, who had accompanied her to the park. He pulled her to the surface and shouted for assistance.

Police and firemen used an inhalator for 50 minutes before a physician pronounced her dead. The girl's half sister, Helen Robitsch, 11 years old, and her aunt, Mrs. Katherine Noonan, 8409 Alaska avenue, were at the park. She was the daughter of Mrs. George Robitsch, 8925 South Grand boulevard, St. Louis County.

First reports by police gave the girl's name as Pearl Morgan. The body was removed to the Fendler Undertaking Co., 744 Lemay Ferry road.

Man, 71, Fatally Hurt in Fall.

Horace Applegate, 71 years old, died Friday night in City Hospital of a fracture of the skull in a fall down a back stairway at 5026 Washington boulevard, where he lived. A woman occupant of the house told police she heard the fall and found Applegate unconscious at the foot of the stairs. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Grace Applegate.

DRESS PLANT HEADS FACE HEALTH CHARGES

Woman Workers Reported to Be Living in Solomon Factory During Strike.

Henry Solomon, president of the Solomon Manufacturing Co., 1508 Washington avenue, and his son, Harold, secretary-treasurer, were arrested yesterday at the request of Prosecuting Attorney James P. Finnegan and booked as suspected of manufacturing dresses which were not tagged properly and which were made under unhealthful conditions.

A strike has been in progress at the plaint since March 24. It was the first strike in the local drive of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union to organize workers in the cotton garment industry.

James O'Brien, an inspector for the Missouri Labor Commission, and Mrs. Lottie Walsh, deputy Labor Commissioner, reported to Prosecuting Attorney Finnegan that they inspected the Solomon plant last Tuesday evening and found nine women employes were living there.

Mrs. Walsh told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the manufacturing establishment was untidy, that milk bottles were "stacked up high," and that a gas stove and eight cots were in the large room in which five of the women were operating a machine. In addition, she said, the elevator was not running at the time of the inspection, 7:15 p. m.

Harold Solomon, who lives at 5796 Westminster place, was arrested at the plant. His father was arrested at his home, 6341 Southwood avenue, Clayton. They were released on $1500 bond, returnable in the Court of Criminal Correction Friday.

The offense is defined by State law as a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $10 to $50, a-day jail sentence or both.

When asked for a statement, Harold Solomon referred the reporter to the firm's attorney, who said the company had no statement to make.

MAN FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

Ironworker Apparently Killed Himself in Shack.

John C. Guley, 42 years old, an ironworker, was found shot to death last night, apparently by his own hand, in the shack where he lived alone at 3622 North Wharf. The wound was through the forehead, and a revolver was found on the bed where he lay. He had been dead for several days.

The body was discovered by his foreman, Edward Lindemann, when he went to investigate why Guley had not been at work.

Windsor and His Bride Find Privacy in Austria

No Callers Disturb Pair, Who Begin Housekeeping in Wasserleonburg Castle.

By the Associated Press.

NOETSCH, Austria, June 5.—Edward, Duke of Windsor, and his bride found here today the peace and privacy for which he asked when they were married Thursday. They settled down to domestic life in old Wasserleonburg Castle in the Dobratsch Mountains of Southern Austria. There were no visitors.

The Duchess, the former Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, bustled about the castle in a figured housedress. She was in search of the many dust-gathering knicknacks and ornaments with which the building was littered. Up to the attic they went, to be stored away—deer horns, elephant tusks, a hippopotamus head and stuffed pheasants among them.

For the moment, at least, she left on the walls the large portraits of the "Lady Bluebeard" and her six husbands, who lived in the castle in the sixteenth century. Legend has it the ghosts of the six come back to haunt the castle. The wife is supposed to have killed them, one after another, soon after marriage. Their bones are buried beneath the castle.

The Duke presided in baronial style over the little community on the estate. His staff included two Scotland Yard detectives, his equerry, Austrian and English maids, the Duke's Austrian chef and the other attendants who remained when the owner, the German Count Muenster, turned the chateau over to the newly married pair.

The Duke is living in a grander style than on his two previous stays in Austria, indicating, perhaps, that he has settled financial questions and is returning to the comforts to which he was accustomed as Prince of Wales and King of England.

Of the 25 gendarmes watching the estate, only one stood guard at the base of the mountain pass leading to the castle. He said no one had passed.

Below Wasserleonburg, 200 peasant residents of Noetsch proceeded with their usual tasks of farming and wood-cutting.

Crowds Jam Church to See Duke's Vicar Wed Another Pair.

DARLINGTON, England, June 5. —Crowds jammed St. Paul's Church here today to see the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, vicar who officiated at the wedding of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, marry George Gamble and Doris Haylett.

The "poor man's parson," just returned from France, expressed confidence that there would be no disciplinary action against him for his part in the former King's marriage. He will explain his reasons for performing the ceremony in his evening service tomorrow, he said.

MISS EARHART'S PLANE TUNED UP IN BRAZIL

She Writes of Stay in Fortaleza — to Leave Today for Natal.

By AMELIA EARHART.
(Copyright, 1937, New York Tribune, Inc.)

FORTALEZA, Brazil, June 5.—Instead of pushing on to Natal on our flight around the world, as we had planned, we decided to make the final preparations for the South Atlantic crossing here. Pan American Airways offers excellent mechanical service and Capt. Macedo, in charge of the airport, has put all facilities at our disposal.

I shopped this morning for sponge rubber to replace some wearing on the cockpit hatch. The best part of the purchase was that I was not allowed to pay for it.

Capt. Fred Noonan, my navigator, and I cleaned house while the men worked on the plane. We repacked all spares, sent back home the maps used so far, washed the engines and propeller covers, and sorted what we had accumulated in the last few days, including everything from a gift pineapple to calling cards.

Fortaleza is one of two cities in Brazil which is laid out with straight streets. I found out that when I left the airplane long enough to do some exploring.

I saw the fishermen return with the day's catch in catamorans. Most of them are very small consisting of logs bound together and a large three-cornered sail. The men venture as far out as 20 miles. Sale of the catch begins as soon as the boats are beached and rolled back under the palm trees which line the shore.

The skill of the fishermen in their field is not more than that of the women whom I saw balancing varied loads deftly on their heads while they paced along with large or small bundles or baskets with fruit or loaves of bread.

This is not meant to imply that Fortaleza is not modern. Busses, street cars and automobiles abound. New types of architecture are beginning to appear in many churches and schools.

I shall dislike leaving tomorrow. However, the plane is ready and we plan to start for Natal early, for, if the weather is promising, we might try to take off the same day for Dakar, French West Africa.

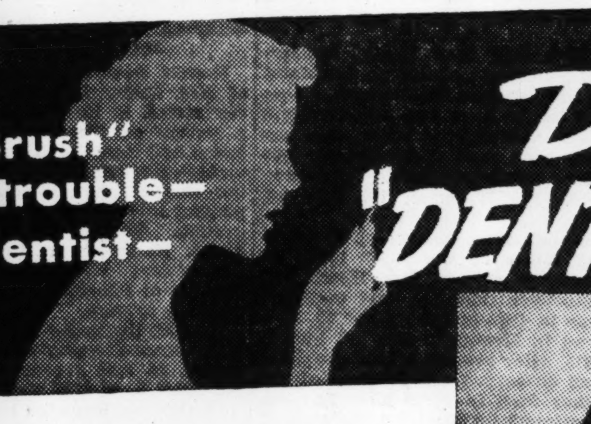
"Pink Tooth Brush" may mean trouble— See your dentist—



Don't be a "DENTAL CRIPPLE"

Too little hard chewing—too much soft food—deny your gums healthful stimulation!

Change today
TO IPANA AND MASSAGE

IT MAY HAPPEN to you—that first tinge of "pink" on your tooth brush! If it does—don't ignore it, don't treat it lightly. For "pink" on your brush is a distress call from your gums. It may lead to some dental tragedy...and you can't afford to take a chance!

When you see "pink tooth brush"—see your dentist. You may not be in for real trouble, but your dentist is the man to judge. Usually, however, he'll explain that yours is just another case of neglected gums—gums robbed of hard work, cheated of exercise—and he will probably add, "gums that will respond to the healthful stimulation of Ipana and massage."

For Ipana, with massage, is especially designed to help your gums...as well as to keep the teeth sparklingly clean. Massage a little extra Ipana into your gums each time you brush your teeth. Lazy gums awaken as circulation increases within them. Gum tissues, flabby and tender, become firmer, stronger, more resistant—your teeth have a brighter look!

Don't even wait for that tinge of "pink" to appear—change today to Ipana and massage. Let this modern, sensible oral health routine help keep you from future gum disorders. You'll have firmer, healthier gums—sparkling, attractive teeth—and a smile you can be really proud of!

Remember

COURT CONSTRUES INSURANCE POLICY FOR WORKMEN

Missouri Supreme Bench Rules Those Issued Before 1931 Cover Occupational Diseases.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—A decision construing the provisions of a standard type of workmen's compensation and liability insurance policy, written by insurance companies before the amendment of the compensation act in 1931, to include occupational disease hazards, was rendered today by the Missouri Supreme Court en banc.

The decision, affecting virtually all of the companies writing this type of insurance in Missouri, applied only to policies written prior to the 1931 amendment, it was said. Attorneys for several such companies had been permitted to file briefs in the case decided today, in which the court affirmed a judgment of $15,000 obtained in St. Louis Circuit Court by William Soukop against the Scott Ford Battery Co. and the Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation of London, for disability arising from lead poisoning,

What New Law Provides.

The workmen's compensation law, prior to the amendment, did not authorize compensation for occupational disease in any form Since the amendment, provision is made for specific inclusion or exclusion of insurance coverage for occupational disease hazards, in liability policies, through policy indorsements based on declared elections by employers.

The policies written include coverage clauses for workmen's compensation and liability under the common law. Soukop's suit was brought under the latter clause.

The insurance company contended Soukop's condition, alleged to have resulted from lead poisoning in the course of his employment, was not caused by accident within the meaning of that term as used in the insurance policy, and therefore was not within the coverage of the policy. Lead poisoning is an occupational disease, and the policy covered only injuries caused by accident, it was said. Soukop's injury was not an accident within the meaning of the law and policies, it was asserted.

Court Construes Law.

Chief Justice Charles T. Hays, who wrote the opinion. did not agree with this, and construed the word "accident," as applied to Soukop's injuries, and the term "personal injuries," as used, to be broad enough to include occupational disease hazards.

"In arriving at the foregoing conclusions," Judge Hays said, "we have, after considering the policies as a whole and in all in their parts, sought to ascertain what was the main purpose or object of the parties to the contracts in making them, and to effectuate their intention by the application of settled legal principles of interpretation."

Judges George R. Ellison, William F. Frank and Ernest S. Gantt concurred in the opinion. Judges C. A. Leedy Jr. and Ernest M. Tipton dissented. Judge James M. Douglas did not sit in the case.

Soukop won a judgment for $15,000 in his original suit but Division No. 2 of the Supreme Court reversed it. Then Soukop obtained the rehearing, just concluded, before the court en banc.

E. J. Becker Left $5000.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 5.—Letters of administration today valued at $5000 the estate of the late Edwin J. Becker, supervisor of the Missouri Liquor Control Department. Mrs. Kathryn Becker McNamara, a daughter, was named administratrix. The only other heir is a son, Edwin J. Becker Jr., Pueblo, Colo.

ROTARIANS CONVENE IN FRANCE

President Lebrun Will Open International Meeting Today.

NICE, France, June 5. — Eight thousand Rotarians were here tonight for Rotary International's twenty-eighth world convention, opening tomorrow. United States delegates debarked from the Italian liners Rex and Roma at nearby Villefranchesur-Mer early today to the music of a band from the United States Cruiser Raleigh. President Albert Lebrun of France will open the convention.

HERCULES ROOM COOLER
Model 30 $315 Installed
The ONE Air-Conditioner That Supplies ALL FIVE Essentials! Air-Conditioning to us means far more than merely low temperature. There are five essential requirements to proper "Air-Conditioning!"
FIRST. Refrigeration to bring the temperature to a point where the body can readily adjust itself.
SECOND. Remove excess humidity from the air, permitting evaporation of body moisture.
THIRD. Proper circulation throughout the entire room.
FOURTH. The all-important matter of purification. The air is electrically purified. Ionizaton actually removes odors from the air.
FIFTH. Filteration is especially important to hay fever and sinus sufferers. Pollen and dust is all removed.

The ONE Air-Conditioner That Supplies ALL FIVE Essentials! Air-Conditioning to us means far more than merely low temperature. There are five essential requirements to proper "Air-Conditioning!"
FIRST. Refrigeration to bring the temperature to a point where the body can readily adjust itself.
SECOND. Remove excess humidity from the air, permitting evaporation of body moisture.
THIRD. Proper circulation throughout the entire room.
FOURTH. The all-important matter of purification. The air is electrically purified. Ionizaton actually removes odors from the air.
FIFTH. Filteration is especially important to hay fever and sinus sufferers. Pollen and dust is all removed.

FRANK X. HIEMENZ FUNERAL ON TUESDAY

Former School Board Member in Law Practice in St. Louis 25 Years.

Frank X. Hiemenz, practicing attorney in St. Louis for 35 years and a member of the Board of Education from 1915 to 1921, died at noon yesterday at De Paul Hospital, following a sudden heart attack at his farm in Jefferson County a week ago. He was 55 years old, and had been ill with heart disease and diabetes.

The funeral, at 2 p. m., Tuesday, will be held at his residence, 2959 Milton boulevard. The body will be taken to Valhalla Crematory.

A native St. Louisan, Mr. Hiemenz was graduated from Washington University School of Law in 1902. In his legal career he specialized in real estate law, and was regarded as an expert in the field. In 1931 he was appointed counsel for the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange. His offices were in the Title Guaranty Building.

As a member of the School Board he was a leader of a faction which campaigned in 1920 to oust Superintendent of Instruction John W. Withers. Dr. Withers retired from the position the next year to become dean of the New York University School of Education.

Sisters Die Within Hour.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 5. — Two elderly sisters, Mrs. L. V. Johnson of Atlanta and Mrs. I. E. Nesmith of Statesboro, Ga., died within an hour today in hospitals 200 miles apart. Both had been ill since March. Mrs. Nesmith, 80 years old, died in Statesboro at 5:40 a. m. Mrs. Johnson, 72, died in Atlanta a few minutes later.

ELAINE DOWLING, GIRLS' BAND LEADER, SECRETLY MARRIED

Became Bride of Musician in New York, April 16, Her Mother Here Learns.

Elaine Dowling, St. Louis-born leader of a girls' radio and vaudeville band, was married secretly last April 16 in New York to Mark de Bennedictis, a musician, her mother, Mrs. Marie Dowling, 3305A Texas avenue, learned yesterday.

Miss Dowling appeared here last January with her band in a stage show at the Ambassador Theater. She has been on the stage for eight years and recently completed a movie short for Warner Bros. She is 24 years old.

Her husband plays in the orchestra at a New York hotel. The pair, Mrs. Dowling said, will be re-married in a church ceremony at the end of the month.

IRON FIREMAN Expands Factory Branch in St. Louis

Company announces greatly enlarged facilities for serving Commercial, Industrial and Residential Iron Fireman users.

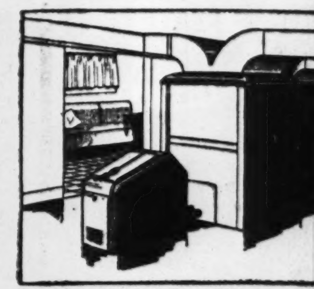
IRON FIREMAN, pioneer and world's largest manufacturer of automatic coal burners, has doubled its sales, engineering and service departments in order efficiently to meet the growing demand for its line of stokers in St. Louis. This expansion brings with it new and enlarged quarters at 3114-16 Washington Avenue, where a complete range of Iron Fireman burners is now on display.

If you pay fuel bills for a home, factory, building or institution, you should investigate Iron Fireman and inspect the 1937 models. These machines do four jobs — and do them well:

—Cut fuel bills from 15% to 50%.
—Provide steady, even heat or boiler pressure
—Eliminate the costly smoke nuisance.
—Increase heating or power plant efficiency.

When you see these modern automatic coal burners in our show rooms, you will understand why Iron Fireman is the world's standard of stoker value and why it is the outstanding leader in America's fastest growing heating industry.

Residential Coal Flow Model
The last word in automatic coal heating. Feeds coal direct from bin to fire; abolishes all coal handling. Provides luxurious automatic heat at low cost.



Residential De Luxe Hopper Model
Quickly installed in old or new heating plants. All Iron Fireman models are equally adapted to warm air furnaces, hot water, steam and vapor-vacuum boilers.

Commercial Hopper Model
Iron Fireman makes a complete line of Hopper and Bin-Feed models for heavy duty low and high pressure boilers developing up to 500 h.p. There are more Iron Fireman stokers installed than all other makes combined.

QUEBEC INVITES YOU!

Maurice Raymond

Right at your door lies a land which has preserved the romance and speech of Old France . . . a land where the old customs of la Normandie and la Bretagne are as alive and cherished as in the first days of la Nouvelle France . . . the Province of Quebec of to-day.

Add to the more than four centuries of glamorous history and romance of la vieille Province de Québec, the gorgeous scenic beauty of its lakes, rivers, and mountains, its lovely summer climate, and unsurpassed facilities to enjoy your favorite summer sports at their best—and you have the ideal vacation land.

From Sherbrooke, celebrating its Centennial this year—through the Eastern Townships, Cosmopolitan Montreal, the Laurentian mountains, Trois-Rivières and the beautiful valleys of the St. Maurice, the Saguenay and the Ottawa; Quebec City and the far-famed Gaspé Peninsula — holiday-makers will find the ultimate of recreation and pleasure, with relaxation from dull care. Write to-day for beautifully illustrated booklets . . . and complete information.

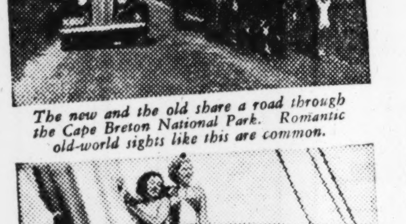
CANADA ...your friendly neighbour CALLING YOU

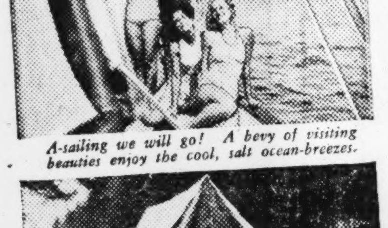
In circle: A sword-fishing fleet in South Ingonish Harbor, near the new Cape Breton National Park. Below: A smooth, inviting Prince Edward Island motor road.

"Down East" to THE MARITIMES

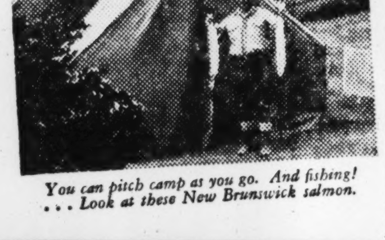
Land of Pilgrimage and Pioneers and Play



The new and the old share a road through the Cape Breton National Park. Romantic old-world sights like this are common.



A-sailing we will go! A bevy of visiting beauties enjoy the cool, salt ocean-breezes.



You can pitch camp as you go. And fishing! . . . Look at these New Brunswick salmon.

Do you long for a truly different vacation this summer? . . . One that brings you close to centuries-old, romantic times, yet offers you every modern comfort and advantage? Find the perfect answer to your dreams in Canada's sea-girt Maritimes, "down where the East begins".

Come to Nova Scotia, famed by the poet Longfellow as "The Land of Evangeline", home port of ancient buccaneers. Vacation on red-cliffed Prince Edward Island, "Garden of the Gulf", paradise of breeze-cooled, surf-washed ocean beaches. Fish to your heart's content in the mighty rivers of New Brunswick, home waters of the lordly salmon.

Come, stay awhile in this rolling, wooded, friendly country of the Maritimes . . . Rent a comfortable cottage perched above an inlet from the sea . . . Stay at wayside inns, great hotels, or famed resorts, as you prefer . . . Swim, fish, canoe, cruise, motor, golf, ride—and laze as it may please your fancy!

Quick Facts ABOUT HOW TO VISIT CALIFORNIA IN A 2-WEEKS VACATION

WHAT:
An amazingly varied playground of mountains, ocean, islands, forests, gardens, valleys, cities ... orange groves, oil fields, and other intriguing Los Angeles County industries ... Old Mexico and modern Hollywood ... every outdoor sport ... swimming, surfboarding, fishing, riding, golf ... any you can name.

WHERE:
In cosmopolitan Los Angeles; or fascinating Hollywood; or pleasure-loving Pasadena, Santa Monica, Beverly Hills, Long Beach, Glendale, Pomona and other nearby cities. Accommodations for every budget, flowered bungalows to great hotels.

WHY:
For more different ways to have fun than in any other place, visitors say. For rainless summer days, and cool nights (summer average temperature only 69.4°), and the complete change of "foreign" customs and trees, fruits, flowers, climate, gaiety.

HOW LONG:
A 2-weeks' vacation, 16 days counting week-ends, is ample. You can have a choice of transportation methods and still have 12 days here.

HOW MUCH:
An ordinary vacation budget will do in this year 'round playground needing no short-season "peak prices." Costs here are 15% to 32% less than the average of 20 leading U. S. resorts. Travel costs are lowest in history.

FREE: Automatic Trip Planner

This 48-page official Guide Book—widely acclaimed by travel experts—plans your trip for you from start to finish: what to see and do, how to get here, time required, itemized cost schedules, plus 60 photographs, maps, etc. . . . facts not available elsewhere. FREE by return mail; also Official Picture Map.

50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Quellmalz to Celebrate Tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Quellmalz of 3410 Chippewa street will observe their golden wedding anniversary tomorrow with a gathering of relatives and friends at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Nies, 5307 Lansdowne avenue, who were married on the same date 15 years ago.

Quellmalz, a retired lumber manufacturer, was born in St. Louis 77 years ago, and his wife 68 years ago. They have three daughters, Mrs. Edward Jacoby, with whom they make their home, and Miss Florence Quellmalz, a teacher in Beaumont High School.

WOODSMEN VOTE TO END STRIKE; LEADERS HELD

Union Officers Arrested by Michigan State Police on Charges of Conspiracy to Incite a Riot.

By the Associated Press.

MUNISING, Mich., June 5.—Lumberjacks voted to end their violence-studded strike in upper Michigan's timber camps tonight, repudiating two of their leaders who were jailed on charges of conspiracy to incite a riot.

Joseph Ashmore, Deputy State Labor Commissioner, said the strike leaders had "adopted methods that even Soviet Russia would not tolerate," predicted that most, if not all, of the 6000 men would return by Monday to camps scattered over the upper peninsula.

He said the state department of labor and industry would assist the woodsmen in presenting their demands to camp and mill operators. The demands include minimum wages of 55 cents an hour and improved working conditions.

Three hundred strikers attended a meeting here this afternoon. Ashmore said they voted unanimously to return to work.

Only half a dozen men appeared at Eben junction for a meeting called by a faction determined to continue the strike. Vigilantes, convinced there would be no further violence, laid down their arms.

State police, ordered into Munising and Newberry last night to avert threatened attacks on the Alger County court house here and a recurrence of rioting of Newberry, arrested the three leaders this morning.

Charged With Conspiracy.

Joe Liss, chairman of the strike committee of the Ironwood local of the Sawmill and Timber Workers' Union, and David (Double-breasted Joe) le Clair, his chief lieutenant, were charged with conspiracy to incite a riot. Jay Spielmacher was detained without charge.

Sheriff's deputies escorted Luke Raik, president of the Ironwood local, and Henry Paull, Duluth, Minn., attorney for the union, out of town. They did not resist. The officers patlocked two halls, used as a meeting place, and a commissary for the strikers.

An exodus of strikers followed. As small groups of woodsmen, packs on their backs, trudged along the roads, automobile loads of townspeople followed, shouting instructions to "keep moving."

Four hundred of the striking workers had converged on Munising with the avowed intention of "taking over" the court house unless assurance were given by the county welfare commission that families of strikers would be given adequate relief.

Ready to Resist Attack.

Twelve state policemen, special deputies sworn in by Sheriff Louis Pelletier, an augmented police force and hundreds of townspeople prepared to resist that attack, which never came.

At Newberry, where Sheriff Ernest Shaw received reports the strikers intended to "take the town apart" in retaliation for defeat in a lumber mill riot there yesterday, other state policemen and hundreds of armed townspeople similarly waited in vain.

The strike began May 24 and spread eastward across the upper peninsula. Roving bands of strikers vsiited lumber camps and sawmills. The operators said the strikers threatened the men with violence unless they stopped work.

VOTE FRAUD DEFENSE MOVE TO DISQUALIFY JUDGE OTIS

Lawyers in Kansas City Trials to Ask U. S. Appeals Court for Writ of Mandamus.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 5.—Harry L. Jacobs, a defense attorney in earlier vote fraud cases, said tonight the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Paul would be asked to take jurisdiction in an effort to compel United States District Judge Merrill E. Otis to disqualify himself from presiding in 10 pending vote fraud conspiracy trials.

Jacobs said William G. Boatright, chief of defense counsel in the first fraud trial, would ask the Court Monday for permission to file an application for a writ of mandamus, compelling Judge Otis to step aside. Judge Otis has refused requests that he disqualify himself.

Maurice M. Milligan, United States District Attorney, instructed two assistants, Sam C. Blair and Thomas C. Costolow, to go to St. Paul and argue against issuance of a mandamus writ.

Attorneys for 22 defendants in the 10 trials to be heard by Judge Otis have filed affidavits of bias and prejudice against him. Judge Otis held they were insufficient and suggested the mandamus proceeding.

The next vote fraud conspiracy trial before Judge Otis is set for June 21.

South Side Lions Install Officers.

The Lions Club of South St. Louis installed officers at a dinner dance Wednesday at the Century Boat Club. O. J. Drees is president; E. G. Speh, Jack Claves, and Herbert Mueller, vice-presidents; Fred Spies, secretary; Jack Keightley, treasurer; Calvin Yeckel, lion tamer and Ed Belz, tail-twister. Directors are Joe Wasser, Al Nickl, Herman Sexauer, Jules Field and Ed. Quasebarth. Ross D. Hogan is immediate past president.

BOY KILLED IN EXPLOSION TO BE BURIED TOMORROW

Four of Nine Others Hurt at St. Charles When Lantern Ignited Gas, in Serious Condition.

Funeral services for William Limpert Jr., 12 years old, who died yesterday in St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Charles, of burns suffered Thursday when a lantern ignited sewer gas in the basement of a St. Charles residence, will be held at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning at St. Charles Borromeo Church, with burial in the church cemetery. A verdict of accident was returned at the inquest last night.

Four of the nine children injured in the explosion, which occurred when they hunted for a litter of lost kitttens in the rain-flooded basement, are in St. Joseph's Hospital in a serious condition. The Mayor, City Council and members of the Police Department of St. Charles yesterday underwent blood tests in case transfusions were found necessary. One those still in the hospital is Madonna, William's 14-year-old sister. Their parents reside at 713 North Sixth street, St. Charles.

MAN'S DEATH ATTRIBUTED TO EATING SPOILED FISH

The death Friday at Park Lane Memorial Hospital of F. W. Karl Welp, 62 years old, of 5078A Delmar boulevard, was "superinduced by food poisoning" apparently caused by eating contaminated fish, according to a Coroner's report filed yesterday.

Welp, who was a wholesale meat dealer, was one of a party on an outing near Bagnell Dam over the Memorial Day holiday. He and his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Welp, 314 Clara avenue, ate some fish which made them all ill. The fish were bought from a farmer in the neighborhood, who said the fish had been caught a short time before.

The funeral of Welp will be tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Masonic Temple, 3681 Lindell boulevard, with burial in Sunset Burial Park. Besides his son he is survived by his wife and five daughters.

Missouri's Longest Legislative Session Drawing to Close With Little Progressive Work Done

Adjournment Likely Tomorrow Night or Tuesday—Taxes and Expenditures Increased and More Political Jobs Created.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—The Fifty-ninth General Assembly of Missouri had so nearly completed its work tonight that final adjournment by Monday night or Tuesday seemed virtually certain. It will have been the longest session in the history of the State, 152 days if it adjourns Monday, with little of progressive accomplishment to its credit.

When recess was taken late this afternoon until Monday morning about the only matters of importance unfinished were the appropriation bills, carrying a total of about $175,000,000, and the Casey bill setting up a State Social Security Commission to have direction of old-age pensions, relief and aid to dependent children. In the next 18 months the committee will have control of the expenditure of about $45,000,000.

The Casey bill is in conference committee, which is attempting to reconcile differences between the Senate and House. The appropriation bills also are all in conference committees or will be by Monday.

Issue in Casey Bill.

The only unsettled question in the Casey bill is a House amendment which would require the Secretary, or administrative officer, of the Social Security Board in each county to be a resident of the county. The effect of the amendment was to inject politics into what otherwise was a nonpolitical measure, and to attempt to give local political organizations the patronage of the county social security offices.

In the conference committee the Senate has stood firmly against the amendment, while so far the House members have shown no disposition to yield. However, leading House members said privately today that when the committee meets Monday they will consent to removal of the objectionable amendment.

If the amendment had remained in the bill there would have been a serious question as to whether the National Social Security Board would approve Federal grants to the state, the national body insisting that administration of the law should be in the hands of trained social workers, and that there should be no limitation on the power of the state commission to conform to all Federal regulations. Failure of Federal grants would cost the state about $16,500,000 this biennum.

With the surrender of the House on this point, however, the bill is expected to quickly pass by Monday evening.

Some differences between the two houses on appropriations may prevent adjournment Monday night, but by Tuesday the leaders are confident all bills that have a chance of passage will have been passed.

"Grab Bag Legislature."

The present session has made a record for increase in taxation, for lavish expenditures and for increase of salaries of political job holders, the number of jobs created and the number of salary increases approved having been so great that Senator Donnelly of Lebanon, one of the strong Democratic leaders, sounded a political warning on the floor of the Senate recently with the declaration that "this is going down in history as the grab bag Legislature."

Aside from the social legislation, such as unemployment insurance and amendments to the old age pension laws, made pressing by the fact that if it were not enacted the State would lose huge Federal grants, the Legislature has given virtually no attention to progressive legislation.

Its chief accomplishment, when it adjourns, will have been the passage of the unemployment compensation act with the provision for the pooled fund instead of the individual employer's reserve plan, and the creation of the centralized agency for handling old age pensions, relief and aid to dependent children.

In the realm of higher taxes it doubled the State sales tax, making the rate 2 per cent instead of 1 per cent, and increased the State gasoline tax from 2 cents to 3 cents per gallon, the latter not to be effective until December, 1938, when the present constitutional prohibition against increase in the gasoline tax rate expires. The new sales tax rate will produce about $12,000,000 additional revenue each year, and the new gasoline rate, when it becomes effective, will produce an additional $6,000,000.

Auto License Fee Bill.

As a companion bill to the gasoline rate increase, the Legislature passed a bill reducing passenger automobile license fees one-half, to be effective on the same date that the gasoline increase goes into effect. It is practically certain, however, that Gov. Stark will veto the license fee bill, he having taken the position that largely increased revenues must be provided at the end of next year to permit a continuation of the State road building program.

By that time all of the road bonds funds will have been expended and the drain on the road revenues to meet principal and interest payments on the road bonds will be at its peak. The Governor has said that if pledges to rural sections of the state to build gravel farm-to-market roads are to be kept, additional funds will be needed. To meet the requirement he gave his active support to the gasoline tax increase bill, and opposed the bill reducing license fees, all revenues from both sources going to the road fund.

In several important legislative matters, the legislature passed makeshift bills, falling far short of the requirements for effectiveness. Though it passed permanent registration bills for St. Louis and Kansas City, the bills were drawn along lines of protecting the party political organizations in their efforts to control elections, rather than to protect the public from dishonest and boss-controlled elections. The important signature clause, under which a voter would be required to sign his name for indentification purposes when casting his ballot, was eliminated, although in many cities the requirement has been found effective in detecting and preventing election frauds.

Driver's License Law.

Likewise, in passing a statewide driver's license law, the legislature refused to follow the example of more progressive states in requiring physical examination of drivers. Under the Missouri law any person may obtain a license. Its only value lies in the fact that licenses may be suspended or revoked for serious traffic violations.

The child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution was rejected for the fourth time, but the Legislature passed a bill prohibiting the sale in Missouri of all goods produced in whole or in part by child labor.

A resolution was passed for the submission to the voters in the November, 1938, election of an amendment to the State Constitution providing for the payment of old-age pensions to indigent persons over 65 years of age, instead of over 70, as the Constitution now provides. This change is necessary under the Federal law, which provides that after 1940 the Federal Government will not contribute funds for pensions to states which have an age requirement above 65. One-half of all old-age pensions are paid by the Federal Government.

Other Legislation.

Among the other acts passed were:

Repeal of the Jones-Munger law, under which property was sold for delinquent taxes without filing suit against the owner and obtaining a tax judgment.

A bill outlawing advertisement by dentists and fixing a stricter code of ethics for dentists.

A bill permitting quarterly payment of taxes in St. Louis with a discount of 1 per cent.

Authorization for the erection of a cancer hospital.

Abolition of hanging as a means of carrying out death sentences, and substituting the use of lethal gas. All executions in the future will be in the State Penitentiary in Jefferson City, instead of in the counties where the condemned persons were convicted.

The Legislature gave no attention to reformation of the antiquated criminal code of Missouri, under which lawyers taking advantage of technicalities frequently are able to obtain release of criminals. It even attempted to take a backward step, when it passed the "shotgun motion" bill repealing the requirement that attorneys must file specific allegation of errors when taking appeals, and not deceive the prosecuting officers as to the grounds on which they intended to rely in the Supreme Court. Though the bill was passed, Gov. Stark vetoed it, thus preserving virtually the only criminal code reform act enacted in the State in more than 25 years.

Early in the session the House refused to conduct a thorough investigation of the Missouri Insurance Department and the insurance scandal involved in the fire insurance rate compromise, by which the insurance companies and a group of lawyers got 80 per cent of impounded excess insurance premiums, while the policyholders got only 20 per cent. A resolution introduced by Representative Francis Smith of St. Joseph for a searching inquiry by a special committee was shunted to the regular insurance committee of the House to conduct a whitewashing inquiry. No attempt was made by the committee to do more than take the voluntary statements of those involved.

It was essentially a do-nothing Legislature, which has been criticised more for its sins of omission than of commission.

MARRIAGE OF STUDENTS LAST AUGUST DISCLOSED

Bryant Moller's Bride Was Miss Melissa G. Paulson; Both Attended Washington U.

Miss Melissa Gail Paulson, daughter of Mrs. Leonard Paulson, 526 Oakwood avenue, Webster Groves, and Bryant Moller, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Loren Moller, 537 Clark avenue, Webster Groves, were married secretly last August, Mrs. Paulson announced yesterday.

Both attended Washington University during the school year just ended, Moller completing his third year in the business administration course. Mrs. Moller, who was a sophomore, dropped out of school in the spring. They are making their home temporarily with Mrs. Paulson.

The marriage wis disclosed several days ago to the parents and close friends. Moller's father is secretary of Chapman Brothers Cleaning & Dyeing Co.

SOVIET SEEKING TO BAR JAPANESE, GERMAN CONSULS

Reported "Suggestion" to Close Some of the Offices Resisted by Both Countries.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, June 5.—The Soviet Government is said to have "suggested" the closing of some of the seven Japanese and seven German consular offices in the Soviet Union but that both countries had resisted such action. Pravda, organ of the Communist party, gave out this blast: "The detection and destruction of all Japanese and German spies has become the important business of the day."

Thus Japanese and Germans are bearing the brunt of the continuing spy hunt. Newspapers daily denounce the intelligence services of those two countries for spying and sabotage in Russia. Japan and Germany were publicly designated as prospective enemies in both of the recent Moscow treason trials. Japan and Germany signed an anti-Communist treaty last November.

Consulates Near Military Centers.

It was understood Moscow wanted to close the German consulates in Odessa and Vladivostok, both important military points. What Japanese consulates were involved was not disclosed, but all of Japan's consulates except one at Odessa, are in Far Eastern Siberia, most of them close to the troubled Siberian-Manchoukuoan frontier and near centers of Soviet military activity.

The Government's campaign of expulsion against foreigners whom it considers to be enemies, continued with vigor. During May hundreds of aliens, including some Americans, were compelled to leave. Authorities have indicated July 1 has been set as the date for completion of this purge. Most foreign embassies and legations have reported numerous cases in which their nationals have been given only a few days to liquidate their affairs and cross the frontier.

More "Enemies of the Country."

Along with the anti-foreign, anti-spy drive was a revival of reports that numerous Soviet officials have been found to be enemies of the country. Pravda asserted that the case against Jan Gamarnik, Vice Commissar of Defense, who killed himself recently, included evidence he was a "Trotskyist who conspired to sell the Soviet Union to German and Japanese imperialists."

"There has not been and will not b eany mercy shown these malicious enemies who have lifted their hands against our country," Pravda continued. "They will be dragged out of their holes and killed like mad dogs. The sword of the proletarian dictatorship has not grown blunt or rusty."

Pravda named as such enemies Alexis I. Rykov, former Premier, and Nicolai Bucharin, once editor of Pravda, both under arrest and expected to be principals in another treason trial soon.

The newspaper reported a large group of oppositionists within the Communist party had been arrested at Azov, in the Black Sea province.

ELEVEN HELD IN DISORDERS IN WILMINGTON ELECTION

Councilman, Candidate for Reelection, Beaten With Blackjack.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 5.—Eleven men were arrested in disorders at polling places today as Wilmington electors voted heavily for a city ticket.

City Councilman Fred R. Brown, candidate for re-election, was injured by a blow from a blackjack and sent to a hospital for treatment. Police arrested five men, three of them special sheriff's deputies.

At another voting place two sheriff's deputies were chased by about 60 persons. Police broke up the chase and arrested six of the crowd.

WALGREEN, WHO CRITICISED CHICAGO U., GIVES IT $550,000

Money, With Rosenwald Gift, to Be Used for Course in American Institutions.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 5.—The University of Chicago announced today announced the receipt of a gift of $550,000 from Charles R. Walgreen, chain drug store operator, who less than two years ago criticised the university for "red" activities and caused his niece, Lucillle Norton, to cancel her enrollment.

President Robert M. Hutchins said the gift would be used to establish the Charles R. Walgreen Foundation for the Study of American Institutions. He said he believed Walgreen's attitude toward the school had not changed, but that he gave the money because he was interested in providing any school with the best educational facilities possible.

Previously the Rosenwald Family Association, established by the late Julius Rosenwald, gave the university $275,000 on the condition the school could raise an additional sum of not less than twice that amount. The Rosenwald and the Walgreen gifts, totaling $825,000, will be devoted to the purposes of the Walgreen Foundation, Hutchins said.

Police in New York Use 'Homicide Cars' In Solving Crimes

Apparatus Needed for Detection of Criminals Rushed to Scene in Rural Regions.

New York State's State Police have developed a "homicide car" with which to combat crime. Consisting of Ford V-8 sedan delivery cars carrying photographic, lighting and finger printing equipment, these units are used for obtaining evidence in murder, homicide, questionable suicide, criminal negligence, unidentified dead and burglary cases. They operate in rural sections and communities too small to afford regular police protection.

Due to the speed with which these units reach the scenes of tragedies and the completeness of the equipment which they carry, State police are able to turn up and preserve valuable evidence which otherwise might be lost.

Typical of cases solved with the aid of the homicide cars are the following:

A Justice of the Peace with no known enemies was found murdered in his cottage in a lonely rural section. Discovery of a finger print on a lamp chimney in the cottage led to the arrest of two men in California. Both were convicted of the murder. It developed that they had asked the Justice of the Peace for shelter while passing through the locality and then had murdered their host.

A finger print on a cigar wrapper found in a waste basket in a grocery store which had been robbed led to the identification and conviction of the robbers.

Bodies recovered from lakes and rivers and even some which have been long buried have been identified and restored to relatives.

Cases are investigated at night as well as by day, as portable gasoline driven generators and flood lights are carried. A highway, home or scene of any crime at night can be adequately lighted for photographs and inspection.

'Gas' and Oil Test Run of 25,000 Miles Started by Texaco

A Pontiac eight is one of 12 cars ranging from the lowest price group up to the $1000 class that left Detroit May 15 on a 25,000-mile test run under the supervision of Texaco engineers.

This is the second national test run undertaken by Texas company engineers to get technical data and demonstrate what can be accomplished with 1937 automobiles properly fueled and lubricated.

Last year, the run covered 18,000 miles around the rim of the United States. The Pontiac eight which was one of that fleet of nine cars completed the entire distance with an economy record exceeded only by one of the lower priced cars.

The 1937 test trip heads for the East and the New England states, then down the Eastern seaboard to the South, crossing the country through the southern tier of states; up the Pacific Coast and back the northern and central way, arriving back in Detroit on Sept. 18.

Every State and every State capital will be visited. Also, stops of two and three days will be made for speed tests on Daytona Beach; performance with fuel and lubrication tests in Death Valley at 276 feet below sea level; runs on the salt flats of Utah and tests in Rocky Mountain National Park, Colorado, where elevations of 11,000 to 12,000 feet will be encountered in the passes.

Every car is fully equipped with sets of special recording instruments so that observations can be taken at 15-minute intervals. Thermo-couples, or electric thermometers, which record on the special instrument panel in the rear compartment of each car, have been installed at 20 vital points of each engine and chassis.

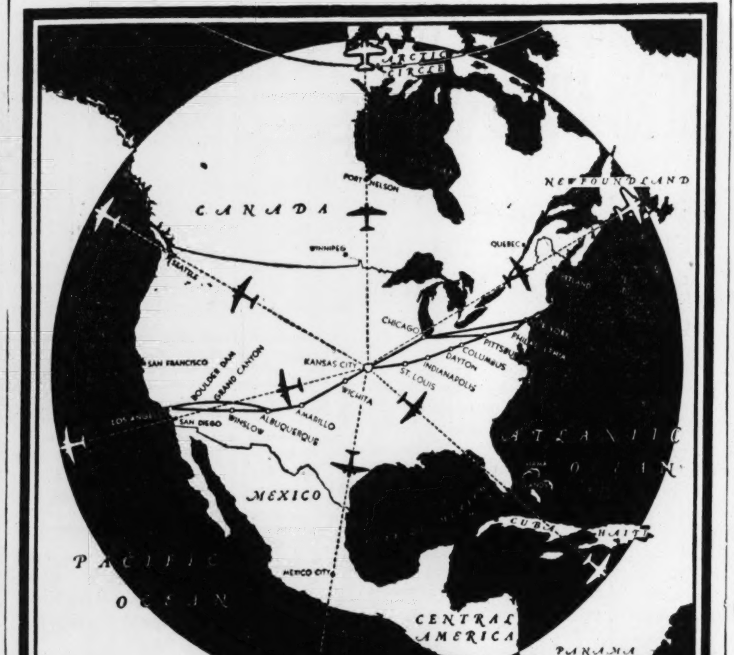
Cruising Range of Skysleeper Plane



Map showing how from its home base at Kansas City, Mo., any of the fleet of Skysleeper planes now in service on the coast-to-coast route of Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., is capable of cruising without stop into the Arctic Circle, or over and beyond San Diego or Seattle, over Maine to Newfoundland, over and beyond the City of Mexico, or over Florida, Cuba and Haiti. The circle on the map is 2100 miles at all points from Kansas City. It was drawn to show the ability of the planes, with their 2400 horsepower and 820 gallons of gasoline storage capacity, to fly great distances without landing for fuel and, so, to fly around storm areas.

Moving Picture Shows How Autos Are Made In De Soto Factory

The story of modern automobile manufacturing methods in Detroit will be told to audiences throughout the country in a one-reel moving picture now being released.

Using the new DeSoto plant as a locale, the film stresses the precision and careful planning necessary in volume production of cars, comparing automobile manufacturing and assembling operations with the craftsmanship of watchmakers.

That modern plants are necessary to build modern cars is brought out in the sequences showing the construction of this newest of automobile factories—a plant that grew from blueprints to buildings in four months. Special emphasis is given to the modern trend toward the use of glass in factory walls and ceilings. More than 52 per cent of the sidewalls and ceilings of the press plant, shown in the picture, are of glass, giving employes daylight working conditions except on the darkest days. At the same time, lines in the final assembly building are under wide skylights.

Action pictures include assembly work on De Soto's high-compression engine, press work on the new one-piece seamless steel top, welding operations in assembling the safety steel body, stamping of hoods, radiator shells and other sheet metal parts in the new press plant building, painting operations in the air-conditioned spray booths and assembling and testing operations along the final lines.

The film will be shown in De Soto dealers' showrooms.

New York City Orders 300 General Motors Heavy Duty Trucks

An order for 300 new heavy-duty General Motors trucks of the cab-over-engine design, valued at $1,221,000, has been received from the New York City Department of Sanitation, which will use the units for garbage disposal and snow removal.

This is the second big fleet order which New York has placed with General Motors truck division in recent months, delivery of 315 similar trucks having been completed only last March.

According to the terms of the new contract, 100 units are to be delivered within 150 days, an additional 100 units within 180 days and the final 100 within 210 days. The trucks will have a gross load of 37,000 pounds and will be equipped with special front-end attachments for push-type snow plows to be used for plowing and piling snow and for disposal of snow into the manholes of the city sewage system.

Boy Scout Troop In Air Transport Sponsored by T W A

The first troop of Boy Scouts in air transport, whose formation marks the entry of the Boy Scouts of America into the air industry, was held Wednesday, at Kansas City, Mo.

The troop is to be sponsored by Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., and will meet each week at the company's headquarters base at the Kansas City Airport. Placed in the explorer category of scouting, the troop will be known as TWA Explorer Troop No. 12. Such troops are organized for the benefit of older boys who desire to study some particular business or profession.

Through their affiliation with the air line, the boys will be enabled to study all ground school phases of aviation as applied by the air transport system. They will be under the immediate direction of Capt. John D. Graves, pilot and flight dispatcher for TWA, who has been appointed scoutmaster of the new "sky scout" troop. Capt. Graves might be considered a sort of unofficial member of the Tribe of Mic-o-Say. This is the Indian order within the Boy Scouts' organization, membership in which is prized highly by the boys.

The troop members will be 18 selected boys who have attained the rank of life scouts, and are between the ages of 16 and 21 years.

Ferd M. Brown Now Graham Sales Director For Southern U. S.

Ferd M. Brown has been appointed director of Graham sales in the southern part of the United States.

Brown had for some time held the position of district manager for Graham at Philadelphia. He has been with the Graham organization for four years and was formerly district manager at Chicago.

Brown will be responsible for Graham sales in Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Texas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Southern Indiana, Southern Illinois, half of Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

For the present, Brown will make his headquarters in Memphis.

Joseph E. Burger (at right), chairman of the Board of Managers of the South Side Y. M. C. A., presenting in behalf of a group of friends a new Chevrolet car to Harry ter Braak, who retired recently as executive secretary of the Industrial Commission of the "Y." The car, a de luxe town sedan, was presented to ter Braak by the group, with whom he has been associated in his 24 years of Y. M. C. A. work in St. Louis. It was delivered by the South Side Chevrolet Co., of which Burger is president.

Osage Auto Sales Appointed Dealer For Studebaker Cars

The Osage Auto Sales, 4012-14 South Broadway, has been appointed an authorized Studebaker dealer by Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc., distributer.

The firm consists of M. C. Paulette and Lou Julius. Paulette has been in the automobile business for 18 years and at one time was with the Tate Motor Co. as a salesman and later as a dealer.

Julius has been selling automobiles for the past 14 years in St. Louis and previously was a boxer.

The firm has on display a complete line of Studebaker cars and has installed parts for service.

Cadillac, La Salle Sales Increase in May

Cadillac-La Salle sales in the first 20 days of May topped the similar period in April, which was the heaviest retail business month in the 34-year history of the company's dealer organization.

According to Sales Manager D. E. Ahrens, dealers delivered 3108 cars through May 20, against 3055 in the same number of days in April.

Women Safe Drivers in Russia.

Forty-five women drivers of Moscow and Leningrad, Russia, recently completed a 6250-mile trip in 14 passenger automobiles without accident or breakdown.

Record Auto Travel Indicated by Requests To Conoco Bureau

The largest tourist season in history is predicted by E. Elliott, manager here for the Continental Oil Co.

"Early summer requests received by the Conoco Travel Bureau for touring information indicate that 1937 will surpass even last year's travel business," he said. "Naturally, all merchants will profit, but the Conoco dealers have an additional reason for optimism.

"Under Continental's new policy all of its products are sold through independent dealers, which means that every Conoco dealer either owns or leases his station, so is in business for himself.

"Furthermore, the Continental Oil Co. is using newspaper space to advertise the dealer's station as well as its own products. In this advertising, Conoco dealers are called 'mileage merchants' — and that is what they are."

O. W. Young Made Head of Manufacturing For Buick Division

O. W. Young has been appointed Buick general manufacturing manager, to succeed the late Charles T. Scannell.

Young advances to the head of all Buick manufacturing operations after three years as general superintendent and more than 30 years in the Buick organization, in which he started as a lathe hand.

Special 'Economy Equipment' Available For 1937 Plymouths

Special "economy equipment" said to be capable of fuel savings as high as 30 per cent is now available as optional equipment for all 1937 model Plymouth cars, the factory announces.

As offered by Plymouth, both for fleet operators and the general public, the special apparatus is in two groups, depending on the nature of the terrain where a car is to be used.

The so-called economy group No. 1 consists of a special carburetor, a special intake manifold and a rear axle gear ratio of 3.7 to 1. This group is said to effect an average economy increase of 15 to 20 per cent, and is available as production equipment on special order at no additional charge.

For use in flatter country, where a minimum of hill-climbing can be expected, economy group No. 2 includes all the features of group No. 1 plus a hardened steel throttle-stop and manifold heat-shields. With the No. 2 set of attachments, it is said, economy may be increased from 25 to 30 per cent. For this group the factory makes an additional charge of $3.75.

Fleet operators' experience with equipment of the new type was indicated in a recent report to the Society of Automotive Engineers.

"Our companies operate more than 900 vehicles equipped with such apparatus," said one public utility fleet operator, "and find it has done more to influence the economy of our fleet than any other item.

"The purpose in putting throttle stops on our cars was primarily to increase our gasoline mileage. This they did, to the extent of some 30 per cent. But that proved to be only the beginning. Records show that tires last 25 to 50 per cent longer, that we use less oil, that road failures and accidents have been practically eliminated and that maintenance, particularly on engnes, has been reduced."

Device for Checking Engine Balance Used In Chrysler Plants

After three years' development work, Chrysler engineers have a precision instrument for checking engine balance which is unique in the industry.

"Everyone is familiar with the disturbance experienced when critical periods of vibration occur at various speeds in the driving range," R. N. Janeway, research engineer, says.

"There are several possible causes of these vibration periods. First, there is the variation in power impulse which comes from successive firing of the different cylinders and is inherent in gasoline engine. Disturbance from this cause has been definitely eliminated from Chrysler cars by the use of the floating-power principle.

"A second cause of vibration lies in unbalance of reciprocating or rotating parts. The first step in eliminating such unbalance is adherence in production to close engineering specifications as to the weights of individual reciprocating parts and the balance of each rotating part.

"With all the care that is humanly possible in the balance of individual engine parts, there is still a possibility, remote to be sure, that the unbalance tolerances of the individual parts may line up so as to become cumulative and give an excessive resultant unbalance for the engine as a whole. It is to avoid the possibility of such engines going undetected into finished cars that the new balance-checking instrument was developed.

"By making possible for the first time the inspection of the overall balance of the operating engine, a continuous check is maintained on production, assuring a uniformly high standard of balance in all engines."

Auto Buyers Seeking Operating Economy, Willys President Says

"More than 90 per cent of all current purchases of new automobiles are based on economy," David R. Wilson, president of Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., maker of the Willys car, declares.

"Manufacturers throughout the country have contributed to this new measuring stick for the value of a motor car through their advertising and the sales tactics they are stressing with their retail organizations.

"A study of new and used car registrations, owner transfer records, and an analysis of retail salesmen's results, show how effectively the economy program has worked out.

"Virtually every advertisement for all manufacturers stresses the miles per gallon that can be obtained by the owner in average driving.

"This has been contributed to by numerous economy tests throughout the country, as well as by definite stipulations in leading automobile races of the amount of fuel the race driver is allowed to use to complete the race.

"On used car lots, as well as in new car salesrooms, the first question the buyer is likely to ask is, 'How much will it cost to run?'

"Willys car economy has been proved by the records of owners in all parts of the country. These show fuel mileages in many cases in excess of 35 miles to the gallon, with instances where better than 33 miles to the gallon have been steadily obtained in stop-and-go driving in congested city areas."

Lion as Pay for Bill, Bear in Auto Deal, Too Much for Dealers

At about the same time that a Packard distributer was accepting a live lion in full payment for an automobile repair bill, a Packard dealer was taking a live bear in trade on a Packard Twelve car. Both animals are now on public exhibition.

In Kalamazoo, Mich., Frank Cornish, was told by a man to whom he was trying to sell a Packard Twelve that he would take the car if Cornish would relieve him of ownership of a bear. Cornish agreed. The car was delivered and after several exciting hours a home was found for the animal in the Kalamazoo zoo.

Packard distributer, T. A. Bryson Sr., Savannah, Ga., was told by a circus follower that he couldn't pay the repair bill on his car with cash, but could meet the amount due with a young lion. Bryson had always wanted a lion for a pet, he said, so the deal was consummated. Followed several worried days for Bryson.

Bryson decided he must sell the animal. The first buyer hurried back with the lion before the ink on his check was dry. He said Lena, the animal actually was a lioness rather than a lion and was no fit household pet. While under the ownership of the next buyer Lena wrecked a night club, and again unwillingly Bryson owned a lioness. Lena now has a permanent home at a Daytona Beach, Fla., amusement park and Bryson's books show a $25 profit on the sale of one lioness.

New Device Takes Charge of Steering If Tire Blows Out

Before 500 distributers and representatives, the Bendix Products Corporation announced the introduction of three revolutionary safety automotive devices.

One is the Bendix "hydraulic hand," an automatic steering control designed to eliminate the hazards connected with blowouts and contact with uneven road surfaces at high speeds.

The Bendix "back-stop," a new device, prevents a car or truck from rolling either down hill or up hill at traffic stops, enabling a driver to keep the right foot free of the brakes for acceleration.

In a demonstration of the "hydraulic hand," two cars of vary-

Special 'Economy Equipment' Available For 1937 Plymouths

Special "economy equipment" said to be capable of fuel savings as high as 30 per cent is now available as optional equipment for all 1937 model Plymouth cars, the factory announces.

As offered by Plymouth, both for fleet operators and the general public, the special apparatus is in two groups, depending on the nature of the terrain where a car is to be used.

The so-called economy group No. 1 consists of a special carburetor, a special intake manifold and a rear axle gear ratio of 3.7 to 1. This group is said to effect an average economy increase of 15 to 20 per cent, and is available as production equipment on special order at no additional charge.

For use in flatter country, where a minimum of hill-climbing can be expected, economy group No. 2 includes all the features of group No. 1 plus a hardened steel throttle-stop and manifold heat-shields. With the No. 2 set of attachments, it is said, economy may be increased from 25 to 30 per cent. For this group the factory makes an additional charge of $3.75.

Fleet operators' experience with equipment of the new type was indicated in a recent report to the Society of Automotive Engineers.

"Our companies operate more than 900 vehicles equipped with such apparatus," said one public utility fleet operator, "and find it has done more to influence the economy of our fleet than any other item.

"The purpose in putting throttle stops on our cars was primarily to increase our gasoline mileage. This they did, to the extent of some 30 per cent. But that proved to be only the beginning. Records show that tires last 25 to 50 per cent longer, that we use less oil, that road failures and accidents have been practically eliminated and that maintenance, particularly on engnes, has been reduced."

Device for Checking Engine Balance Used In Chrysler Plants

After three years' development work, Chrysler engineers have a precision instrument for checking engine balance which is unique in the industry.

"Everyone is familiar with the disturbance experienced when critical periods of vibration occur at various speeds in the driving range," R. N. Janeway, research engineer, says.

"There are several possible causes of these vibration periods. First, there is the variation in power impulse which comes from successive firing of the different cylinders and is inherent in gasoline engine. Disturbance from this cause has been definitely eliminated from Chrysler cars by the use of the floating-power principle.

"A second cause of vibration lies in unbalance of reciprocating or rotating parts. The first step in eliminating such unbalance is adherence in production to close engineering specifications as to the weights of individual reciprocating parts and the balance of each rotating part.

"With all the care that is humanly possible in the balance of individual engine parts, there is still a possibility, remote to be sure, that the unbalance tolerances of the individual parts may line up so as to become cumulative and give an excessive resultant unbalance for the engine as a whole. It is to avoid the possibility of such engines going undetected into finished cars that the new balance-checking instrument was developed.

"By making possible for the first time the inspection of the overall balance of the operating engine, a continuous check is maintained on production, assuring a uniformly high standard of balance in all engines."

Auto Buyers Seeking Operating Economy, Willys President Says

"More than 90 per cent of all current purchases of new automobiles are based on economy," David R. Wilson, president of Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., maker of the Willys car, declares.

"Manufacturers throughout the country have contributed to this new measuring stick for the value of a motor car through their advertising and the sales tactics they are stressing with their retail organizations.

"A study of new and used car registrations, owner transfer records, and an analysis of retail salesmen's results, show how effectively the economy program has worked out.

"Virtually every advertisement for all manufacturers stresses the miles per gallon that can be obtained by the owner in average driving.

"This has been contributed to by numerous economy tests throughout the country, as well as by definite stipulations in leading automobile races of the amount of fuel the race driver is allowed to use to complete the race.

"On used car lots, as well as in new car salesrooms, the first question the buyer is likely to ask is, 'How much will it cost to run?'

"Willys car economy has been proved by the records of owners in all parts of the country. These show fuel mileages in many cases in excess of 35 miles to the gallon, with instances where better than 33 miles to the gallon have been steadily obtained in stop-and-go driving in congested city areas."

Lion as Pay for Bill, Bear in Auto Deal, Too Much for Dealers

At about the same time that a Packard distributer was accepting a live lion in full payment for an automobile repair bill, a Packard dealer was taking a live bear in trade on a Packard Twelve car. Both animals are now on public exhibition.

In Kalamazoo, Mich., Frank Cornish, was told by a man to whom he was trying to sell a Packard Twelve that he would take the car if Cornish would relieve him of ownership of a bear. Cornish agreed. The car was delivered and after several exciting hours a home was found for the animal in the Kalamazoo zoo.

New Device Takes Charge of Steering If Tire Blows Out

Before 500 distributers and representatives, the Bendix Products Corporation announced the introduction of three revolutionary safety automotive devices.

One is the Bendix "hydraulic hand," an automatic steering control designed to eliminate the hazards connected with blowouts and contact with uneven road surfaces at high speeds.

The Bendix "back-stop," a new device, prevents a car or truck from rolling either down hill or up hill at traffic stops, enabling a driver to keep the right foot free of the brakes for acceleration.

In a demonstration of the "hydraulic hand," two cars of varying weights raced down a street at 60 miles per hour. As a front tire on each was blown out by discharge of a shotgun, the driver raised his hands from the steering wheel. In both cases, the car maintained a straight course down the street, coming to an easy and safe stop.

The "hydraulic hand," is operated on a simple hydraulic principle and can be installed on any automobile at modest cost.

Auto Shock Absorbers Need Regular Checking and Careful Servicing

Service information and available parts and instruments for working on Gabriel shock absorbers have been added by F. S. Wiemeyer Co., Inc., to its Love-joy and Houdaille shock absorber service.

Careful servicing of shock absorbers is as essential as service for any other part of a car, F. S. Wiemeyer declares. An important part is played by shock absorbers in keeping wheels on the road, making steering control safe and easy and smoothing out the action of the springs for easy riding.

If neglected, shock absorbers gradually decrease in efficiency with consequent lessening of comfort and safety.

Shock absorbers today work on the hydraulic principle, and should be kept properly filled with the lubricant or oil designed for them. Too light oil in a shock absorber built for heavy oil, or vice versa, means sure destruction and replacement.

Because of their gland construction, the fluid in shock absorbers should be checked at regular intervals, and the glands should be repacked at least once a year. In fact, the shock absorbers should be attended to whenever the car is serviced.

Sedan Model Added by Chrysler to Its Custom Imperial Line

A five-passenger sedan in the Custom Imperial line has just been introduced by Chrysler. Heretofore this line has comprised but two body styles, the limousine and sedan-limousine.

The new car is identical in general specifications with the other Chrysler Custom Imperial models, having a wheelbase of 140 inches and an overall length of 223¼ inches. It has an eight-cylinder engine of 130 horsepower, and Chrysler automatic overdrive is standard equipment.

The body is by LeBaron, constructed entirely of steel and is featured by generous interior dimensions. The omission of the two auxiliary seats found in the limousine and sedan-limousine leaves the rear compartment unobstructed, with leg-room for the tallest man. The rear seat cushion is 52 inches wide and the front cushion 49½ inches.

Doors are so wide that comfortable entrance and exit are assured for even very large persons. The rear door is 37⅛ inches wide at the center and 25⅝ inches wide at the bottom.

A feature is the provision for carrying luggage inside as well as in the large trunk at the rear. The partition between front and rear compartments contains three compartments, two 16 inches wide and six inches deep for carrying small articles, and beneath these a receptable big enough to take a golf bag and clubs, or two average size Gladstone bags.

Sales Counselors Order Formed of Studebaker Salesmen

The Studebaker sales counselors' organization is made up of men and women who have sold more than 200 new Studebaker cars at retail.

Although the entire world-wide Studebaker selling organization has not been canvassed, there are already 496 sales counselors. These men and women, all in the American sales forces, have sold a total of 264,488 new Studebaker automobiles.

Forty-six of the 496 sales counselors have sold more than 1000 Studebakers at retail.

New Airplane Tire To Carry 15 Tons Designed by Goodrich

Giant airplane tires, each casing designed to carry 15 tons, are being manufactured by the B. F. Goodrich Company, Akron, O., for installation on the first of a fleet of 40 passenger super-transport airplanes now nearing completion in the factories of Douglas Aircraft Co., Inc., Santa Monica, Cal., according to S. B. Robertson, Goodrich, president.

The new tires, five feet five inches in diameter, the largest ever built for an American airplane, are two feet across at the base and weigh approximately 360 pounds each. The tube alone weighs 45 pounds.

Two of the big tires will cushion the landings and takeoffs of the 30-ton airplanes projected for use on major airlines.

WAR ADMI RECORD

SCENESHIFTER IS SECOND AND VAMOOSE RUNS THIRD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5. — War Admiral, the mightly little son of Man O' War, flashed a record-smasing display of speed today to capture the classic Belmont Stakes with ease and become the fourth three-year-old in thoroughbred history to wear the prized "triple crown."

Despite an injury to his right fore-quarter at the very start, where the odds-on favorite in the seven-horse field kicked himself and nearly went down, War Admiral spurted quickly to the front, kept full command all the way, and won off by himself like a true son of the renowned super-horse.

The sensational Samuel D. Riddle colt galloped home four good lengths in front of Maxwell Howard's Sceneshifter, with the long-shot Vamoose in third place, 10 lengths further back, and the highly-rated Pompoon a badly whipped sixth. Pompoon, which had chased War Admiral home in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness this spring, never was a contender.

Faster Than Man O'War.

Although under no pressure at any stage and not even touched once by Jockey Charley Kurtsingers' whip, War Admiral equalled the American record, clipped a large chunk off the Belmont Stakes mark, and, as a climax, knocked a fifth-second off his daddy's track record by stepping the mile and a half in 2:28 3-5.

War Admiral didn't touch the world record of 2:23, credited to a British horse at Newmarket in 1929, but the colt apparently had enough in reserve to have cracked the American standard if he had been extended.

The Riddle star carried 126 pounds, eight more than Man O'War did when the super-horse set the track mark of 2:28 4-5 in 1920. The former record for the Belmont Stakes, 2:29 1-5, was set by Peace Chance in 1934.

The listed American record which War Admiral equalled was made by Handy Mandy, carrying only 109 pounds, at Latonia, Ky., in 1927.

Super-Horse's Greatest Son.

A crowd of 35,000, one of the greatest in Belmont history acclaimed the three-year-old King as he proved beyond the slightest question he has the stamina to combine with his amazing speed for any distance or circumstances.

War Admiral went to the post the 9-to-10 choice but won like a 1-to-10 shot. The victory added $38,020 to the colt's rapidly mounting earnings which now total $144,620 for this season and $159,420 for two years of racing.

Riddle, 76-year-old Philadelphia sportsman whose colors were carried by Man O' War as well as the colt now conceded to be the super-horse's greatest son, personally received the August Belmont Memorial Cup in ceremonies following the race. The trophy was presented by Mrs. Belmont, widow of the donor.

It remained to be determined whether War Admiral's injury was severe enough to keep the colt out of training for any length of time or jeopardize his chances of going on to further triumphs in the East or Middle West.

Injured at Start of Race.

A trickle of blood showed on the right fore-quarter as War Admiral was led from the track. In turf parlance it was disclosed the colt had "grabbed" or to be more specific, kicked himself as his hind hoofs came in contact with the right fore-leg. Kurtsinger said the mishap occurred in the first few jumps from the stall-gate and that he was afraid, for a moment, War Admiral was going down.

Few onlookers, however, were aware anything had happened as the small field was sent away after much disturbance at the barrier. War Admiral was among the most fractious but was barely beaten on the getaway by Flying Scot and went to the front long before the field reached the first turn.

Flying Scot led the pursuit of the favorite around the first turn, then Sceneshifter, trained by the famous ex-rider, Earl Sande, took up the seemingly hopeless chase. On the long run down the back stretch, War Admiral never had less than four lengths' advantage over Sceneshifter, which gradually pulled away from the remaining five horses in the field.

SCENESHIFTER IS SECOND AND VAMOOSE RUNS THIRD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5. — War Admiral, the mightly little son of Man O' War, flashed a record-smasing display of speed today to capture the classic Belmont Stakes with ease and become the fourth three-year-old in thoroughbred history to wear the prized "triple crown."

Despite an injury to his right fore-quarter at the very start, where the odds-on favorite in the seven-horse field kicked himself and nearly went down, War Admiral spurted quickly to the front, kept full command all the way, and won off by himself like a true son of the renowned super-horse.

The sensational Samuel D. Riddle colt galloped home four good lengths in front of Maxwell Howard's Sceneshifter, with the long-shot Vamoose in third place, 10 lengths further back, and the highly-rated Pompoon a badly whipped sixth. Pompoon, which had chased War Admiral home in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness this spring, never was a contender.

Faster Than Man O'War.

Although under no pressure at any stage and not even touched once by Jockey Charley Kurtsingers' whip, War Admiral equalled the American record, clipped a large chunk off the Belmont Stakes mark, and, as a climax, knocked a fifth-second off his daddy's track record by stepping the mile and a half in 2:28 3-5.

War Admiral didn't touch the world record of 2:23, credited to a British horse at Newmarket in 1929, but the colt apparently had enough in reserve to have cracked the American standard if he had been extended.

The Riddle star carried 126 pounds, eight more than Man O'War did when the super-horse set the track mark of 2:28 4-5 in 1920. The former record for the Belmont Stakes, 2:29 1-5, was set by Peace Chance in 1934.

The listed American record which War Admiral equalled was made by Handy Mandy, carrying only 109 pounds, at Latonia, Ky., in 1927.

Super-Horse's Greatest Son.

A crowd of 35,000, one of the greatest in Belmont history acclaimed the three-year-old King as he proved beyond the slightest question he has the stamina to combine with his amazing speed for any distance or circumstances.

War Admiral went to the post the 9-to-10 choice but won like a 1-to-10 shot. The victory added $38,020 to the colt's rapidly mounting earnings which now total $144,620 for this season and $159,420 for two years of racing.

Riddle, 76-year-old Philadelphia sportsman whose colors were carried by Man O' War as well as the colt now conceded to be the super-horse's greatest son, personally received the August Belmont Memorial Cup in ceremonies following the race. The trophy was presented by Mrs. Belmont, widow of the donor.

It remained to be determined whether War Admiral's injury was severe enough to keep the colt out of training for any length of time or jeopardize his chances of going on to further triumphs in the East or Middle West.

Injured at Start of Race.

A trickle of blood showed on the right fore-quarter as War Admiral was led from the track. In turf parlance it was disclosed the colt had "grabbed" or to be more specific, kicked himself as his hind hoofs came in contact with the right fore-leg. Kurtsinger said the mishap occurred in the first few jumps from the stall-gate and that he was afraid, for a moment, War Admiral was going down.

Few onlookers, however, were aware anything had happened as the small field was sent away after much disturbance at the barrier. War Admiral was among the most fractious but was barely beaten on the getaway by Flying Scot and went to the front long before the field reached the first turn.

Flying Scot led the pursuit of the favorite around the first turn, then Sceneshifter, trained by the famous ex-rider, Earl Sande, took up the seemingly hopeless chase. SPORT SALAD

Another Recessional.

THE tumult and the shouting dies,
The scribes and pharisees are gone;
The case is closed, the public sighs,
But memory still lingers on.
Another of those verbal fights,
And no one holds the picture rights!

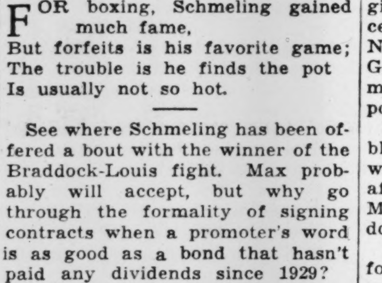
The principals were greatly roiled,
And getting in each other's hair;
The tempest in a teapot boiled
While verbal arrows filled the air.
Although no winner was announced
The victory was quite pronounced.

The wheat was winnowed from the chaff,
And everything was clear as mud.
The public got a belly laugh—
The shell turned out to be a dud.
The scribes and pharisees are gone
But memory still lingers on.

See where the Indians have been creeping up on the Yankees. It's an old Colonial custom.

John Henry Lewis gave Bob Olin 7½ per cent of his purse to make up a deficit accruing from their former meeting. That was mighty white of John Henry.

Remember the time when it was practically the unanimous opinion when occasion brought the question up that there was no one man bigger than baseball? Just goes to show that you never can tell.



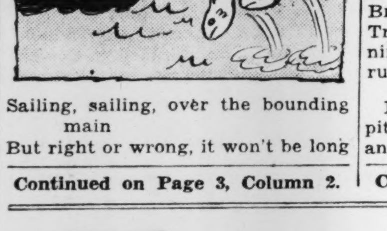
"Dietrich Praises Sox Teammates."

How about a kind word for the Browns without whose co-operation he could have worn out his knuckles hammering on the door to the Hall of Fame?

FOR boxing, Schmeling gained much fame,
But forfeits is his favorite game;
The trouble is he finds the pot
Is usually not so hot.

See where Schmeling has been offered a bout with the winner of the Braddock-Louis fight. Max probably will accept, but why go through the formality of signing contracts when a promoter's word is as good as a bond that hasn't paid any dividends since 1929?

Max is crossing back to Germany again. Max has been double-crossed so much that he is beginning to like it.



Sailing, sailing, over the bounding main
But right or wrong, it won't be long

LEFTY GROVE HOLDS BROWNS, RED SOX WIN OPENER, 11-4

By James M. Gould.

Our cellar resident Browns today will have two chances to do what they couldn't do in the series opener, yesterday — defeat the Boston Red Sox.

Today's double-header will see Hornsby's team still in there trying to win without pitching, or nearly so. Once in a while, the Rajah gets a fairly-well pitched game and, once in a while, the Browns win a game. They certainly hit well enough to win oftener.

Take yesterday's game as an illustration. The Browns got to the more or less renowned Lefty Grove for 13 hits. Ordinarily that would win. But, the Red Sox got to Hogsett, Koupal and Trotter for 20 safeties and that did win, 11 to 4.

Six Runs in First Inning.

Each team scored three in the first but, after the Red Sox had added a trio in the third, the Browns never were in the ballgame. Hogsett, who started and allowed nine hits in less than three frames, was charged with the defeat. Every Boston player hit safely and Grove was the only one not to score.

The first inning was large in every sense of the word. In it, there were eight hits, two double plays, two passes, a strikeout and a home run and out of it each team came with three runs. For Boston, Mills opened with the homer. Singles by Dallesandra, Cronin and Foxx followed. McNair then hit into a double play and Higgins singled.

Rebuttal by the Browns consisted of singles, by Davis, Vosmik and Bell, passes to West and Clift and a double play grounder hit by Knickerbocker which counted one of the three runs.

Hogsett Routed in Third.

Hogsett was all right in the second but was knocked out in the third. With one out, McNair, Higgins and Gaffke singled in succession, the Gaffke hit scoring McNair. Desautels popped out but Grove's pop-single to short left admitted Higgins and Gaffke. This pop hit was made off Koupal.

Koupal's wildness got him in trouble in the fifth. With one gone, he walked Gaffke and Desautels and, after Grove had flied out, Buster Mills drove them both over with a double.

The Browns were hitless in the fourth and fifth after making seven hits in the first three innings. In the sixth, Carey opened with a double but he was still on second when the inning was over. The Red Sox scored a ninth run in the seventh on infield hits by Gaffke and Desautels and Dallesandro's double to right. Three hits and a long fly were needed to Boston's tenth run in the eighth. After the Browns made one in their half, Trotter faced the Red Sox in the ninth and was nicked for a single run.

For today's double-header the pitchers will be Johnnie Marcum and Rube Walberg. Bonetti, Van

WRAY'S COLUMN

And the Winner—

IF there is anything more puzzling for the sports clairvoyant to forecast than a horse race, it is a championship boxing match. We've had better results in picking Kentucky Derby winners than in naming heavyweight title fight victors.

Two weeks from Tuesday another world championship fight will take place and once more the seers of the sports world will try to tell the world in advance whether Negro Joe Louis, fighting his first battle for the championship, will defeat Jimmy Braddock, who outsmarted Max Baer for the crown.

At this writing it appears that the majority of those who write about fights once more are going to stick out their necks and go heavily in for Louis as the winner. Odds ranging from 1 to 4 to 1 to 10 against the Negro are suggested as reflecting the relative merits of the men.

So many critics, fighters and betting men have gone out on the limb for Joe that if and when the bough breaks, rockaby baby! What a fall!

We, too, think Louis will win.

Phooey on the Odds.

BUT not at the prices quoted, thank you. It isn't in the books to figure that Braddock, who would be quoted at almost even money, if he were fighting Max Schmeling, has only one chance in five or more to beat the man whom Schmeling knocked out!

His age, 32, compared to Louis' youth, 23.

Absence from the ring for two years.

His lack of speed.

Brittle hands.

Eddie Held and Whitbread Reach District Golf Final

By W. J. McGoogan.

Two veterans of St. Louis district golf meets are to play for the championship in the 36-hole final of the twenty-second annual district tournament at Sunset Hill Country Club today when Elliott Whitbread, Westborough, meets Eddie Held, Algonquin.

Whitbread will be defending the title he won last year from Dick Bockenkamp, while Held will be after his first triumph in the event since 1924.

Should Whitbread win, he would retire the Ben Langan trophy from competition as he now has two legs on it from previous victories.

Start at 10 A. M.

The match—two 18-hole rounds, the first scheduled to start at 10 a. m., and the second at 2 p. m.—promises to be a tight battle between two experienced players, with Whitbread probably excelling from the tee. Held is noted for his pitch shots and putting.

Eddie has been living in New York for a number of years where he was one of the low handicap golfers in the Metropolitan district. Among his trophies he numbers the Canadian amateur championship, won a few seasons ago.

Whitbread won his way into the title round with a 4 and 3 victory over Jimmy Manion, Meadowbrook, yesterday in their 36-hole semifinal, while Held eliminated Hal Macoy Jr., Westborough, by an identical score in their penultimate contest.

Little to Choose.

There was little to choose between the work of Held and Whitbread in the semi-finals. Eddie had a 71 in the morning, one under par, and a 33 on the first nine in the afternoon, one under par. Held was one over par for the six remaining holes. Whitbread had a 72 in the morning, was one over par on the first nine in the afternoon and for the last six holes was one under par.

Manion and Whitbread played a tight match nearly all the way. They were square after the morning round during which neither had a lead of more than two holes. Ten holes in the 18 were halved.

In the afternoon they were just as close until they came to the twenty-eighth, where Manion kicked the ball around for a six and after that never seemed to regain his best form. He lost that hole,

Ambers-Armstrong Match for Title Is in Prospect

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, June 5.

A LIGHTWEIGHT championship fight between Lou Ambers, titleholder, and Henry Armstrong, sensational Negro boxer, is in prospect for Los Angeles.

Suey Welch, matchmaker of the Olympic Club, who flew to New York today, is prepared to offer Ambers $30,000 to defend his world's lightweight bauble against Al Jolson's human howitzer in a 10-round open air bout at Wrigley Field.

Before leaving for the East Welch expressed the belief that Ambers would sign up for the match, although the champion has been suffering from an injured hand.

CUNNINGHAM SETS NEW MARK FOR 3-4 MILE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5. — Glenn Cunningham of the New York Curb Exchange, created a new American record in winning the three-quarter mile run, feature event of the sixty-ninth annual spring games of the New York A. C., by a margin of 10 yards over his old sparring mate, Gene Venzke of the New York A. C.

The Kansan stepped off the distance on the historic track in 3 minutes 8-10 seconds to displace the American record of 3:01.4 created by Joseph Mangan in the same event two years ago.

Cunningham took the lead at the start and, except for a brief distance shortly after the start, led throughout the race. The third starter, William Ray of the New York Curb Exchange, was outdistanced.

McGee Hurls Shutout.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 5.—Bill McGee, recently released by the St. Louis Cardinals, hurled the Columbus Redbirds to a 4-0 victory over the Kansas City Blues here this afternoon. The Cardinals' "farm hand" limited the Blues to five hits.

By J. Roy Stockton
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Dizzy Dean was back at his old popping stand this afternoon, but he did his popping with a baseball and as he popped fast balls and curves into the glove of Brusie Ogrodowski, he baffled the Phillies of Jimmy Wilson and pitched the Cardinals to a 3 to 1 victory for his seventh triumph of the season.

Out of condition apparently from his three days of oratory in the hotel lobbies of New York and the upholstered offices of the National League, Dizzy wearied near the finish and rested on one knee several times for a few moments, before pitching to a particularly tough hitter. But he always was able to summon enough energy to carry through and he wound up with a brilliant ninth inning in which he retired the enemy on three pop flies, two of them foul.

Dizzy struck out seven men and held the Phillies to six hits as he indicated once more that his business was pitching, although he also has demonstrated recently and in very convincing fashion that he can do a pretty good job of putting his foot in his mouth at Father and Son dinners, or debating over dotted lines and signatures with the college-trained President Ford Frick of the National League.

Not All Smooth Sailing.

Dizzy was in trouble several times during the game, but what was a bit of trouble to a man who has spent much of more than five years in assorted barrels? Jerome Herman took a little extra breath, called on a bit more of the sinew in his flashing arm and what he had was more than enough.

Only once were the Phillies able to solve his delivery for a run. Herschel Martin, also a product of the Cardinal organization, singled to right with one out in the fourth and Dizzy issued his only pass of the game to Chuck Klein. Arnovich flied out, but Dolf Camilli singled to right and Herschel Martin crossed the plate.

By this time the Cardinals had scored three runs and so that lone tally didn't do any particular harm, except to deprive Jerome Herman of a shut-out.

Scharein's Costly Error.

Then in the fourth Medwick singled to left and after Mize flied out Bordagaray grounded to Scharein and both runners were safe when the shortstop tossed high to second. Durocher's single through the box scored Medwick and sent Bordagaray to third and the Frenchman

San Romani Sets 1500-Meter Mark In Valley A. A. U.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, June 5.—Topped by a brilliant 1500-meter performance by Archie San Romani, Emporia Teachers College ace, 11 records were established in the sixth annual Missouri Valley A. A. U. track and field meet here today. Pittsburgh Teachers retained the team title with 40 points, five more than were registered by the second-place Kansas State squad.

San Romani, running virtually without opposition, was timed in 3.50.3.

Taking a slice of the spotlight was Herschel Neil, the Maryville, Mo., State Teachers College one-man track team. Neil won the 100 and 200-meter runs in record times, won the hop, step, and jump, and placed second in the broad jump for a total of 18 points and individual scoring honors

Verne Sumner, a teammate of San Romani, set records in both the 110-meter and 200-meter hurdles with times of :14.6 and :23.4, respectively.

Harold Manning, former Wichita athlete and a perennial distance man, broke his own 5000-meter mark with a time of 15:30.2.

Other marks to fall were the broad jump, won by Kermit King of Pittsburgh with a leap of 24 feet 5¾ inches; the discus, in which Charles Socolofsky upset a Kansas State teammate, Paul Fanning, by winning with a 149-foot toss; the javelin, won by Asa Eagles of Ottawa University with a 201-foot 2-inch toss, and the mile relay, in which Kansas State was timed in 3:19.8.

San Romani was gunning for the American record of 3:48.8 in the 1500- meter event.

Herb Fash Transferred.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DECATUR, Ill., June 5.—Herbert Fash, former St. Louis University athlete, who has been playing baseball with the Decatur Three-I League Club since the season opened, has been sent to Daytona Beach of the Florida State League for more seasoning.

FOUR GOLFERS HELD AT 10 TO 1 FOR NATIONAL OPEN MEET

COOPER, PICARD, SAM SNEAD AND NELSON RATED EQUAL CHOICES

Many Other Outstanding Stars Entered for Event at Birmingham, Mich., Beginning Thursday.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—As the starting time draws near for the annual national open golf championship, to be played next Thursday, Friday and Saturday over the 7000-yard long course of the Oakland Hills Country Club, in Birmingham, Mich., the boys who like to invest an odd dollar or two are scanning the long-shot list with great intensity.

And you can't blame them. For there is strong precedent to back the belief—and the wager—that the favorites will have tumbled and a "dark horse" will have come through when the last putt has dropped late Saturday afternoon.

Go back, for a starter, no further than last year. Charging down the home stretch, hitting his drives long and true and his irons for the pin, came Light-Horse Harry Cooper, the dapper little Chicagoan, who has had more bitter disappointments on the links than any three other prominent professionals.

Light-Horse Harry's 72-hole score was 284, good enough to win any of the previous 39 championships. But it wasn't good enough that sun-drenched, thrill-packed afternoon at Baltusrol. For racing right behind him, with a last-round 67 for a record 282, came Tony Manero, then a veteran if somewhat obscure campaigner from North Carolina, the week the defeding champion from Salem, Mass.

Some More Long Shots.

In 1935, over the tricky layout at Oakmont, a valley course outside of Pittsburgh, stolid, methodical, stoutish Sam Parks Jr., local light only a few years off the University of Pittsburgh golf team, was the winner.

In 1934, at Merion, it was Olin Dutra, a big man, but a sick one, who upset all the last-day calculatinos. The year before, it had been Johnny Goodman, straight-haired, compactly-built amateur out of Omaha and only simon-pure, outside of Bobby Jones, to win the open since now gray-haired Chick Evans scored his amateur-open double in 1916.

Favorites Held at 10 to 1.

Those who like to pick flaws in any argument, however, may see a fallacy in the reasoning that, just because Johnny-come-latelys have won the last four times out, another will win this week. They may decide that it's time for the string to be snapped, for a favorite to come through.

In that case, Broadway's esteemed betting commissioner, Jack Doyle, will put up 10 to their 1 against Cooper, Snead, Nelson or Picard. He would, at least, according to the most recent line in his future book, in which those four were bracketed as co-favorites.

Cooper, his colleagues feel, is over-due. The man they credit with the best all-around game in the business, who came here from Scotland shortly after the war on the same boat with slugging Jimmy Thomson, wasn't in the field—he wasn't old enough—in 1924, when Cyril Walker captured the last open played at Oakland Hills.

Guldahl Failed by One Stroke.

Guldahl, the ambling Mid-Westerner, is another in the "I-wonder-why-he's-never-won" classification. The nation's low scorer for 1936 and winner of the Radix Trophy as a result, Ralph came closest in Goodman's winning year, failing by one stroke to catch the Omahan who owned his title to a second-round 66.

Snead, of course, is hailed as the best prospect in years—lad definitely of championship caliber. In the P. G. A., his first championship of any kind, the mile-driving, straight-shooting West Virginia pro went to the third round, then shot a 36-hole 136 to tie for first place in the sectional qualifying rounds for the open held throughout the country.

All four have one thing in common—they hit better-than-average tee shots and, when on their games, are uncommonly accurate. Any one of them may get hot and stay that way through the 170-man firing at Oakland Hills, but . . .

If you're still looking for a long shot, don't forget Al Watrous, the home club pro.

SOUTH SIDE PLACES THREE PLAYERS ON ALL-CATHOLIC NINE

South Side Catholic High School placed three men on the all-star Catholic League baseball team announced last night by Brother William Callahan of Central Catholic, East St. Louis, the secretary of the league.

MISS STEPHENS IN TWO RACES HERE SATURDAY

Helen Stephens, leading woman sprinter of the world, will compete in two handicap races here Saturday as the feature of the annual Sunday School track and field meet at Francis Field, Washington University. Miss Stephens' opposition will come from Elizabeth Wilde, Kansas City; Jane Santschi, Crystal City, and possibly one or two others.

Miss Wilde will probably furnish the most opposition, as she was once one of the leading sprinters in the country. She has been out of competition for three years.

In one of her races a number of years ago, she defeated Harriett Bland, members of the Olympic squad last year. Miss Bland is in charge of the open division of the church meet in which Miss Stephens will compete.

Handicaps have not been assigned yet for the races.

In addition to the 100 and 220-yard dashes in which Miss Stephens will compete, there will be a 50-yard dash, running broad jump and high jump.

Miss Stephens will also compete in the running broad jump. While the Fulton girl has competed several times in the standing broad jump, this will be the first time she has taken part in the running broad jump.

Other entries in that event will be Jessie Crain and Jane Santschi.

Loretta Murphy has entered the high jump.

William Reinhardt, in charge of the church meet proper, has received many more entries than usual for the event, with several churches competing for the first time. The largest group of athletes from a church entering the first time is from the First Congregational Church, which expects to make a serious bid to win the title from Tyler Place Presbyterian, last year's champion.

WAGNER ELECTRIC WINS INDUSTRIAL TRACK CARNIVAL

Wagner Electric's team won the Industrial track championship in the annual meet yesterday afternoon at Francis Field, Washington University. Wagner scored 57 points; Ralston 47, American Oak Leather 10, Monsanto nine and Hyde Park one.

One record was broken. Russell Miller of Monsanto leaped five feet 11⅜ inches to establish a new mark in the high jump, bettering the old record of five feet eight and one-half inches.

MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Wagner Electric; Ralston-Purina, second. Time, 9m. 16.8s.

100-YARD DASH—Won by Ball, American Oak Leather; Walker, Ralston-Purina, second; Sweeny, Wagner Electric, third. Time, 10.4s.

220-YARD DASH—Won by Ball, American Oak Leather; Whitson, Wagner Electric, second; Carneau, Ralston-Purina, third. Time, 23.9s.

440-YARD RELAY—Won by Wagner Electric; Monsanto, second; Ralston-Purina, third. Time, 49s.

220-YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Corneau, Ralston-Purina; W. Schoenbeck, Ralston-Purina, second; Mathews, Wagner Electric, third. Time, 28.7s.

880-YARD RELAY—Won by Wagner Electric; Ralston-Purina, second. Time, 1m. 42.6s.

HIGH JUMP—Won by R. Miller, Monsanto; Hamilton, Wagner Electric second; Weider Hyde Park third. Height 5 ft. 11⅜ (new record; old record 5 ft. 8½ inches).

SHOT PUT—Won by Richmond, Wagner Electric; W. Moise, Ralston-Purina, second; Stege, Wagner Electric, third. Distance, 40 ft. 2 ins.

JAVELIN THROW—Won by W. Miller, Wagner Electric; Kern, Ralston-Purina, second; Hille, Wagner Electric, third. Distance, 153 ft. 4 ins.

BROAD JUMP—Won by VanLoon, Wagner Electric; Wimberly, Ralston-Purina, second; Ranft, Wagner Electric, third. Distance 19 ft. 2¾ ins.

Casting Tourney Here.

The St. Louis Fly and Bait Casting Club will hold its fifth tournament of the season this morning at the casting platform in Forest Park starting at 9 o'clock with the three-eighths ounce bait accuracy.

which again squared the match, and lost the next when his drive was trapped.

Then, after they halved the next two holes, Elliott went two up with a birdie three at the thirtieth where he knocked his drive to the apron of the 266-yard green and got down in two more. They halved the thirty-first and Whitbread ran out the match by winning the next two holes with par fours.

Held Off to Good Start.

Held opened up a wide margin on Macoy in the morning, going three up on the first nine with a 34. He increased his lead to seven up when they had finished the fourteenth, then suddenly his game slipped while Macoy showed a flash of real form, winning the four remaining holes, and was only three down. During the last four, Macoy had two birdies and two pars to make his total for the first 18, 74 against Held's 71.

In the afternoon Eddie was again right on the first nine, shooting a 33, one under par to Macoy's 36. Held never lost a hole in this stretch and increased his lead to six up winning the twenty-second with a par three to Macoy's four when Hal found a trap from the tee. Eddie took the twenty-fourth with another par three and the twenty-seventh with a par four.

They halved the twenty-eighth with birdie fours, then Eddie three-putted the twenty-ninth to reduce his lead to five up. He pulled his drive at the thirtieth but stuck a pitch eight feet from the pin to gain a half with a birdie three. Macoy won the thirty-first with a par three when Held pitched over the green and took a four. They halved the thirty-second with fives and the thirty-third with par fours.

Held was runnerup in two district tournaments in addition to the one victory he scored at Sunset in 1924. Whitbread has never met Held in a district match.

Bob Richardson pulled a real upset in the championship consolation when he defeated Frank Bredall, Crystal Lake, 2 and 1.

Scottish Pair Share Lead in Best Ball Golf

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., June 5.—Eighty-two birdies and five eagles trickled into the cups today as Tommy Armour, the "Silver Scot," and his long-driving Scottish partner, Jimmy Thomson, shot themselves from nowhere into a tie for the lead in the Inverness best-ball match play tourney which ends Sunday.

Every hole was a birdie's nest, not one being able to baffle the 16 top-notch professionale in the battle for the $4825 in prize money.

Perched alongside Armour and Thomson at the peak were Ralph Guldahl and Sam Snead, the winter tourney sensations, who won a pair of matches today as the two Scotchmen won one and lost one.

With two matches coming up tomorrow, the scrambled standing tonight was:

Armour-Thomson, plus 5; Guldahl-Snead, plus 5; Paul Runyan-Ky Laffoon, plus 3; Smith-Cooper, plus 3; Denny Shute-Lawson Little, minus 1; Henry Picard-Johnny Revolta, minus 2; Ray Mangrum-Jimmy Hines, minus 6; and Olin Dutra-Gene Sarazen, minus 7.

FIRST PLACE AT STAKE IN TROLLEY LEAGUE

Today's schedule in Missouri-Illinois Trolley League will bring together Edgemont and J. S. & S. at State Street Park in East St. Louis while Hufschmidts of East St. Louis will be entertained by Maryland Heights on latter's grounds. At St. Charles the Browns are down to face Alpen Braus of Madison.

With Edgemont and Maryland Heights tied for first place with three victories and two losses both teams will be up against stiff opposition to retain their deadlock.

Kansas City Man Wins His Third Trapshoot Title

Russell W. Elliott of Kansas City won his third Missouri State trapshoot championship when he defeated Oscar B. Franz of St. Louis in the singles shoot-off yesterday afternoon at the St. Louis Skeet and Gun Club on Highway 66, three miles west of Denny road.

The sharpshooters had finished the regular round tied at 197. Then Elliott shot the 25 targets in the shoot-off, while Franz missed one, the third.

Friday, the first day of the tourney, Elliott won the doubles and the Class AA championship.

Mrs. Lela Hall of Strasburg, Mo., tied for third in the singles with 196. She is the Grand American women's trapshoot champion and her score won the Missouri State women's title yesterday for the seventh time. Tied with her was Charles Ehler of Slater, Mo., also with 196. Mrs. Russell Elliott, runner-up in the women's division had 176.

Wilbur Fineup of St. Louis won the junior championship with a 96 score. Paul Trower of Kansas City was second with 87.

About 70 shooters competed. The tournament will be concluded today.

SARA GUTH TO DEFEND TITLE; 93 TO PLAY IN DISTRICT GOLF

Ninety-three women golfers will tee off at the Normandie Golf Club tomorrow morning in the qualifying round of the St. Louis District Women's Championship. Thirty-two players will qualify for the title fight and all hope that the luck of the draw will not place them in Defending Champion Sara Guth's bracket——because it's still "the field" vs. Miss Guth.

Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr., who first won the title in 1924 and then repeated four times, will be back to start again where she left off in 1932. Mrs. I. S. Hynes, winner in 1929 also is entered, but Mrs. Rossmore Kahn, 1933 champion, will not compete.

It might be a toss-up for some people as to whether they would play in the tournament or not if they were Sara—she can either play or get her diploma from Washington U., but not both. However, it's no problem for Sara — "the diploma can go hang." Matriculating exercises take place at the university Tuesday morning at the same time as the first round matches.

Mrs. J. L. Bauman, another Algonquin star, who reached the semifinal in the Missouri State tourney last year is entered and is expected to give an account of herself. Georgia Dexheimer, young Glen Echo golfer, who spent the winter in the South improving her game is another of the "hopes."

Miss Guth automatically qualified, but will play in the round as a member of the Algonquin team. Mrs. G. A. Bedel and Mrs. Carl Daniels, both regarded as consistent golfers, are other members of the Algonquin team which has captured the team championship for the past three years.

The Normandie course should provide more advantage than ever for Miss Guth who continually outdrives all rivals from 20 to 100 yards.

Mrs. J L. Bauman, of Algonquin, recently won a three-day medal play competition with scores of 83-83-83.

RANKIN, OLYMPIC VETERAN, WINS A. A. U. 20-KILOMETER RUN

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, N. Y., June 5.—"Scotty" Rankin, veteran Olympic and long distance runner from Preston, Ont., added a third title to his list today by winning the National A. A. U. 20-kilometer run in blistering heat and against a field of ace performers.

He already held the national 15-kilometer championship and the Canadian 10-mile title.

Rankin grabbed a lead at the start and was never headed in the field of 30 as he ran from Canton to Morley and return, a distance of approximately 12 and one-half miles.

Behind him throughout and a challenger for part of the race was Jean Berthelot, Millrose A. C. runner and 1936 titleholder.

Rankin's time was one hour, 11 minutes and three seconds and Berthelot's one hour, 11 minutes and 16 seconds. Rankin's time was almost five minutes slower than the record.

WRAY'S COLUMN

You'll have to take laughing gas to laugh that off.

On the Other Mitt—

WHY do we consider that Braddock has an outside chance, then? For these reasons:

He has unquestioned courage.

He has a level head and good ring generalship.

He has a good defensive left hand.

He has never been stopped, although a badly cut eye caused one bout to be stopped.

He fights a style calculated to give Louis most trouble.

"Don't underestimate Braddock," Referee Walter Heisner told this writer. "His age and lack of fighting is against him. But he is one wise old head. He never wastes a motion. He is very hard to hit solidly. He can take a punch and he can hit hard with that right, if he doesn't hurt it, as he did in the Stillman fight.

"At 10 rounds he would be a good risk, for he can out-think the Negro. At 15 rounds, youth plus superior speed and power in punching, give Louis the advantage."

It Might Be Terrible.

IT could be a very weird and a very bad fight. Louis is a counter fighter. Braddock undoubtedly will also take the defensive. When two counter fighters get together the result is a loud snore from the spectators.

If Louis should take the aggressive he will employ a fighting style in which he will be at his worst. Let's hope Joe does as his manager promised — that is, carry the fight to Braddock. Then we'll see real fireworks.

This Dizzy World.

THE aftermath of the Dizzy Dean-Ford Frick comedy sketch has quadrupled fan mail for this writer. Almost by acclamation correspondents favored the pitcher over the president, in the controversy.

There is no doubt that Dizzy gets under the hides of baseball leaders; that he makes unfounded accusations; and that he conducts himself at times in a most aggravating manner to club and league officials.

And perhaps he should have been disciplined. But it's difficult to suspend or punish a player who fattens the box office and whom the fans cry for, even though they reserve their own right to jeer him.

President Frick's only error in the matter, it seems, was in trying to put Dizzy on the griddle in public. A conversation behind closed doors, without any fanfare of trumpets or denunciatory blasts, might have had a helpful effect.

But even so, we doubt it. Accusing a player of words and actions "detrimental to the league and to baseball" develops a resounding phrase; but when it comes to pointing out what is detrimental about the man who brings more money into the box office than any other player, the man who has helped pitch a club into a world championship and the man who led the league in pitching for two years, even President Frick might find it difficult to make a satisfactory case before a Judge and jury.

Dizzy, perhaps, should remember that popular approval lasts only as long as the pitching arm.

When Old Diz can't win his 20 or more games a year, when he has to take his beatings, then, if he looks to the tribune for mercy he will see only thumbs down. Fans will remember then everything detrimental about him that they have forgotten today.

Challenge by Louis for Title Fight, if He Wins, Accepted by Schmeling

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—If Joe Louis beats James J. Braddock for the world's heavyweight boxing title in Chicago June 22, the Bomber will make his first title defense against Max Schmeling here in September.

This was decided late today when the Schmeling board of strategy accepted a challenge signed by Louis and Julian Black, one of his managers, received a few hours before Max sailed on the liner Hamburg.

Louis said that if he beats Braddock he stands ready to meet Schmeling in a 15-round battle with the title involved. The only stipulations are the bout must be held in the United States in September of this year, with Mike Jacobs as the promoter.

Jacobs, who plans to stage the bout either in the Yankee Stadium or the Polo Grounds, said Max held out for and was promised 30 per cent of the net gate. Louis has agreed to work for a similar amount.

This is unusual since the champion usually insists on 42½ per cent, with the challenger drawing down 12½.

If Braddock retains his title in Chicago, Jacobs plans to try to pit him against Max. He looks for more trouble here since Braddock would be likely to insist on his 42½ per cent and Schmeling would not fight again for the challenger's end.

As he pushed off aboard the Hamburg with Machon, Schmeling revealed he has other irons busy in the fistic fires.

Instead of going straight to Germany, he'll drop off the ship at Southampton and go to London for the Tommy Farr-Walter Neusel match June 15.

GRAND BEACH, Mich., June 5.—Heavyweight Champion Jim Braddock started celebrating today what he says will be the happiest birthday anniversary of his life. He will be 31 years old Monday.

The titleholder was in a happy mood today when he cut loose against five sparmates, using his left almost continually. After the drill Braddock weighed 197 pounds, dropping exactly four during the workout. He plans to weigh between 194 and 196 for the Louis battle and next week ease off in his training program.

The record books say the champion will be 32 Monday. Manager Gould said when Braddock was 20 he intentionally added a year to his age to permit him to fight 10-round bouts in New York, which requires boxers going that distance to be 21 or more.

By the Associated Press.

KENOSHA, Wis., June 5.—Today, 17 days before his date with James J. Braddock at Comiskey Park in Chicago, Joe Louis demonstrated: 1—He still can be hit with a right hand; 2—Nothing has happened to his own punching power when he wants to use it.

In the tenth boxing drill of his schedule of 19 before he levels his blast at Braddock's world championship, the Brown Bomber, appearing calm all the time, took another lesson against the punch with which Max Schmeling slowed up his spectacular march through the heavyweights a year ago.

He was clipped three times with right hand punches, twice by Salvatore Ruggirello, tall Italian heavyweight from New York who can punch, and once by Leonard Dixon, spindley-legged Negro from Philadelphia, whose punching power is not so pronounced. Both paid later, although neither was knocked down.

TRIPLE A CLUB OPEN TENNIS MEET SCHEDULE TODAY

Play in the first annual Triple A Club open tennis championship is scheduled to get under way at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Wet courts prevented playing of the first round matches yesterday.

Fifty-three players will compete in the men's singles.

War Admiral much the best. He was very fractious at the stalls and caused a long delay. He finally got away in full stride and hustled into lead going into first quarter-mile, then was placed under restraint. He just galloped along, saving ground at every stride, drew away in run through stretch and won galloping. Sceneshifter began to move up in run down backstretch, moved into second place entering far turn, then set sail for the leader, but was no match for the winner. Vamoose, away well, was hustled into a contending position and was hard ridden the last furlong. Brooklyn broke slow and trailed far back, made up some ground in last half mile but never threatened. Flying Scot attempted to race along with the winner but stopped badly at the end of six furlongs. Pompoon ran a very poor race. He got away well but failed to show any speed and was a distant trailer most of the way. Melodist never a contender and was badly outrun.

HORSES STONED BY FANS WHEN LONG SHOT WINS RERUN OF RACE

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, June 5.—Police drove a crowd of about 350 irate racing fans off the racing strip at Thorncliffe Park today after they had delayed the start of the third race for more than two hours.

The riotous scene developed after the second race had been ordered re-run as the result of the absence from the track of one of the entries. Some members of the crowd held tickets on the original winner of the race. They threw stones and pieces of dirt at the horses which came out to run in the third race, driving them back to the barns, and picketed betting booths. No property damage was done.

After a long delay a detail of 50 special police was sworn in and pushed the protesting mob from the track while the majority of the 350 spectators looked on from the stands. Fist fights between police and members of the crowd developed before the track finally was cleared.

A field of 11 had romped six furlongs for a $700 purse in the second race, a claiming affair for three-year-olds and up. Vanished led the field and there wah a photo for place and show. The official starter, however, claimed the starting flag had not been dropped because he knew one horse was missing.

The event was ordered re-run and Lassies Mary, the missing horse, came to the post fresh and ready to go and won from a field of tired thoroughbreds. Lassies Mary paid $160.45 for a $2 ticket to win and produced a dily double worth $3542.25. Lassies Mary paid $1.0270 for place and $28.05 for show.

Alice Marble Loses in Third English Final

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 5.—Alice Marble still is looking for her first British tennis tournament victory.

For the third successive week, the comely San Francisco girl, who holds the United States singles championship, was beaten in the final round of an English tournament today.

She bowed this time to the hard-hitting Polish girl, Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, who recently conquered Helen Jacobs, former American champion and current Wimbledon titleholder, in the French hard court tournament.

Meeting in the final round of the St. George Hill tournament at Weybridge, Mlle. Jedrzejowska spotted Miss Marble the first set and then went on to win, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3. Last Saturday Miss Marble was beaten by Anita Lizana in the final round of the Middlesex tourney and the Saturday before that Freda James took the American champion's measure in the finals of the Surrey tournament.

Miss Marble's defeat by Mlle. Jedrzejowska came after Charles Harris of West Palm Beach, Fla., had bowed to Eric Filby of Great Britain, 6—4, 7—5, in the men's singles, but America won both doubles finals.

HANDICAP BICYCLE ROAD RACE TODAY

The Century Road Club of America, Missouri Division, holds its twelfth annual eight and one-half mile handicap bicycle road race this morning, starting at 9 o'clock. The event will be held over the Natural Bridge road, starting at Florissant road and ending at St. Charles Rock road.

WAR ADMIRAL EQUALS AMERICAN RECORD IN WINNING BELMONT RACE

shifter and Vamoose, a 60 to 1 shot, were E. R. Bradley's Brooklyn, Flying Scot, Pompoon and Melodist.

Brooklyn, making his first start since being declared out of the Kentucky Derby, broke slowly and never threatened. The biggest disappointment, however, was Pompoon. Jerome H. Louchheim's beautiful colt simply didn't run a lick, failing to show any real speed and finishing fully 22 lengths behind the winner.

The fractional times give a graphic idea of War Admiral's speed. The victor was clocked at the half in 48 seconds, the mile in 1:37 and the mile and a quarter in 2:02 1-5. The latter time, equivalent to the Derby distance, was a full second faster than what War Admiral did to win the first of his three big races, at Churchill Downs.

After the race Kurtsinger, who has ridden War Admiral to all his 1937 triumphs, said, "after that mishap at the start, which had me a bit worried, I never had any doubt about the outcome. All I had to do was sit there and let the colt do the rest. He's in a class by himself."

DODGERS SCORE FOUR IN NINTH, BEAT REDS, 5-4

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, June 5.—The Dodgers were easy for Paul Derringer for eight innings today, but staged a four-run rally in the ninth to top the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 4.

Derringer handcuffed them with four hits and one run for eight frames. Opening the ninth, Heinie Manush singled, to be followed by a double by Babe Phelps, and triple by Cookie Lavagetto.

Gene Schott came in and was greeted by a single by Woody English, and after Schott was replaced with Lee Grissom, who promptly loaded the bases with two walks, Joe Stripp clouted a single to send in the winning run.

Umpire Larry Goetz, riled at derogatory remarks from the Brooklyn bench on his ball-and-strike decisions at the plate, banished five Dodger players from the game in the fourth.

WHITE SOX DEFEAT ATHLETICS, 2-0, FOR SIXTH VICTORY IN ROW

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Making hsi first start at Comiskey Park since last season, Johnny Whitehead, recently reinstated White Sox pitching ace, hurled the Chicagoans to their sixth straight victory today by shutting out the Philadelphia Athletics, 2 to 0.

A homer by Zeke Bonura, the big first baseman's eighth of the year, cracked George Caster's scoreless duel with Whitehead at the start of the sixth.

It was the Sox' first victory over the fading Athletics in five tries this year.

Whitehead, in recording his third triumph, pitched himself out of a ninth inning bases-filled jam.

EN MEET

HORSES STONED BY FANS WHEN LONG SHOT WINS RERUN OF RACE

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, June 5.—Police drove a crowd of about 350 irate racing fans off the racing strip at Thorncliffe Park today after they had delayed the start of the third race for more than two hours.

The riotous scene developed after the second race had been ordered re-run as the result of the absence from the track of one of the entries. Some members of the crowd held tickets on the original winner of the race. They threw stones and pieces of dirt at the horses which came out to run in the third race, driving them back to the barns, and picketed betting booths. No property damage was done.

After a long delay a detail of 50 special police was sworn in and pushed the protesting mob from the track while the majority of the 350 spectators looked on from the stands. Fist fights between police and members of the crowd developed before the track finally was cleared.

A field of 11 had romped six furlongs for a $700 purse in the second race, a claiming affair for three-year-olds and up. Vanished led the field and there wah a photo for place and show. The official starter, however, claimed the starting flag had not been dropped because he knew one horse was missing.

Till Max comes back again.

Dizzy Dean orally admitted that he was warned about the balk, but he balked at signing a statement to that effect. One good balk deserves another.

The Cincinnati club already has applications for 2000 boxes and reserved seats for the 1938 opening game. Might it not be a good idea to sell life memberships?

Paul Dean, silent partner in the firm of Me and Paul, is giving his pitching arm a daily workout at Sportsman's Park and reports progress.

scored after Ogrodowski's fly to Arnovich.

That was the extent of the Cardinal attack, as far as runs were concerned, but three were one more than Dizzy needed.

About 6000 persons attended, many of them lured by the fact that baseball's big bad boy was going to make his first appearance since his three-day suspension for talking out of turn. They came to cheer and to boo, and they did a little of each. But at the finish, as he mowed down Arnovich, Camilli and Grace with a burning fast ball, they had to cheer a great pitcher.

No Joyous Celebration.

Dizzy's comrades took the game in stride. As Ogrodowski clutched the final foul fly that ended the game, Jimmy Brown cut across the diamond and shook Dizzy by the hand. But the other Cardinals merely gathered up the tools of their trade and sauntered for the clubhouse. There was none of the joy and jubilation that greeted Bob Weiland, for instance, when he beat the Pirates at St. Louis recently, or when he stopped the Dodgers in the last game at Brooklyn. Just another Dizzy Dean game—and what if it happened to be a victory? He ought to win them all anyhow.

RED BIRD NOTES

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.

LON WARNEKE and Ray Harrel will pitch against the Phils in tomorrow's doubleheader, with Bucky Walters and Hugh Mulcahy due for Philadelphia.

Terry Moore was on the bench with a knee injury and Pepper Martin shifted to center field, with Don Padgett playing right.

In the dugout before the game somebody asked Dizzy to autograph a baseball. Dizzy looked at the ball and then handed it back with a grin. "No, sir," he objected. "That's got Ford Frick's signature on it and I ain't signin' nothin' like that."

Scharein's single and Klein's double with one out in the sixth put Dizzy in a mild jam, but he protected his lead by fanning Arnovich and then, after a conference over the advisability of walking Camilli, he pitched to the first baseman and retired him on a long fly to center. If that ball had been hit to right it would have tied the score.

Frisch had intended to use Lon Warneke today and save Dean for Sunday but upon arrival in Philadelphia he learned that Dean had been advertised as the Cards' pitcher. He ascribed the announcement to a misunderstanding but went ahead and used Dizzy in order that Philly fans would not be disappointed. They certainly were not.

Atta and Thomas are among the St. Louis possibilities.

Every one of the five Boston first-inning hits was a line drive. They went to all fields. Mr. Grove didn't have a very happy first inning, either.

Grove, each year, looks less like the old "Mose" who, as one of the Athletics, was one of the greatest southpaws in the business. He's a lot easier to hit now and turns on that fast one only at infrequent intervals.

"Davis singled off Umpire Owens." That's true; it happened in the second inning. "Brick" got in the way of a high hopper.

Three-quarters of the Boston infield came from the Athletics—Foxx, at first, McNair at second and Higgins at third.

The attendance, including ladies, girls and boys was 2488. Just 1313 paid to see the game.

UNIVERSITY CITY HIGH GOLFERS WIN TOURNEY

University City High School's golf team won all 10 matches in a tournament in which six schools competed. The Indians defeated the Kirkwood squad, 403 to 410, in the final match of the event.

Other schools which competed were Webster Groves, Kirkwood, Maplewood, Clayton and Normandy. Only 14 holes were played in each match of the double round robin series.

Chris Vlemmas led the Indians with a 57 for the 14 holes. The other scores: Asckenasy 70, Smith 64, Mann 67, Spilker 68, Thomas 77. Maird and Waxon tied for low on the Kirkwood squad, each getting 67.

HUDLIN WINS SIXTH VICTORY AS INDIANS BEAT SENATORS, 8 TO 6

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, June 5.—Willis Hudlin registered his sixth straight victory as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Washington Senators, 8 to 6, in the opener of their four-game series today.

It was the Indians' third straight victory and kept them in second place, only two games behind the New York Yankees.

Hudlin tired in the eighth and was relieved by Joe Heving after the Senators scored three runs.

Earl Averill's fifth home run of the season led the Tribe's 12-hit attack on Carl Fischer and Joe Cascarella. Lewis of the Senators hit a home run off Hudlin in the first inning.

SUHR'S CONSECUTIVE GAME STREAK ENDED; HIS MOTHER IS DEAD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Gus Suhr, captain and star first baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, remained out of today's game with the Giants, because his mother died last night. He thereby broke his consecutive game playing streak at 822.

Suhr, whose place at the initial sack was taken by Paul Waner, announced that he will remain with the team, but will stay out of the lineup until after the funeral of his mother in California.

Fishing Conditions.

General fishing conditions in Missouri at the present time may be summed up as follows: Excellent conditions were reported yesterday in the James and Finley Rivers (Webster County), where live baits and flies are in great demand; Beaver, Bryant and North Fork (Douglas); Roaring River (Barry) is A1 for trout which may be taken on flies and cut bait; Osage River (Miller) at Lake Ozark is excellent for crappie; the upper Black River (Reynolds) and Macon City, Fayette and Moberly Lakes all provide excellent general fishing. The Gravois arm of the Lake of the Ozarks in Morgan County is up, but the water is clearing rapidly and is in excellent condition for trolling. Lake of the Ozarks in Miller and Camden Counties is murky and the best lures are live baits. The Glaize and Niangua arms are slightly murky at present, but are rapidly clearing in the coves.

Good fishing is reported in the Gasconade and Big Piney (Phelps and Pulaski); the Meramec (Franklin and Crawford); Bennett Spring (Dallas and Laclede), for trout; Squaw Creek Preserve (Holt) near Mound City, where permits are issued without cost by the superintendent, five miles south of Mound City; the Current River (Shannon, Ripley and Carter Counties) is also reported no better than "good."

Fair fishing is in order along the Gasconade, Osage Fork and Beaver Creek in Laclede and Wright Counties.

Wardens on Watch.

A series of drives on illegal netting just concluded by State Game Wardens, resulted in the confiscation of about 100 nets and traps, according to Wilbur C. Buford, State Game and Fish Commissioner.

Several hundred miles of fishing streams were covered in making the raids on illegal netters and included Osage, Chariton, Cuivre River Slough in St. Charles County and other tributaries of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers.

The nets, traps and seines were burned by the Wardens to prevent the possibility of their return to the streams. Thousands of pounds of game fish also were confiscated and returned to the waters.

Final Warning.

Despite frequent warnings, Game Wardens report that fishermen still are being caught violating regulations.

Here are the facts for fishermen as released by the Bureau of Public Information of the State:

At present game fish now eligible are bass, crappie, goggle-eye, jack salmon and trout. Creel limits are: Jack salmon, 5; bass, trout and channel cat, 10; crappie and white perch, 15; goggle-eye, 20. No more than twenty-five (25) of all species of game fish may be taken in one day.

It is unlawful to take or kill fish of the bass family under 8 inches in length (this includes large and small mouth black bass, trout and white bass); jack salmon and channel cat (latter is in a closed season), 12 inches; drum, 9 inches; crappie and calico bass, 6 inches; goggle-eye, 5 inches.

Licenses may be obtained from County Clerks and their authorized agents or from the State Game and Fish Department. Fishing (state), $1; non-resident, $3; 15-day trip license for non-residents, $1; resident hunting and fishing, $2.50. You are not required to procure a license so long as you fish within the limits of your home county.

Schulte Struck By Pitched Ball, Knocked Out

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5. — Fred Schulte, Pittsburgh Pirates' utility outfielder, was injured by a pitched ball in today's game with the Giants, but physicians said tonight X-ray examinations showed no sign of a fracture.

One of Rookie Cliff Melton's slants hit Schulte high on the head and knocked him unconscious in the eighth inning of the game. He was carried to the clubhouse, where he regained consciousness, and afterward was taken to Polyclinic Hospital.

Cochrane Starts for Detroit.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5. — Mickey Cochrane, injured manager of the Detroit Tigers, started home tonight to complete his recovery from a triple skull fracture in a Detroit hospital.

The star backstop, who suffered the fracture when "beaned" by Irvin (Bump) Hadley of the Yankees, May 25, was taken from St. Elizabeth's Hospital here and placed in a special car.

Giants Defeat Pirates, 7-5

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The Giants all but overtook the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League pennant chase today by whipping the league leaders, 7 to 5, in the opening game of their current series. Arky Vaughan hit a homer for the Bucs.

Pie Traynor, Pirate manager, made his first playing appearance in two years as a pinch-runner for Fred Schulte who was felled by a pitched ball in the eighth.

COUNT MORSE CAPTURES FOURTH STRAIGHT STAKE RACE

CALUMET COLT IS WINNER BY LENGTH OVER WOODLANDER

Victory at Washington Park Worth $4220 to Owner Warren Wright—Cardaronne Third.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Count Morse won his fourth consecutive stake start today by taking the Great Western Handicap at Washington Park before 10,000 spectators. The four-year-old colt, owned by Warren Wright of Chicago, scored by one length over Butsey Hernandez's Woodlander, with Cardarrone third.

Eight started the mile and a quarter event, with Count Morse's victory worth $4220 net to the Calumet Farm stable. Count Morse raced the distance over a muddy track in 2:09 1-5 with 126 pounds up. Previously he had captured the Ben Ali Handicap at Keeneland, the Clark Handicap at Churchill Downs and the Blue and Gray Memorial at Washington Park.

English Eleven Defeats Detroit

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., June 5.—Charlton Athletic, runners-up for the English first division soccer league championship, won the third game of their North American tour by defeating a picked Michigan team, 4 to 0, before 3000 spectators here today.

Although the Englishmen were decidedly superior, they failed to show the expert ball control and short passing displayed by former touring teams from Great Britain. Thompson Ferrens, Michigan's red-headed fullback, was easily the best player on the field.

The tourists scored once in the first half when George Stevenson, one of their veteran players, beat Goalie Hans Zimmerman with a hard drive. Fred Ford, Charlton halfback, almost lifted the Michigan goalie off his feet with another hard shot, but Zimmerman cleared it. At half time the tourists were leading, 1 to 0.

With the wind at their backs for the second half, the Michigan forwards were expected to score, but Charlton's defense held. Leslie Boulter, young Welsh forward, scored the first goal of the half. Harold Hobbis, Charlton's best goal scorer, obtained the third, and Boulter completely deceived the Michigan defense on a tricky run at center to score the fourth. Despite several good attempts the Michigan forwards were not good enough to penetrate Charlton's defense.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Billy Gonsalves and Bill Watson of St. Louis are among the stars of this section who will oppose the Charlton Soccer Club of London here tomorrow at Sparta Stadium. A crowd of 10,000 is expected.

Boys' Club Work Out.

The wrestling squad of the Boys' Club will hold an outdoor workout at Forest Park in front of the Field House this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

VAN DYCK

Whatever your views—

There's flavor to a really pretty girl, you'll admit; distinct flavor—the flavor of a high personality.

And there's flavor to Van Dyck 32's—as you'll be quick to admit once you've puffed their expensive and mellow tobaccos. Rich flavor—distinctive, satisfying.

Men bought more than 140 million Van Dyck 32's last year because they found Van Dyck exactly to their taste! We think you will like them, too. It costs only a nickel to find out!

BOYS' CLUB BUILDING TO COVER HALF BLOCK

Site at Northeast Corner of Tenth and Lafayette Acquired for Structure.

Plans have been completed for the erection of a building at the northeast corner of Tenth street and Lafayette avenue for the Boys' Club of St. Louis. The site, covering an entire half block, was purchased last week by the Rev. Charles P. Maxwell, executive director of the club.

The building will contain gymnasium 50 by 90 feet, with locker and shower rooms adjoining, three large games rooms for the junior, intermediate and senior members. An office and a library will also be located on the first floor. The second floor will comprise music and meeting rooms and four craft rooms.

A group of business and professional men have provided the funds for the new building, it was stated. Maritz, Young, Dusard, Inc., are the architects.

BRUSH CONCERN BUYS BUILDING ON THIRD STREET

Six-Story Structure Between Olive and Locust Will Overlook Proposed Jefferson Memorial.

TRANSACTION HAS AWAKENING EFFECTS

Southwest and Northwest Corners of Third and Olive Are Challenging Attention.

By Berry Moore

Arousing renewed speculative interest in this section, the Bentzinger Brush Bros. Co., now at 2 South Second street, has purchased the six-story building at 317-19 North Third street, between Olive and Locust streets. It was owned by Mary Scudder Bond and Isabelle Bond Sibley, represented in the negotiations by Cornet & Zeibig.

While not disclosed, the price paid was nominal, it was stated, contrasted with the original cost of the building erected by the late John A. Scudder, president of the Anchor Line, when this section was the commercial vortex of the city.

The building, a slow combustion commercial structure, contains approximately 35,000 square feet of available floor space and is equipped with both passenger and freight elevators. The site has a frontage of 35 feet on North Third by a depth of 169 feet to a private alley.

The old structure formed an integral part of a six-story block, formerly occupied by the Woodward & Tiernan Printing Co., a pioneer concern in its line, which in 1921 purchased a site north of the Missouri Railway tracks between Tower Grove and Newstead avenues for a $1,000,000 plant, completed several years ago. It has been unoccupied since it was vacated by the printing concern.

Manufacturer of brushes, the concern of which Ralph Bentzinger is the senior member, will occupy the building as soon as it can be altered and equipped to meet its new requirements. The building will face the proposed Jefferson Memorial National Park, designed for the area east of Third street between the Eads Bridge and Poplar street. The purchaser was represented by the Ellicock Realty Co. in the negotiations.

Third street as the west boundary of the area embraced in the Jefferson Memorial plan, is being exploited in this section by real estate men as available for various kinds of business structures. Attention is being focused on the southwest and northwest corners of Third and Olive streets, as eligible sites for various types of business structures.

While more or less conditional, there has been a succession of offers for the southwest corner of Third and Olive street, owned by the Thomas Wright Investment Co., of which Guy H. Wright is president. Several have disclosed plans for modernistic, not to say fantastic structures with construction contingent upon the execution of the Jefferson Memorial plan.

The purchase announced by Cornet & Zeibig is expected to revive speculative interest in realty, not only on this section of North Third street, but also on Fourth street and Broadway in the downtown area, which had begun to lag with the memorial project continually halted by legal proceedings, instituted by its opponents.

Within the last two years, a number of concerns long established in the section embraced in the Jefferson Memorial Park plan, taking time by the forelock, have bought or have leased buildings in other parts of the city. These include the Mississippi Valley Paper Co. which recently purchased the five-story building at the southwest corner of Washington avenue and Twenty-first street, occupying a site 100 by 155 feet, extending through to St. Charles, through the Wolf-Pollack Realty Co. Another noteworthy purchase was that by the Moser Paper Box Co. of the extensive factory building of the Langenberg Manufacturing Co. at 4419-33 North Euclid avenue. The Moser Co. has been located at 200 Elm street for a number of years.

Negotiations Pending.

Negotiations are pending involving the renewal of leases for quarters both on Fourth street and on Broadway in the central part of the city which real estate men believe would command higher rentals if the Jefferson Memorial National Park project were a realized fact.

Mentioned among others in this connection is the First National Bank of St. Louis which occupies the entire first and fourth floors and part of the basement of the six-story Mercantile Library Building, at the southwest corner of Broadway and Locust street, under a lease which will expire in 1938. The St. Louis Union Trust Co. occupies the entire second, third and fifth floors of this building, also under a lease expiring in 1938, it is understood. The Mercantile Library is quartered on the sixth floor of the structure, which is owned by the Mercantile Library Association.

The quarters of the St. Louis Union Trust Co. are accessible from both the bank and the Locust street lobby of the building. The bank has entrances on Broadway, Olive and Locust.

The First National Co. which was known as the investment division of the First National Bank and whose quarters formerly comprised the entire third floor of the Mercantile Library Building, now has offices in the Mississippi Valley Trust Building, Broadway and Olive street.

In 1925, the First National Bank acquired the site comprising approximately a quarter block now occupied by the Ambassador Theater and Office Building, at the northwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets, with plans for a representative structure. The building plans were abandoned, however, and the site was disposed of to the promoters of the Ambassador Building for a reported price of $1,250,000.

The Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co.'s building occupies the entire west half of this block, with entrances on Locust, Eighth and St. Charles.

The first condemnation suits to acquire land in the 37-block river front area for the proposed Jefferson Memorial National Park were filed Friday in the United States District Court. The suits are for acquisition of the two blocks bounded by the Wharf, Second street, Chestnut and Market streets and the block bounded by Third, Fourth, Chestnut and Market streets.

Kehlenbrinck in New Quarters.

The Edward Kehlenbrinck Realty Co., now occupying offices at 2720 North Grand boulevard, has removed to new quarters at 3004 North Grand boulevard.

BUILDING AT 106 DOCK STREET IS RESOLD

Interests Represented by Agency Buy Two-Story Commercial Structure.

Interests represented by the Henry R. Weisels Co. have purchased the commercial building at 106 Dock street in North St. Louis from the Essex Investment Co., of which W. H. Bixby is president. The purchase price was not announced.

The building, a substantial three-story structure, occupies a lot with a frontage of 42 feet on Dock street by a depth of 164 feet. It is tenanted by the Theiling-Lothmar Mfg. Co. on a monthly basis. The premises has spur track connection with the Terminal railway.

The Weisels Co. recently sold the two-story building at 110 Dock street, with lot 40 by 160 feet, to he West Disinfecting Co. for the account of the Essex Investment Co.,

The Essex Investment Co., through the Henry R. Weisels Co., two years ago purchased a series of buildings with a total frontage of 720 feet on Dock street extending from Hall to Second streets, including the above mentioned structures, as a speculative investment. The purchase was inspired by the superior railroad facilities of this part of the city. The tract was formerly owned by the Sidney Real Estate Co., of which Sidney Shoenberg is president.

START CONSTRUCTION OF MEMORIAL BUILDING

Fruin-Colnon Memorial to Be Unit of St. Agnes Home Group in Kirkwood.

Construction has been started on the new Fruin-Colnon Memorial on ground adjacent to the St. Agnes Home for the Aged, conducted by the Carmelite Sisters of the Divine Heart of Jesus on Woodlawn avenue and Manchester road.

The memorial will be placed at an angle of 45 degrees to the existing building, erected two years ago and to which it will conform in architectural style and material.

The memorial was provided for in the will of Katherine Fruin Colnon, who died Oct. 7, 1934, in memory of her father, Jeremiah Fruin, and her husband, Redmond Stephen Colnon.

The Fruin-Colnon Memorial will accommodate approximately 50 guests in a three-story and basement building. The ground floor will contain a large library with books furnished from the library of Mr. Colnon, and a large solarium with a wood burning fireplace. The new addition will also have a reception room for guests. There will also be solariums on the second and third floors, which will contain wood burning fireplaces.

Every practical modern convenience will be incorporated into the building. The building will be of fireproof construction and of the most modern engineering design, with provisions for air-conditioning and cooling.

Every effort has been made to give the rooms a character of simplicity and good taste, with pleasing decorative schemes.

The arrangements for this memorial are being directed by Archbishop John J. Glennon, Joseph E. Vollmer and Albert P. Greensfelder, trustees under the will of Katherine Fruin Colnon.

The architects are Maritz, Young & Dusard, Inc., and the General Contractors are Fruin-Colnon Contracting Co.

It is planned to have the building ready for occupancy at the end of this year. The estimated cost of the building, including furnishings, is $150,000. The corner stone will be laid June 29 next.

MAY BUILDING LOANS SET TWO-YEAR MONTHLY RECORD

Associations of St. Louis and County Provide $730,095 in Funds.

May volume of loans made by building and loan associations of St. Louis and St. Louis County was the largest of any month in two years, it was reported yesterday by Alfred S. Zeller, president of the St. Louis League of Incorporated Building and Loan Associations. Records have been kept only since June, 1935.

Two hundred twenty-six recordings totaled $730,295 for the month, he said. This figure compares with $691,373 for April, when 225 loans were made, and with $624,639 for May, 1936, when 198 loans were made, it was announced.

"The May figure is more than $100,000 greater than the figure for May, 1936, marking a tremendous gain in loan volume for a period of only 12 months," Zeller declared. "Building and loan men know that a sizeable volume of these loans went for new construction, although definite figures on construction loans are not available. It is reasonable to state that loans for new construction account for the greater portion of the gains that are being made in loan volume of building and loan associations in the St. Louis district."

REALTY BOARD PICNIC TO BE HELD WEDNESDAY, JUNE 16

The annual picnic of the St. Louis County Real Estate Board will be held Wednesday, June 16, at Ganahl's Dairy Farm at Clayton and Kehrs Mill roads. Members of both the St. Louis County Real Estate Board and the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange and their friends have been invited to attend. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock and dinner at 5 o'clock. Special entertainment will be provided. It is to be a stag event—for men only.

Reservations may be made with Ralph L. Schwenck, secretary of St. Louis County Real Estate Board or Clarence C Lang, executive secretary of St. Louis Real Estate Exchange or with any member of the St. Louis County Real Estate Board.

DOUGLAS PLACE RESIDENCE IS OBJECT OF INTEREST

The residence recently completed by the Nassau Realty Co. for Edwin K. Pope in Douglas place, Kirkwood, is attracting more than ordinary attention.

The house, designed by Arthur C. Holden of New York, is of the Monterey type of architecture. There is living room, dining room, kitchen and lavatory on the first floor. The second floor consists of three bedrooms and bath. A two-car attached garage, with deck roof, is an attractive feature. Chomeau & Jaudon, realtors, handled negotiations incident to the building operation and for the acquisition of the site.

University City Lease.

Mrs. Eva L. Inlow, president of the Colonial Tea Room, has leased the large storeroom at 6271 Delmar boulevard, in University City White Way, for a long term. She is now located at 6311 Delmar boulevard. The lease was made by the Henry R. Weisels Co.

ARCADIA VALLEY FARM IS ACQUIRED

The El Jane Farm in the Arcadia Valley of the Ozarks, has been purchased by Dr. Elmer J. Leibrock. It was owned by Frank Dauster, a client of the B. H. Stoltman Real Estate Co., which handled the transaction.

The tract comprises approximately 420 acres, including 150 acres in timber. A brick and frame residence, containing nine rooms with two baths, occupies a commanding site on the farm. There is also a log bungalow of five rooms and bath, and a caretaker's cottage.

Other auxiliary buildings include two large corn barns, with cork floors, and individual automatic drinking stalls, a horse barn, sheep shed, milk house, test barn, two silos and a large modern greenhouse. Springs furnish an adequate supply of drinking water.

The seller was represented by W. S. Johnson.

KATZ DRUG CO. OPENS UNIT ON LARGE SCALE IN WELLSTON

The Wellston unit of the Katz Drug Co., installed at a large outlay in the Loop Building at the northwest corner of Easton and Hodiamont avenues, was formally opened Friday.

The new store comprises the entire first floor and the basement of this building. It is replete with the newest features, including modernistic fixtures and an air-conditioning system.

The store is the first of four proposed units on a comprehensive scale, which will be established in the outlying centers within the next year by the concern. It will be under the management of Claude Keyes, assistant manager of Katz's Seventh and Locust street store.

The Katz company has acquired the Wellston quarters under a long lease negotiated by Otto J. Dickmann, president of the Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co. The building is owned by the Pelligreen Realty Co. of which Lee Pelligreen is president. Of fireproof construction, it was erected in the pre-depression era by the late M. Pelligren for a branch for the B. Nugent & Bro. Dry Goods Co.

NORTHDALE REALTY PLACED ON MARKET BY FRANKE CO.

The Franke Realty Co., of which Lucas Franke is president, has been appointed exclusive sales agent for the Home Development Co., which several months ago purchased the remaining unsold lots in Northdale at Larimore and Trampe roads in St. Louis County, as was told in the real estate section of the Post-Dispatch. There are 565 lots with an aggregate frontage of 20,000 feet available for development or for home seekers.

The Home Development Co. has announced plans for a large number of medium-priced houses designed after those built in the Hillside Development of Mineola, Long Island, and by the National Lumber Dealers' Association in a village development in Washington, D. C. Construction has already started on 16 of the proposed houses.

Comprising in its entirety approximately 33 blocks, the subdivision is bounded on the west by the Twillmann tract, on the east by Larimore road and on the north by Trampe boulevard. It is approximately six miles north of Baden, a half mile east of Bellefontaine road, and 12 miles north of the St. Louis Courthouse.

William S. Seltzer, vice-president of the concern, stated that formal opening of the subdivision would be announced in the near future.

A. O. Bray With R. T. Gabler Co.

A. O. Bray, formerly special agent and manager for a fire insurance company in the St. Louis territory has become associated with the R. T. Gaebler Real Estate Co. at 718 East Big Bend road, Webster Groves. The R. T. Gaebler Co. was established more than 20 years ago.

RESIDENCE OF J. E. PIERCE IS COLONIAL IN DESIGN

The new residence of Julius E. Pierce, in the St. Louis Country Club grounds is of the Colonial type, erected from plans by Gale Henderson, architect. The first floor consists of living room, dining room, kitchen, pantry, lavatory and screened porch. There are four bedrooms with two baths and maid's room, with bath, on the second floor.

The house is air-conditioned and there is a two-car attached garage.

The site was acquired through Edward L. Bakewell, realtor.

FOR BETTER LIVING

A weather-stripped, wood casement window which is easily opened and closed is now available to the building public. Hinges have been discarded and the window opens and closes by means of a mechanism. The window is said to be weathertight and free of warping.

* * *

When a new heating system is put in an old house, an endeavor should be made to conceal the piping even to the extent of boxing it in. Such boxed-in covers are less objectionable than exposed pipes.

A divided tray and platter compartment in a kitchen cupboard solves an awkward storage problem.

If concrete or masonry steps are to be installed, be sure the ground on which they are to be placed is solid and not recent fill. Filled ground settles over a long period, and the steps will settle with it.

* * *

Cellar doors are sources of heat losses that are generally overlooked. When there are sloping doors, an additional door at the foot of the stairs will be a protection.

Materials with water-resisting qualities are particularly adaptable for bathrooms. Linoleums, waterproofed wallpaper, asbestos wainscoting, asphalt-tile flooring, metal tile, ceramic and glass tile can be used to advantage.

It is wise to inspect your roof regularly and to have a new coating applied when needed. Bituminous coatings are used for repairing bituminous built-up or prepared roofing as well as the sheet metal type. For best results roof coating should not be used on a damp surface. First, the surface should be swept clean. In moderate temperatures, roof coating is of the proper consistency for application just as it comes from the container. The heat of the roof and the sun will cause it to spread easily. Do not thin. It may be warmed slightly in extremely cold weather. A heavy coating should be applied with a roof coating brush—not a paint brush.

Pull-out shelves are a great convenience in the linen closet. Towels, table linen and pillow cases may be located without disturbing the neatness of the place.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

'A LIFETIME OPPORTUNITY' WITH SAFETY!

The largest and leading ice cream and dairy products manufacturing concern in Southwestern United States, operating the largest chain of retail ice cream, fountain and dairy products stores in Texas are selling these stores to individuals.

These retail stores are the most beautiful and leading stores in each locality and will be supplied by this company with its products. No experience needed, as the company's supervisors will remain with and teach each purchaser how to operate the stores. Under the company's guidance you cannot help being successful.

These stores have been in operation for years and are proven as to what they will do by statements from the auditor's office of the company showing the past year's business of each store which are open the year 'round and will earn from $3000 to $10,000 per year clear profit per store after paying operating expenses.

Subject to prior sale, you may choose from many thriving cities in Texas, where healthful sunshine and climatic conditions are ideal for this business.

From $1500 to $4000 cash down payment required; balance spread over a period of years.

If you are ambitious, have the required capital and good references, write us about yourself, stating age, family, if any, and cash capital available; or better still, come and make a personal investigation.

WHAT OUR CUSTOMERS SAY:

Joseph E. Burger
President

A South St. Louis Butcher Writes:

"About two years ago I bought a reconditioned 1933 Chevrolet Sedan from South Side Chevrolet through Mr. O. W. Crecelius and I was so well pleased with the car and service I received from you that I have just bought a reconditioned 1935 sedan and I am very well pleased, which shows my confidence in your company."

RADIO SERVICE

RADIO SERVICING

Facts regarding "correct" radio service and by "correct radio service" is meant the type of service that follows the original factory specifications. The manufacturer made your set to work perfectly at time of purchase and it can be made to work perfectly again providing you call a competent radio engineer or company whose technical procedure embraces the collowing points:
Exact factory duplicates of parts to be used at all times as factory specifications call for.
Adherence to manufacturers' design and requirements implicitly.
If this is done, you will get your set back playing perfectly, as it did when new.

SALESMEN WANTED

ATTENTION—MEN WHO ARE UNEMPLOYED.

In and around St. Louis, are men that are complaining about work being very hard to find. Some of these men actually want work, others are not looking for work, or want something that is easy to do for a mere existence. To the men looking for a chance to prove their ability with possibilities of earning a good consistent living for themselves and their families we can present a splendid opportunity.

In our previous announcements we have repeatedly made the statement that we are not interested in men who are merely concerned with the limitations of a small income. However, we will go a long way in helping a man to a lucrative and permanent future if that man is big enough and willing enough to realize that he must pay the price and prove his worth to us by actual and conscientious hard work.

In order to assure that no man will remain in a rut because of a stipulated income used as a harness over him, we pay our men on a profit sharing basis, giving them a chance to receive in dollars and cents what they actually earn.

This business is both modern and mutual. No investment is required from any man qualifying. We finance everything.

Our requirements are: Good references and neat appearance. To you who are reading this ad, is your future worth two hours' interview with our factory representative? Where he can outline to you what we consider a real opportunity to you?

This ad gives no honest, industrious man an excuse for being out of work. We are not interested in ad seekers or floaters. Apply in person, Monday morning, 9:15 to 1:15, Paul Brown Bldg., Room 512, cor. 9th and Olive sts.

Marjorie Green Is Married to Joel A. Rogers

Reception Held at Home of Bride's Parents After Church Ceremony—Honeymoon in Mexico.

AT a candlelight service late yesterday in the Church of St. Michael and St. George, Miss Marjorie Green, daughter of former Judge and Mrs. Ernest A. Green, became the bride of Joel Alexander Rogers. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Murray Rogers, 5534 Clemens avenue.

The Rev. Dr. Karl Morgan Block performed the ceremony in a candle-lit chancel decorated with palms and woodwardia fern, with vases of larkspur and peonies on the altar, and similar vases of white flowers set at the communion rail.

The wedding party, the bride's attendants in green and white costumes with accents of purple, followed by the bride and her father, passed down an illuminated aisle, and the principals knelt on white satin cushions for the blessing at the end of the service.

The bride was attended by Miss Margaret Hemingway as maid of honor, and by Mrs. Hugh Everard Jackson of Prince Orange County, Va., as matron of honor, who were gowned alike in square-necked puff-sleeved models of white Swiss dotted in green, with bouffant skirts held out by four full flounces put together with lace, over taffeta foundations. Detachable bolero jackets were also lace edged. They wore large white straw garden hats trimmed beneath the brims with broad books of purple ribbon with streamers to the floor, and carried armfuls of purple larkspur.

The bridesmaids—Miss Mary Papin Thomas, Miss Mary Elizabeth Lumaghi, Mrs. Truman E. Walker, and Mrs. Marion Blackwell Hocker the bridegroom's sister, wore pale green Swiss frocks with white dots, made like the others, and green bows and streamers from their broad-brimmed hats. They carried white larkspur.

Ruffled white mousseline de soie over taffeta fashioned the bride's gown, with which she wore a long tulle veil arranged with a face veil from a circlet of orange blossoms, and carried all white larkspur. The frock was made with a heart-shaped neck line edged with double ruffles of mousseline, erect in back, and a tight-fitting bodice into which was set short, puffed sleeves. The skirt, fitted to the hip line, continued in a series of graduated ruffles to the floor and into the long train, held bouffant by taffeta stiffening.

Roderick M. Meyer was Mr. Rogers' best man, and the ushers were Marion Blackwell Hocker, Allen Green, the bride's brother, Richard Stokes, A. Clifford Saxton, George Shotwell Roudebush and Daniel Upthegrove Jr.

Mrs. Green wore champagne-colored crepe made with a short jacket and full sleeves, with a darker hat trimmed with the colors in her corsage of African daisies and blue delphinium. Mrs. Rogers, the bridegroom's mother, was in gray net and lace, with which she wore iris and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony, 200 guests, including many from out-of-town, motored to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Green on the Clayton and Kent roads, for a garden reception. The receiving line formed in a bay window in the living room before palms and all white flowers, more of which decorated the other rooms. A table in the dining room was decorated with flowers to hold the wedding cake, which was topped by lilies of the valley. Supper was served in the garden.

Out-of-town guests included United States Senator Bennett Champ Clark, Mrs. Leslie Green of Columbia, the bride's aunt, and her sons, James Blair and Leslie Carlyle Green; Judge George Robb Ellison of the Missouri Supreme Court, and Federal Judge John Caskie Collet, both of Jefferson City; Mr. and Mrs. James C. Blair Jr., also of Jefferson City; Mrs. J. H. C. Anderson of Poplar Bluff, Mo.; Otho Reese of Huntington, W. Va.; Mrs. Walter S. Albert of Cape Girardeau, and John T. Barker of Kansas City.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will spend their honeymoon in Mexico and will live temporarily with her parents. They will go direct to Mexico City and thence to Acapulco on the Pacific Ocean.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and spent two years at Smith College before making her debut at a reception at the St. Louis Woman's Club several years ago. She was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball that year. Mr. Rogers became a member of Delta Phi fraternity while attending Brown University.

English Visitors To Be Entertained

SIR JOSIAH AND LADY STAMP of London, England, will arrive in St. Louis Friday morning, to be the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Ivan Lee Holt, 5068 Washington avenue, for the day. Coming here early in the morning, they will breakfast with the Holts, and during a luncheon the Chamber of Commerce has arranged for Sir Josiah. Lady Stamp will be entertained at a similar party given at Bellerive Country Club by Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee, 33 Kingsbury place, and Mrs. Albert M. Keller, 4 Carrswold. That evening a dinner will be given at the Bogey Club by the board of stewards of St. John's Methodist Church, with Sir Josiah and Lady Stamp as honor guests.

Sir Josiah, G. C. B., G. B. E., K. B. E., C. B. E., is governor of the Bank of England, president of the London, Midland & Scottish Railroad, and economic advisor to the British Government. Most remarkable in his career is the fact that he is a past president of the British Association for Advancement of Science, one of the few times that a business man ever has received this, the greatest honor awarded to a British scholar. He is also the author of many books on economics, and the holder of honorary degrees from colleges abroad and in the United States, including the universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburgh, Toronto, Harvard, Columbia and Northwestern.

Sir Josiah will speak at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., Thursday before coming here, and he and his wife will leave St. Louis Friday evening for Washington to complete their tour of the country. Since landing in New York May 30, they have been in Montreal, Chicago and Florida, and are now on their way back East.

In 1931 Dr. Holt visited a week at the Stamp home, "Tantallon," Park Hill road, Shortlands, Kent, when he was in England as the guest pastor that summer of the Egremont Presbyterian Church, Liverpool. He saw Sir Josiah again in 1932 when he was sent to England as special messenger of the Methodist Church, South, for a conference on church unity in London.

Mary Lee Smidt Honored.

Miss Mary Lee Smidt, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cupples Scudder of Warson road, was guest of honor at a dinner dance they gave last night at the St. Louis Country Club. Mr. and Mrs. Scudder entertained 50 guests, including girls who made their debut last winter and others who, like Miss Smidt, will make their bow during the coming season. The alcove dining room was used. Rambling roses provided the decoration. Miss Smidt, with other members of her family, will spend the summer at Teepee Ranch, Sheridan, Wyo.

MRS. THOMAS ERWIN GALLAGHER, the former Miss Jean Edmee Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jurian Hopkins. Her marriage took place yesterday.
—Schwei

Margaret Cornwell To Make Bow in Fall

THE name of Miss Margaret Cornwell, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Cornwell, 536 Overhills drive, has been added to the list of debutantes for next season. She will probably make a bow at a tea to be given by Mrs. Cornwell at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornwell and a younger daughter, Miss Dorothy, a student at John Burroughs, left this morning for Virginia to attend the graduation of Miss Margaret from Sweet Briar, Tuesday. Their second daughter, Miss Helen, also attends college there.

Following the graduation the Cornwells will motor to Washington and other points in the East before returning home in two weeks.

Back From Visit in East.

Mrs. Benjamin L. Van Cleave has returned from New York following a two-week visit with her mother, Mrs. Charles Wesley Tucker, and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Ward.

MRS. HENRY STUART NEWBOLD CASTLE, who was Miss Mary Angelique Trigg until her marriage yesterday. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Benjamin Trigg.

Marie Setz to Be Bride of G. Gordon Hertslet

THE engagement of Miss Marie Louise Setz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl F. Setz, 7720 Club drive, and G. Gordon Hertslet, was announced yesterday at a luncheon given by Mrs. Setz at their home.

In addition to the hostess and guest of honor, the party was attended by Mrs. Frederick W. Kelley, Mrs. Alfred Dietzel, Mrs. Kenneth Wischmeyer, Mrs. Walter Boeger, Mrs. Walton Shewell Fitzroy, Mrs. James A. Yates, Mrs. Carl Setz Jr., and Mrs. Bedford F. Hines. They were seated at a flower-trimmed table on which each place was marked by a corsage with the names of the betrothed pair attached.

Miss Setz is a graduate of Hosmer Hall in St. Louis and of Weylister College, Milford, Conn., and has traveled extensively both in this country and in Europe.

Mr. Hertslet is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey E. P. Hertslet. His father was British Consul here for many years. The bridegroom-elect studied at St. Lawrence College, Ramsgate, Kent, England, and has done graduate work at Columbia University in New York and Washington University. He is president of the Advertising Club of St. Louis and is a member of the Missouri Athletic Association.

The wedding will take place in the fall, following the return of Miss Setz and her family from a European tour. During their absence Mr. Hertslet will cruise to Panama.

Harry Hall Knights Visiting Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hall Knight, who were married in New York Tuesday, arrived in St. Louis Wednesday and will be guests until later today at the Park Plaza. They are on their way to the Knight ranch in Granby, Colo., and will sail June 26 from California to spend the summer in China and Japan. In September they will return to New York to live. Mr. Knight's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence O. Gamble, gave a cocktail party for them Thursday, and Friday Mrs. Marion Niedringhaus entertained a few friends at luncheon at the St. Louis County Club. Mrs. Knight was Mrs. Mary Christy Tiffany Pratt.

Bartlett-Endress Wedding July 8

BERKELEY, Cal., June 5.

PLANS are complete for the wedding the evening of July 8 of Miss Elizabeth Endress, daughter of Mrs. William Fitzhugh Endress, and Aurelius T. Bartlett II. The bridegroom-elect is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Willard Bartlett, 53 Westmoreland place, St. Louis.

Invitations will be mailed this week for the ceremony, to be performed at All Soul's Episcopal Church with the Rev. Phineas Casady officiating in the presence of several hundred guests. Attending the bride will be Miss Jane Eleanor Brock, maid of honor, and Mrs. Prentiss Cobb Hale Jr. and Mrs. Allan Bullard, bridesmaids. Dr. Robert Wilson Bartlett of St. Louis will serve his brother as best man and the ushers will include Thomas Carl Petersen Jr., Samuel L. Wright and Prentiss Cobb Hale Jr.

Following the service, 100 guests will greet the bridal party at the home of Miss Endress' uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carl Petersen.

Mr. Bartlett, accompanied by his mother and brother, is expected to arrive from St. Louis July 5.

The Bartlett-Endress engagement was announced in April at a large party given by Mrs. Petersen. Following a month's wedding trip, Mr. Bartlett will take his bride to St. Louis to make their home.

Jean Hopkins Wed To T. E. Gallagher In Church Service

THE first of two large church weddings yesterday was that of Miss Jean Edmee Hopkins and Thomas Erwin Gallagher at 11 o'clock in the morning at Our Lady of Lourdes Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jurian Hopkins, 9119 Clayton road, and the bridegroom the son of Dr. and Mrs. John F. Gallagher, 205 South Skinker boulevard.

Several hundred guests witnessed the ceremony read by the Rev. C. B. Faris before a setting of green and white. Huckleberry foliage banked the chancel as a background to the candle-lit white altar. Large standards filled with white larkspur and Easter lilies alternated with lighted candelabra around the chancel.

Nine attendants preceded the bride down the aisle. The bridesmaids—Miss Patricia and Miss Eleanor Gallagher, sisters of the bridegroom; Miss Mary Margaret Davis of Dallas, Tex., Miss Ann Harlan of Austin, Tex., and Miss Ahden Knight—wore gowns of canary yellow marquisette over taffeta. Each was designed with a shirred bodice, slashed puffed sleeves and a redingote skirt. They had large off-the-face picture hats of yellow hair braid designed with open crowns crossed with turquoise velvet ribbons which ended in streamers. Their sandals matched the ribbon and they carried yellow roses tied with more of the turquoise. The costumes of the two junior bridesmaids, Miss Ethel Gray and Miss Nina Braxton, differed only from the bridesmaids in the hats. They wore turquoise halos of braided velvet with long streamers.

Miss Mary Ann Davie, the maid of honor, was gowned in turquoise marquisette of the same design. Her hair braid hat matched the frocks and she carried yellow roses, also.

Marjory May Hopkins, in white marquisette made on princesse lines, was flower girl for her sister. She scattered rose petals in the aisle from a basket made of real flowers. In her hair was a wreath of white blossoms.

Mr. Hopkins gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown of heavy white bridal satin was designed on princesse lines with a period square neck. The very full sleeves shirred into the neckline fitted tightly from the elbow to the wrist and formed points over the hands. The long flared skirt ended in a wide circular train. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. The veil of illusion fell full length over the train from a coronet of the finely pleated tulle, secured by a row of orange blossoms across the back. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley and white orchids.

Mr. Gallagher was attended by his three brothers: William E. as best man and John J. Jr. and Robert J. as two of the groomsmen. The others were LeRoy Dierker, Allen Maestre and the bride's brother, Edward J. Hopkins. J. Nolan Shay and J. J. Scott were ushers.

Following the service the guests greeted the bridal party and the families at a reception at Glen

Sisters Announce Engagements at Family Party

Alice Gleeson Brokaw To Be Bride of Louis A. Lamb, Jr.—Marion Roberts Brokaw Betrothed to N. Montgomery Clarke.

ANNOUNCEMENTS were made simultaneously last night of the engagements of Miss Alice Gleeson Brokaw and of Miss Marion Roberts Brokaw, daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Linn Roberts Brokaw. Miss Alice will become the bride of Louis Albert Lamb Jr. of Detroit, Mich., and Miss Marion is to be married to Neville Montgomery Clarke, formerly of Ascot, England.

Copies of the Post-Dispatch in which this announcement appears were distributed to members of the prospective brides' family, invited to a buffet supper at the home of their uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. George Francis Chopin, 8548 Church road. The party was given in honor of Miss Alice Brokaw, who is Mrs. Chopin's god-daughter, and Mrs. Harold Davidson of Louisville, Ky., the former Miss Violet Spellen of St. Louis, the hostess' cousin, who is visiting her. Even Dr. and Mrs. Chopin were unaware that Miss Marion's engagement was to be announced.

Wedding bells, to which were secured hearts bearing the names of Miss Alice and her fiance, were suspended to the dining room chandelier with white satin ribbons, over a centerpiece of white roses and daisies.

The brides-elect make their home with their aunt, Miss Marjorie Gleeson, who has been their guardian since the death of their parents and their uncles, Joseph and Cartan Gleeson, at 5581 Enright avenue. They are the granddaughters of the late Mrs. Susan Cartan Gleeson and of the late Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Van Liew Brokaw. Miss Marion Roberts Brokaw, 5574 Pershing avenue, is an aunt, and the late Dr. A. V. L. Brokaw was their uncle.

Both young women are graduates of Visitation Academy here. Both are graduates of Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. (Miss Alice had previously attended Washington University for two years), and are members of the same sorority, Gamma Phi Beta. Both have traveled abroad and Miss Marion served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet Ball three years ago.

Mr. Lamb, Miss Alice Brokaw's fiance, is the son of Mrs. Louis Albert Lamb of Chicago. His family lived in St. Louis for about eight years, during which time her father, who died three years ago, was associated with the late William Marion Reedy, publisher of the old St. Louis Mirror. The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Willamette College in Oregon, and later attended Washington University before returning to the University of Oregon in Eugene, where he received his degree in architectural engineering. His fraternity is Tau Kappa Epsilon. His ancestry dates back in America to the Fairbanks family which settled in Dedham, Mass., in 1636.

Mr. Clarke, who is to marry Miss Marion Brokaw, is the youngest son of Col. Hugh Clarke, British army, retired, and Mrs. Clarke of Ascot. During the father's active career in the army, the family lived in many parts of the world, including a year in India. The prospective bridegroom was educated at Haileybury College, Hertfordshire, England. For the last three years he has lived in St. Louis.

Meramec Club Carnival on June 19

"Whoa! Here it comes!" read red-lettered posters, heralding the fourth annual Meramec Canoe Club Field Day and Carnival, to be held Saturday, June 19, from "4 p. m. to 4 a. m." on the grounds of the clubhouse at Valley Park, Mo.

The Canoe Club, which boasts only one canoe and that a leaky one, and has not indulged in the sport for years, has provided many substitute amusements for its carnival guests. They may "ring the duck's neck, spill the milk bottle, douse the flame, guess weights and either use or subject themselves to a candid camera," all for "hundreds of prizes given away for a mere Sioux."

Night club entertainment after a hot dog supper includes a 16-piece orchestra playing "under intoxicating skies cooled by river breezes," plus a circus calliope and sound effects.

The committee in charge is composed of R. K. Bentzen, president; Charles Lumaghi, chairman, and vice-president; Sewell Pangman, secretary; Henry A. Carleton, treasurer; J. Boyd Ware, manager; Stuart Smith, John Moss Hall, Norman Halls, Tullius C. Tupper Jr.,

Reichardt-Kooker Wedding in Iowa

THE marriage of Miss Phyllis Anne Kooker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Earl Kooker of Des Moines, Ia., and Robert Alan Reichardt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar G. Reichardt, 3232 Longfellow boulevard, took place last night in Des Moines.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Stoddard Lane at 8:30 o'clock at the Plymouth Congregational Church, to organ music played by Mrs. Lenore Mudge Stull. The bridal party walked through a candle-lit aisle to a setting of white peonies, ferns and smilax at the altar.

Mrs. Ethel Veatch Schmidt, the matron of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Morken, Miss Patricia O'Neil, Mrs. Dorothy Nourse and Miss Dorothy Hatfield, were gownedin white net over white taffeta, and flower head bands, with which they carried pastel-colored spring flowers.

The bride, who was preceded by a flower girl, Barbara Hann, dressed in white net and carrying a basket of gardenias, wore white satin with pearl trimming and a long veil worn from a coronet of fresh flowers to match the bouquet she carried. Her father escorted her down the aisle and gave her in marriage.

Oscar Reichardt Jr. was his brother's best man, and the ushers included Ridgely Reichardt, Harold Schramm and Jack Carnahan, all of St. Louis, and John Keena, Delafield, Wis.

After the ceremony a reception and buffet luncheon were held at Hotel Fort Des Moines. The mothers of both the bride and bridegroom received in blue lace with corsages of tube roses.

St. Louis guests included the bridegroom's parents, Roderick Rombauer, Patrick Erwin, Patrick O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Reichardt, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Reichardt and C. A. Reichardt Jr.; John Henry Feuerbacher and I. W. Kurtz Jr.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Reichardt will live temporarily with his parents.

The bride attended Drake University, where she became a member of Kappa Alpha Theta, and later was an instructor of dancing in the Anne Bullitt Brewer School in Louisville.

College Students To Sell Programs

AMONG the young women who will participate in the celebration of Tuberculosis day, Tuesday, June 22, at a benefit baseball game are three University of Missouri students who will return home from Columbia early this week. All three are members of the program selling team of which Mrs. Louise D. Stark is chaperon. They are Miss Harriet LaMertha, Miss Audrey Zeizer and Miss Arlene Robben, all members of Phi Mu sorority at the University.

Students of Webster College who have been selected by Mrs. J. P. Crowley are Miss Betty Henry, Miss Gertrude O'Rourke, Miss Lenora O'Connor and Miss Moira Hayes. DAUGHTER of Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham Farrell, whose engagement to Thomas H. Ryan III was announced yesterday.

St. Louis Girls to Go To Summer Camps

ST. LOUIS girls will leave here Sunday, June 20, on a special car for Minneapolis, where they will join groups from other cities and proceed with them to the Lake Hubert Camps in the northern part of the State.

Two girls from here will enter the Prep Camp, Miss Charlotte Felker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Felker, 730 Greeley avenue, Webster Groves, and Miss Nancy Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Thomas, 418 Sherwood drive.

Entering the A Camp will be: Miss Mary Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Duncan, 516 Midvale avenue; Miss Mary Jane Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Leland Jones, 222 Glen road, Webster Groves; Miss Adele Claire Kerckhoff, daughter of Elmer Kerckhoff, 79 Lake Forest; Miss Marian Koenig, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Koenig, 7579 Cornell avenue; Miss Mildred Rechtin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rechtin, 212 South Maple avenue, Webster Groves; Miss Jo Ann Wells, daughter of Joseph B. Wells, 4402 McPherson avenue; Miss Anna Marie Zurheide, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Zurheide, 7038 Maryland avenue, and Miss Betty Ann Gorham, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank D. Gorham, 6951 Delmar boulevard.

The rest of the St. Louis group will be members of the Counselor Training Camp for the summer. They will include: Miss Ruby Drehmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Drehmann, 1907 Union boulevard; Miss Cloy Shelton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Shelton, 308 Newport avenue, Webster Groves; Miss Beverlee Place, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Fullerton Place, 58 South Rockhill road, and Miss Molly Jean Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilson, 4808 Arsenal street.

Camp Hubert girls were entertained yesterday afternoon at a swimming party at the Norwood Hills Country Club, followed by a luncheon served on the terrace.

Miss Molly Jauncey Wed to David Waugh

THE wedding of Miss Molly Horsfall Jauncey, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. G. E. M. Jauncey, 702 Eastgate avenue, and David Floyd Waugh took place yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at the Graham Memorial Chapel on the Washington University campus. The Rev. Dr. W. Barnet Blakemore performed the double ring service before several hundred guests.

The wedding dress of the bride was of ivory satin, made on long, close-fitting lines, with a V neckline, short puffed sleeves and a skirt which flared into a long train. The finger-tip length circular veil of ivory tulle and the face veil fell from a halo of satin and was caught at the back with orange blossoms. She wore ivory lace mittens and carried a sheaf of calla lilies.

Miss Betty Waugh of Austin, Tex., sister of the bridegroom and maid of honor, was dressed in maize colored mousseline de soie, which was appliqued with small bunches of daisies and made with short puffed sleeves and a full skirt. A short veil of maize net, matching her dress, fell from a coronet of the net. She carried a shower bouquet of mixed summer flowers, as did the bridesmaids.

Dresses of peach and nile green mousseline de soie fashioned the gowns of the bridesmaids, and were made like that of the maid of honor. Both bridesmaids, Miss Edmee Moellman and Miss Florence Whisnand, wore coronets of net and short veils matching their dresses. Lexie Jean Tolman, small daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Carl Tolman, 6639 University drive, was flower girl for the bridal party, and wore blue starched chiffon with a ruffled skirt and large sash. She carried a muff of summer flowers and wore a band of daisies in her hair.

Mrs. Jauncey was gowned in rust and white flowered chiffon, trimmed with white organdy, and Mrs. Waugh, mother of the bridegroom, was in navy and white sheer. Both had gardenias for their flowers.

A wedding breakfast for the bridal party, relatives and a few friends was held at the Castlereagh Tea Room following the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Waugh left for a short wedding trip to Chicago.

In addition to members of the bridal party and parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Waugh of New York, out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Dr. and Mrs. Leslie C. Jauncey of Washington, uncle and aunt of the bride, Miss Dorothy Lehnertz of Denver, Colo., and Mrs. Charles F. Hagenow of Chicago.

R. T. Mueller to Wed

THE marriage of Miss Margaret Mary How, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. How of Hematite, Mo., and Roy Thomas Mueller will take place Thursday in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. How's home. Mr. Mueller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Mueller, 4008 Darby street.

Miss How will be dressed in white moire taffeta, made on princesse lines with puffed sleeves and a short train. Her tulle veil will be held in place by orange blossoms and her bouquet will be of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Mueller, sister of the bridegroom-to-be, will be maid of honor, and Miss How's brother, Walter How, will be best man. Miss Mueller will wear yellow mousseline de soie over yellow taffeta, and carry talisman roses tied with a wide yellow ribbon.

After the wedding a reception will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. How, and following that the bride and bridegroom will leave for a wedding trip.

Altar Guild Garden Party.

Mrs. Frederick Evans, 2 Lorenzo lane, will entertain the members of the Altar Guild Society of St. Joseph's Church at a garden party Monday, June 14, at her home. Guests are invited from 2 to 5 o'clock.

Margaret Farrell and T. H. Ryan III to Wed

FRIENDS invited for luncheon yesterday at 1:30 o'clock at the home of Miss Cyriline Galvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Galvin, 7267 Lindell boulevard, were told of the engagement of Miss Margaret Mary Farrell and Thomas H. Ryan III. The prospective bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham Farrell, 7603 Forsythe boulevard, and her fiance the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Ryan Jr., 7449 Stratford avenue.

The news was contained in little parchment scrolls, on which both names were inscribed, inclosed in boxes topped by a white wedding bell and placed at each plate.

Miss Farrell was educated in Boston, where her family lived before coming here four years ago. Mr. Ryan attended Washington University and was later graduated from the University of Southern California. His fraternity is Gamma Epsilon.

The wedding will take place in November.

Jean Hopkins Is Wed To T. E. Gallagher

Echo Country Club. Breakfast was served buffet style on the terrace. A large oval table accommodated the bridal party inside the club. It was decorated by a large low bowl filled with white larkspur and lilies of the valley, with smaller vases on either side. Garlands of the white blossoms wound in and out among the center pieces.

Mrs. Hopkins was gowned in Alice blue tailored lace with matching shoes and a large straw hat. Her corsage was white orchids. Mrs. Gallagher chose periwinkle lace for her gown and with it wore a large pink hat. She had lavender orchids for her corsage.

In addition to the members of the bridal party from out of town the following were present: Mrs. Emma Frankel, Mrs. Hopkins' mother, from Los Angeles; Mrs. G. A. Bruck of Austin, Mr. Hopkins' mother; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Reitzel and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Copeland of Dallas; Mrs. Arthur Wolfort of Chicago; Mrs. Robert J. Gallagher, who with her husband, makes her home at Buffalo, N. Y.

Besides the many parties originally planned in honor of the bridal pair, several were given last week. Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Pettus of the St. Louis Country Club grounds, entertained at a garden party and the following evening, William E. and John F. Gallagher were hosts at a dinner dance at Meadowbrook Country Club. At the luncheon at Busch's Grove yesterday for her bridesmaids, Mrs. Gallagher presented each with a gold heart for a charm bracelet on which was inscribed the two names and the date of the wedding.

Following a several weeks wedding trip to California, Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher will make their home at the Gatesworth Hotel.

The bride attended Community School and was graduated from Mary Institute in 1935. The following year she spent one semester at the Knox School, Cooperstown, N. Y. Last October she served as maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball. Mr. Gallagher attended St. Louis and Washington universities.

Dr. Anne Walter Fearn in Orient 44 Years, Has Reputation of Being Most Generous Hostess in Shanghai

Sister of Mrs. Oscar Johnson Not a Missionary Although She First Went to China for Southern Methodist Board in 1893.

Hospital She Operated for 10 Years Became a Center of Foreign Social Life and There Many Notables Were Entertained.

By MARTHA BATES POWELL.

"I AM not a missionary. People are always calling me one, and I know the missionaries don't like it any more than I do, for I have parties, you know, and serve cockails, too."

So Dr. Anne Walter Fearn here on a visit with her sister, Mrs. Oscar Johnson, 38 Portland place, cleared up the impression created by the fact that in 1893 she went to Shanghai under a one-year contract with the Southern Methodist Mission Board. One year on "a grand lark" and she stayed for 44.

During those years Dr. Fearn became the most widely known doctor in Shanghai and the most generous hostess in that port of continuous and elaborate entertaining. She opened her own hospital, the Fearn Sanitarium, in 1916, and it was crowded up to the time she sold it in 1926, on the death of her husband, Dr. J. Burrus Fearn, who was superintendent of the General Hospital and director of municipal hospitals in Shanghai.

Dr. Fearn, laughingly says she "was trained to be a surgeon and degenerated into an obstetrician." Most of the foreign babies in Shanghai were born in the Sanitarium—6017 by actual count.

Built originally as the home of a German trader, the hospital, with its long sweeping lawn and gardens and driveway shaded by trees, had a country-estate atmosphere. There every notable who passed through that "crossroads of the world" was entertained. In summer, well-rolled tennis courts drew crowds every afternoon. Garden chairs and tables were provided for spectators and those who simply dropped in for tea on their way home from the office. On summer evenings Japanese lanterns transformed the gardens, stone walks and ponds, and here buffet suppers and out-of-door entertaining were highlights of the hot summer months. During the winter, invitations were at a premium for indoor luncheons and dinners; there one always saw the friends one wanted to see.

IN speaking of the cosmopolitan character of Shanghai, Dr. Fearn remarked. "The social life there is more vivid than in Paris or Vienna." And she knows both places. She divides Shanghai foreign society into three distinct groups—missionaries, business people and diplomats. But all have been present "at Dr. Fearn's" Forty-eight different languages are spoken in Shanghai and each has been represented at her luncheon table. Her guests of honor have ranged from Douglas Fairbanks to Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Sr., and the young Theodore Roosevelts, at the time he was Governor-General of the Philippines in 1932. Ellery Sedgwick, editor of the Atlantic Monthly, owes many parties to her, and others entertained include William Allen White, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Roosevelt, in 1930 when he was vice-governor of the Philippines; Carrie Jacobs Bond, American composer; Guglielmo Marconi and, more recently, Count and Countess Galeazo Ciano, son-in-law and daughter of Premier Mussolini. "No, I missed the Lindberghs. You see, I was in this country at the time," Dr. Fearn explained.

DR. ANNE WALTER FEARN

In food Dr. Fearn follows no rules, but her fruits and vegetables are always the first of the season, and back in the days when a head of fresh "homeside" lettuce would create the talk of the week, Dr. Fearn always managed to get it. Real American food is always a treat in Shanghai, for though Chinese delicacies, tropical fruits, Sukiyaki, Russian dishes, and unusual viands from every country are plentiful, it is hard to get the old favorites, and even harder to find a cook who can prepare them. But Dr. Fearn does it, and there you can find American sausage and waffles when other hostesses toe the mark with British steamed breakfasts, and the famous watery English scrambled eggs. Her Chinese chow parties once each month, are memorable events to her guests. Even the rarest of native dishes with their accompanying condiments are served, and Chinese diplomats, themselves, look forward to these dinners.

Even the children of foreigners in Shanghai grow up in the tradition of Dr. Fearn's hospitality. Perhaps in memory of her daughter, Elizabeth who died at the age of 5, she gave at the hospital every Christmas morning a party for children of her friends. After individual family celebrations, the children dressed in a hurry to go to "Dr. Fearn's," where they found the largest Christmas tree in town loaded with ornaments brought from "home" and almost hidden with presents. Each child found the special doll, gun or even bicycle he had hoped for that Christmas, for the generous doctor had inquired of parents many weeks before.

THOUGH the hospital was sold to the Belgian Legation, Dr. Fearn's parties still are events of Shanghai. Now she lives in the Cathay Hotel, overlooking the Whangpoo River, where ocean liners dock. Her parties are given at the hotel and at clubs, but still the famous are entertained. In appreciation of her long years as a hostess, the American colony in Shanghai recently presented her with a silver service, which now is at Holly Springs, Miss., the old Walter family home which her sister, Mrs. Johnson, has restored.

Landing in this country March 24, Dr. Fearn went to Holly Springs and she, Mrs. Johnson and other members of the family have been there until a few days ago, when the two sisters came back to St. Louis. In July, Dr. Fearn plans to return to Holly Springs for the month and then will leave for Seattle, where she will visit friends before traveling south to Los Angeles. In Hollywood she will be the guest of Carrie Jacobs Bond for a few days before leaving for New York. She will sail for England in the fall to spend a month, followed by visits in Italy, Switzerland, Greece and Egypt. It will not be the first time she has visited extensively abroad, for since 1926 she has made 14 such trips. After a summer in Japan, Dr. Fearn will return to Shanghai the next autumn, for all through her travels that is still home, even though she claims it now only as "headquarters."

Still young and intensely interested in life and people, in spite of her 67 years, Dr. Fearn said she looked forward to her trip abroad. St. Louis and its ways don't hold her long.

Turning to Mrs. Johnson, she remarked, "Irene, is there anything in this Martini? It is about the weakest I've ever tasted."

Miss Mary Trigg Is Married to H. S. N. Castle

MISS MARY ANGELIQUE TRIGG, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ben Trigg, 4521 McPherson avenue, was married at her home yesterday morning to Henry Stuart Newbold Castle. The Rev. Sylvester Tucker performed the ceremony at 10 o'clock before the mantel in the living room. Silver urns of white roses and larkspur stood on each side of the pair, and the mantel was banked with the white flowers, and lighted by short candles in silver holders. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Edwin McKeon Trigg.

Made on old fashioned lines, the bride's dress was of white taffeta with a bouffant skirt, short puffed sleeves and a square neckline. Her cap and long veil of tulle was overlaid with Brussels lace, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Miss Elizabeth Sargeant of Norfolk, Va., cousin of the bride was her only attendant. She wore white organza, made on the same bouffant lines and embroidered with red wool flowers, and wore matching red slippers. Her bouquet was of spring flowers. Mrs. Trigg was gowned in a navy blue chiffon afternoon dress and Mrs. Castle wore a similar dress of black lace.

Mr. Castle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Manderson Castle of Philadelphia. His brother, James Manderson Castle Jr. of Wilmington, Del., was best man.

After the wedding a small, informal reception for members of the families was held at the Trigg home, and soon afterward Mr. and Mrs. Castle left for a wedding trip to Colorado. They will go from there to Las Vegas, N. M., where the bridegroom is in business and where they will make their home.

Besides the bridegroom's parents and the maid of honor, other out-of-town guests here for the wedding included Miss Mathilde Davis of Charlottesville, Va., Mrs. Kenneth Roberts, sister of the bridegroom of Bridgeton, N. J., and her two small daughters, Ruth and Peggy; Mrs. James R. Tanner and Mrs. Frank DeBold of Gay City, Mich.; George H. Sargeant, brother of the maid of honor and Miss Genevieve McKeon, of Mobile, Ala., an aunt of the bride.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, June 5.

SINCE the coronation English stories have been quite the vogue in Washington. Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the American Red Cross, told one recently at a Virginia hunt breakfast which illustrates an essential difference between the British and American usage in the matter of the letter "H."

While Admiral Grayson was in London with the late President Woodrow Wilson he stayed with his chief at Buckingham Palace and in the words of the old song "had vassals and serfs at his call."

One day, with much pomp and splendor, Admiral Grayson was escorted to the breakfast table and asked to say what he wanted to eat.

"Please bring me two eggs," said the Admiral to the powdered flunky. In a short time escorted by another flunky the first factotum returned bearing two bottles of Haig & Haig which the Admiral had ordered for his strange breakfast, according to their cockney ideas of English speech.

Lord and Lady Guinness, parents of Lady Honor Channon, wife of Harry Channon of Chicago, arrived in the United States recently on their yacht. Lady Honor and her American husband were members of King Edward's set in London and close friends of Queen Mary who recently attended the christening of their young son.

Lord and Lady Guinness who visited Chicago first via the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes will cruise all summer and will arrive in Newport when the season is under way.

Mrs. George Murray, wife of Commander Murray, U. S. N., in charge of the Pensacola Air Station in Florida, and sister of Mrs. George Barnett, and cousin to the new Duchess of Windsor, is visiting Washington. After the death of Mrs. Murray's first husband, Capt. Mustin, U. S. N., she spent several months in London where her companion was Mrs. Wallis Warfield Spencer. Mrs. Murray when she returned to London was the bride of Commander George Murray and met her cousin Mrs. Simpson once more.

When Mrs. Roosevelt received her guests in a cotton gown at the party for the Fourth Estate at the White House last week, she wore a white dimity sprigged in tiny roses, she was setting no precedent. Mrs. Herbert Hoover wore a blue cotton dress at the notification ceremonies of her husband.

"The Use More Cotton" movement was the signal for many leaders of Washington society to wear cotton dresses in the early days of the Wilson administration. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, as wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was among the first to wear cotton frocks that summer. The exponents of the "Use More Cotton" idea were headed by Miss Genevieve Champ Clark, daughter of the Speaker, and sister of United States Senator Bennett Champ Clark. She is now Mrs. James M. Thomson of New Orleans. Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the Ambassador to Mexico, designed a dress for one of the cotton fashion shows.

The painting of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt which hangs in the exhibition of wives of the Presidents in the White House portrays her in a white cotton dress.

After the death of Mrs. Murray's first husband, Capt. Mustin, U. S. N., she spent several months in London where her companion was Mrs. Wallis Warfield Spencer. Mrs. Murray when she returned to London was the bride of Commander George Murray and met her cousin Mrs. Simpson once more.

When Mrs. Roosevelt received her guests in a cotton gown at the party for the Fourth Estate at the White House last week, she wore a white dimity sprigged in tiny roses, she was setting no precedent. Mrs. Herbert Hoover wore a blue cotton dress at the notification ceremonies of her husband.

"The Use More Cotton" movement was the signal for many leaders of Washington society to wear cotton dresses in the early days of the Wilson administration. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, as wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was among the first to wear cotton frocks that summer. The exponents of the "Use More Cotton" idea were headed by Miss Genevieve Champ Clark, daughter of the Speaker, and sister of United States Senator Bennett Champ Clark. She is now Mrs. James M. Thomson of New Orleans. Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the Ambassador to Mexico, designed a dress for one of the cotton fashion shows.

The painting of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt which hangs in the exhibition of wives of the Presidents in the White House portrays her in a white cotton dress.

Miss Anita Koehler Becomes Bride of Dr. C. M. MacBryde

THE wedding of Miss Anita Koehler, 564 Kingsland avenue, and Dr. Cyril Mitchell MacBryde, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm MacBryde, 1234 Highland terrace, took place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the chapel of the Second Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor officiated in the presence of the families and a few close friends. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Martin Koehler, Medford, Wis., who came to St. Louis for their daughter's wedding.

Miss Margareta Koehler was her sister's only attendant and Myron Northrup served as best man for Dr. MacBryde. The chapel was simply decorated with urns filled with white peonies.

Mr. Koehler gave his daughter in marriage. She wore an afternoon gown of pink marquisette over matching taffeta. The gown was designed with a square neckline and short puffed sleeves. The full floor length skirt was embroidered with boutonnieres of wine colored flowers. The shade of the floral embroidery was repeated in her picture hat and slippers. She carried a prayer book marked with white satin ribbon tied with forget-me-nots. The maid of honor wore aqua blue lace and a natural leghorn hat trimmed with blue velvet ribbon. Her flowers were gardenias worn in a corsage.

After the ceremony a dinner was served at Hotel Chase for the members of the bridal party and the immediate families.

Dr. MacBryde and his bride will, after their wedding journey, live at their new home on Ballas and Bach roads, Kirkwood. She attended Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis., and is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. She is a member of Kappe Alpha Theta sorority. Dr. MacBryde is a graduate of Washington University and Harvard University Medical School. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi, honorary societies and of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity. His medical fraternity is Nu Sigma Nu.

In addition to the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Koehler, Neenah, Wis., came to St. Louis for the wedding.

Reception in Honor of Pastor.

The Rev. and Mrs. E. F. Harris, 6239 Magnolia avenue, will be honored at a reception Sunday afternoon, June 13, from 2 to 5 o'clock at the Clifton Heights Christian Church, Tamm and Marmaduke avenues. Their friends have been invited to this reception in honor of the Rev. Mr. Harris' twenty-ninth year as pastor of the church. The Rev. and Mrs. Harris came to St. Louis from Longmont, Colo.

"TRUE STORY"—

How a Lady Who Lives on Signal Hill* Began Trading—At LYNN'S

1. She Saw Lynn's Inviting Free Parking Lot.

Located next to the store, this was naturally the first attraction. Their lot is concrete, and is enclosed by a high cyclone fence and large enough to park approximately 200 cars.

2. She Was Delighted with the Air-Conditioned Coolness of the Store.

Lynn's air-conditioning serves a double purpose. It keeps their foods fresh and their customers free from the wilting effect of Summer heat.

3. She Shopped in the Various Departments with Ease and Comfort.

Lynn's have 12 complete food departments. Each unit has an individual manager and represents a store within a store, with each unit functioning in harmony and co-operation with the other.

4. She Left Purchases With Department Clerk Who Carried Them to Checking Dept.

You needn't carry your packages around with you at Lynn's. Just leave them with the department clerk who delivers them to checking department where they are assembled for you.

5. She Followed Clerk Who Carried Packages to Car—and She Was Ready to Drive Away!

Of course this person has become not only a steady customer but also a booster. She has told three of her friends about Lynn's and their combined purchases now amount to more than $200 per month. If you wish to enjoy a happy experience—pay Lynn's a visit.

NEWSPAPER GUILD CONVENTION IN CITY

Fourth Annual Meeting of Editorial Workers Opens Tomorrow at Statler.

The fourth annual convention of the American Newspaper Guild, trade union organization of editorial department workers, will open tomorrow at Hotel Statler and continue through Friday.

About 150 delegates, representing the Guild's 10,000 members, are expected to attend. Newspapermen from most of the principal cities of the country will be present.

Principal issues to be considered at the convention are the proposed affiliation of the Guild with the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization and the organization of newspaper "white collar" workers in departments other than editorial.

The international executive board of the Guild, which is to meet today at the Statler, is prepared to recommend C I O affiliation. Less than a year ago the Guild affiliated with the American Federation of Labor which has suspended C I O unions.

Officers are to be elected at the final meeting of the convention Friday. Heywood Broun, New York columnist, has been president of the Guild since it was organized.

EFFORT TO BALANCE SYMPHONY BUDGET

Accumulated Deficit of $34,800 Anticipated by End of Next Season.

A new attendance record was established by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra last season when 204,000 attended its concerts, yet proceeds from ticket sales and season subscriptions covered little more than half of the orchestra's expenses.

Oliver F. Richards, treasurer of the Symphony Society, said yesterday $120,773 was withdrawn from its maintenance fund for the support of the orchestra during the season. The orchestra's earned income was $145,309.

Indications were, Richards said, that earnings next year would fall $124,000 short of expenses, although there is but $109,000 remaining in the maintenance fund. The anticipated deficit for next year, added to the accumulated deficit of $19,895 from prior years, would make the total deficit at the end of next season $34,895.

Seeks to Raise Funds.

A small committee with George Spearl and W. Geoffrey Kimball as chairmen has been named to call on friends of the orchestra who are not now subscribers in an effort to raise additional funds to bring the budget into balance.

"Despite the large increase in attendance at the Symphony concerts, we still have a difficult financial problem to meet," Richards said. "The improved quality of the concerts from year to year is reflected in an increasing budget, while the orchestra's earned income does not increase in proportion. We emphasize that the orchestra is managed with the strictest economy, keeping in view the high quality of performance which our audiences demand, and we have proceeded with plans for next season whihc insure an improved orchestra and concerts of the finest quality."

Production Expense Chief Item.

Eighty-five per cent of the society's budget is for production expenses alone, including salaries of musicians and other direct production charges. Earned income, including receipts of all concerts given at home and on tour, covers 55 per cent of the annual budget, leaving the balance to be supplied by contributions showing in comparison with other American orchestras, several of which produced anual earnings of only 35 per cent, Richards said. Only the orchestras of Boston, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago show a higher percentage of earnings than the St. Louis organization.

Attendance at the orchestra's regular weekly concerts, the Ballet Russe performances, and the pension fund concert last season totaled 107,000. The 32 concerts given during its tour of mid-Western cities were attended by 68,000, and 29,000 school children heard the nine educational concerts presented in St. Louis.

Rosati-Kain Alumnae Dance.

A dinner dance will be given by the Rosati-Kain Alumnae Association at Norwood Hills Country Club Thursday night. Dinner will be for members of the association, but the dance is open to friends of the alumnae. Guests of honor will be 125 members of the class. Miss Mary Helmer, president of the alumnae ,is in charge of the party, and will be assisted by Mrs. A. B. Harrington, Mrs. John R. Kelly, Miss Mary Dorsey, Miss Mary Frances Denny, Miss ary Eileen Flood, Miss Mary Travers Walsh, Miss Lillie Molumby, Miss Clare Redmond and Miss Jeanne Marion.

Jarvis Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jarvis, 402 Tuxedo avenue, Webster Groves, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary last Sunday with a reception given in their honor by Mrs. L. R. Sante and Mrs. E. Anne Jarvis at the former's home, 308 Orchard avenue in Webster. Mrs. Thomas Jarvis wore her white satin wedding gown in which she was married 25 years ago.

Alpha Delta Pi Dance.

Alumnae members of the University of Missouri chapter of Alpha Delta Pi sorority will sponsor an informal dance on the terrace of Norwood Hills Country Club, Wednesday, from 9 to 1 o'clock. Seventy-five alumnae with their guests will be present. The hostesses will be Miss Jane Deutman, Miss Virginia Johnson and Miss Bernice Friese.

SCOUT JAMBOREE POST TO ST. LOUISAN

Carl H. Laemmle Named Director of Pageant for National Encampment.

Carl H. Laemmle, Boy Scout field executive for South and Pioneer districts of the St. Louis council, has been appointed director of the pagent and circus area in the National Scout Jamboree, which will be held in Washington, D. C., June 25 to July 9.

Another executive of the local council, Merle D. Shippey, camping director, will serve as quartermaster for troops representing region eight in the jamboree. He will have charge of food and other supplies for scouts from Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming.

An announcement at council headquarters yesterday said that enrollment of members for three St. Louis troops to attend the national jamboree was being completed rapidly. If any places remain in the troops after this week they will be filled by scouts from other parts of the region.

In addition to the three troops St. Louis will be represented by the World Jamboree Troop, the national sea scout flagship Polaris and by a special sea scout ship, St. Louis.

The annual Cub-Dad week-end at Camp Irondale will end today, the 300 younger boys and their fathers returning to St. Louis tonight on the special train which took them to camp yesterday afternoon.

The program today will include church services in the morning, swimming, baseball and other sports in the afternoon. Last night the campers engaged in a treasure hunt and held a camp fire program.

The Rev. George C. Hilke, S. J., chairman of the athletic council of St. Louis University, will be director of athletics at Camp Irondale this summer and chaplain of Catholic scouts. The Rev. Verne H. Warner of Eden Seminary will serve as chaplain for the Protestant scouts.

Seventeen troops have registered for a week's camping this summer at Lion's Den, the council's short term camp at Seckman, Mo. The program has been arranged so that troops may spend a six-day period at the camp at small cost. The director will be H. Max Nusser.

Scouts Robert Sunkel, Walter Schlenker and Roger Steiglitz were advanced to life scout rank last week by their troop, No. 68, Mt. Pleasant School. Scout Ted Wagner of Troop 52, Woodward School, will receive star insignia at a court of honor of his troop Friday.

JOHN R. DUNLAP, EDITOR, DIES

Published Engineering and Scientific Books; Age 80.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—John Robertson Dunlap, 80 years old, editor and publisher of engineering and scientific books and magazines, died today at the New York Athletic Club where he lived.

From 1884 to 1887 he was president and general manager of the Louisville (Ky.) Daily Commercial. Since then he had established many magazines in the engineering field in New York. He was the author of more than 40 volumes on management problems, and during the 1920s was chairman of the board of the Engineering Magazine Co., which later merged with the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co.

MOVE FOR SAINTHOOD FOR S. AMERICAN NEGRO

Chicago Priest Going to Peru to Investigate Claims for the Blessed Martin.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Father Norbert F. Georges of Chicago was ready today to start for Lima, Peru, to investigate the life of the Blessed Martin de Porres, Negro candidate for canonization as a saint of the Roman Catholic Church.

The Peruvian Government has formerly requested the Vatican to recognize the Blessed Martin as Peru's second native saint. St. Rose of Lima, who died in 1617 and was canonized in 1671, is the only native of the new world so honored by the Catholic church.

Two years ago, Father Georges, sub-prior of the Dominican house of studies in River Forest, started a campaign which attracted thousands to the cause of the Blessed Martin's canonization. The Chicago priest will be aided in his investigation by a staff of Government librarians who will assist in testing the authenticity of miraculous happenings attributed to De Porres.

The Negro candidate was a Dominican lay brother who won renown during the Spanish conquest. He died in Lima 300 years ago and was beatified, a preliminary step toward canonization, a century ago.

Father Georges said the Blessed Martin was the illegitimate son of a Spanish nobleman and a Negro woman of Panama. The father disowned him and apprenticed him to a barber-surgeon. The boy studied medicine and became a noted physician. He joined the Dominican order at the age of 22.

The Congregation of Rites in Rome, which will pass on the canonization, may also investigate the candidate's life through the Dominicans.

Luncheon at College Club.

The first of the sumer luncheons at the St. Louis College Club will be given at the club house, 5428 Delmar boulevard, Tuesday at 12:30 p. m. Mrs. Samuel Scott of New York, formerly of St. Louis will discuss the current season of the Municipal Opera.

Japanese Children Hold Funeral for 'Dead' Dolls

Thousands Participate in Solemn Buddhist Services in Tokio, Chanting Sutras and Burning Incense to Broken Toys.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, June 5.—Thousands of Japanese children took part today in solemn Buddhist funeral ceremonies for the "departed spirits" of some 12,000 dolls which have "died" in the past year.

While the children stood in front of long tables on which the shattered remains of their dolls lay, Buddhist abbots and priests chanted sutras and burned Japanese incense and a chorus of small girls sang the "Song of the Dolls" as a requiem.

The scene was the children's doll hospital, a widely known Tokio institution. The departed were dolls the hospital had found beyond repair.

The service is an annual affair based on the Buddhist belief that even inanimate things contain "seeds of life" and are capable of attaining prfect Buddhahood.

Awaiting burial in tiny graves, the broken dolls—a pathetic collection of broken heads, limbless trunks and mutilated evidences of childish play — had placed before them offerings of fruit, candy cakes and flowers.

The "service" was read by Dr. Tetsuji Nishiyama, head of the school which maintains the doll hospital and professor of ethics at Toyo University.

For a foreign observer Dr. Nishiyama explained the ceremony:

"In Japan children are taught to love all things which give them pleasure. Japan is a land of dolls, and Japanese children may be proud of this heritage, which comes to them from ancient times. For nearly 2000 years dolls have been the intimate companion of our little girls, who love them and regard them as living beings. That is why when they are broken beyond repair we bury them with the honors accorded human beings. May their spirits rest in peace and may their little owners be comforted by this service of farewell."

He said that dolls, as the world knows them, originated in Japan during the reign of the Emperor Suijin, about 1900 years ago. Before Suijin it was the custom that when a great lord died his retainers were killed and buried with him. Suijin once was shocked to hear the wailing of retainers doomed to such a death and decreed that thenceforth there should be buried with the master only clay figures of his followers. The transition to dolls was natural. Japanese archeologists recently have unearthed many of the original dolls.

LORD KYLSANT, WHO SERVED PRISON TERM FOR FRAUD, DIES

British Shipping Man a Member of Parliament Many Years; No Heir to Title.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 5.—Baron Kylsant of Carmarthen, one time "Napoleon of shipping" who served a prison term for fraud, died today at his home in Coomb, in Oxfordshire. He was 75 years old.

Lord Kylsant, who became a Baron in 1923 and was for many years a member of the House of Commons ,was convicted June 30, 1931, of publishing a false prospectus in connection with the issue of debenture stock by the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co., of which he was chairman. He was sentenced to a year in prison.

His trial at the old Bailey excited the British public as few such cases in recent years.

There was no heir to his title.

CIRCUIT CLERK REVISES METHOD ON FEE BILLS

H. Sam Priest Expects to Improve Collections; $1,000,000 in Delinquencies.

Revision of office methods expected to improve collections of current fee bills in Circuit Court and reduce the amount of delinquent bills, estimated at $1,000,000, was described by Circuit Clerk H. Sam Priest in his annual report to the Court yesterday. He did not estimate how much of the old accounts might be collectible.

The clerk related that installation of his modernized accounting system replaced a lax method whereby, he said, hundreds of persons who had signed as security for court costs made no payments. He took office in January, 1935.

He also outlined a change in the method of assigning suits for trial, intended to eliminate widespread dissatisfaction. Trial dockets, under the change, are made up in blocks of 250. Assignment clerks, after checking the status of these cases, notify counsel of intended settings and the lawyers' replies guide the final arrangement. This system is regarded as preventing dockets from becoming "frozen."

Other office improvements reported by Priest were: Establishment of a central file department; charting of the duties of his 80 deputies, to prevent inefficiency and overlapping, and installation of an information desk.

There were 646 cases tried before juries in 1936, in which judgments of $2,753,759 were sought and verdicts for $909,769 were rendered. In 1935 there were 718 such cases, seeking $3,506,811, with verdicts for $1,400,778. Suits filed in 1936 numbered 8872, including 4185 paying damages aggregating $27,403,671; 3556 divorce cases, 27 receiverships and 1104 other equity suits. In 1933 there were 9142 suits filed.

The Court granted 2716 divorces last year and denied one; issued 308 permits to acquire revolvers or pistols; ordered 34 changes of name; enrolled 104 new lawyers, and entered 795 garnishments. Receipts for the year were $184,414, or 1.6 per cent less than the previous year, and disbursements were $182,834. The surplus of $1579 went to the city treasury.

Graduate of Soldan.

Ben Levine was born in St. Louis. He graduated from Soldan High School in 1932. While there he played football and was on the track team. In 1936 he finished a three and a half year course in aeronautics at Hadley Vocational School. At Hadley he was a member of the championship school rifle team.

When he had finished school, Ben Levine tried unsuccessfully to get a job at the Lambert-St. Louis Airport. He went to work in the Emerson electric plant on Washington avenue and later worked for the Wagner Electric Corporation in St. Louis County. At the Emerson company he was one of the founders of the United Electrical and Radio Workers' union and at the Wagner factory he was a union shop steward.

Levine was a member of the Y. M. H. A. and of the Diablos club there. He played in the club dramatic society and in the club orchestra, and in addition was active in sports and social affairs. During this time he lived at home with his mother and father and a younger brother, Maurisse, who will graduate from Soldan High School this year. According to them, his major interest was in aeronautical work and when he found it impossible to obtain any here he determined to try his luck in Europe, leaving early this spring. It was soon after he arrived in Europe that his parents learned he had joined the International Brigade of the Spanish Government. At present he is attached to the Transport Division of the Abraham Lincoln battalion, a unit which is made up of American volunteers.

Many Nations Represented.

"There are about 400 of us here at this town, about 200 Americans and 200 Germans, Italians, Czechs, Argentines, Swedes, and Spaniards. We are quartered in buildings that Napoleon used when he was here. We are treated swell, all officers and men alike, and the spirit is a sight to behold. The salute here is the clenched fist of the Popular Front and to see the entire column give it while on the march is something I haven't words to describe!"

Later he wrote:

"The entire column eats, drinks and sleeps anti-Fascist sentiments, if you know what I mean," and he continues, "What I have heard of the beauty of Spanish women has been entirely understated. I saw more beautiful girls here in two hours than I saw in a whole day in Paris, and all of them, also, are emphatically anti-Fascist."

The next letter came from a hospital "somewhere in Spain."

After explaining that he was not wounded, Ben Levine writes, "I am here because my eyes were giving me trouble. I contracted an eye infection and for a while I couldn't even see. Due to the splendid care the doctors and nurses take of me I can write now and in a few days will be able to

When he had finished school, Ben Levine tried unsuccessfully to get a job at the Lambert-St. Louis Airport. He went to work in the Emerson electric plant on Washington avenue and later worked for the Wagner Electric Corporation in St. Louis County. At the Emerson company he was one of the founders of the United Electrical and Radio Workers' union and at the Wagner factory he was a union shop steward.

Levine was a member of the Y. M. H. A. and of the Diablos club there. He played in the club dramatic society and in the club orchestra, and in addition was active in sports and social affairs. During this time he lived at home with his mother and father and a younger brother, Maurisse, who will graduate from Soldan High School this year. According to them, his major interest was in aeronautical work and when he found it impossible to obtain any here he determined to try his luck in Europe, leaving early this spring. It was soon after he arrived in Europe that his parents learned he had joined the International Brigade of the Spanish Government. At present he is attached to the Transport Division of the Abraham Lincoln battalion, a unit which is made up of American volunteers.

Many Nations Represented.

"There are about 400 of us here at this town, about 200 Americans and 200 Germans, Italians, Czechs, Argentines, Swedes, and Spaniards. We are quartered in buildings that Napoleon used when he was here. We are treated swell, all officers and men alike, and the spirit is a sight to behold. The salute here is the clenched fist of the Popular Front and to see the entire column give it while on the march is something I haven't words to describe!"

Later he wrote:

"The entire column eats, drinks and sleeps anti-Fascist sentiments, if you know what I mean," and he continues, "What I have heard of the beauty of Spanish women has been entirely understated. I saw more beautiful girls here in two hours than I saw in a whole day in Paris, and all of them, also, are emphatically anti-Fascist."

The next letter came from a hospital "somewhere in Spain."

After explaining that he was not wounded, Ben Levine writes, "I am here because my eyes were giving me trouble. I contracted an eye infection and for a while I couldn't even see. Due to the splendid care the doctors and nurses take of me I can write now and in a few days will be able to go back to the post and continue to teach the officers how to drive cars in four different languages.

Drivers in Demand.

"You know that a driver, truck or otherwise, is worth his weight in gold here. Good drivers come from, of all places, the U. S. A. and England. The Spaniards can't drive and if in a small town you lift the hood of your truck you have a large audience in about nothing flat. You are considered a miracle worker.

"It looks as though I am due to watch this scrap from the rear lines, as my commandant thinks I am too valuable to go to the front. All that I've been doing is to translate German commands into English, drive a truck and car, use the typewriter, clean and repair some rifles. Around here you wouldn't even know there was a war on if it wasn't for the papers and the army training and posters all over the place.

"Here at the hospital we have a variety of cases but the one foremost in my mind is that of an 11-year-old youngster I call Shorty. He was injured by a bomb fragment which penetrated his chest and he has been here for eight weeks. Honestly, it makes me mad enough to bite nails.

"There are several American nurses here. I suppose you have seen a picture in the papers of the little Negro nurse who is over here. She is in the same hospital that I am in."

On the back of this letter were two notes. One read: "Hello, friends in America. Don't worry, your friend is being well taken care of." It was signed, "An American Nurse, R. W." The other said, "Greetings from an American Nurse in Spain—R. H."

In the Front Lines.

Ben Levine was not destined to remain far behind the front lines for very long. His next two letters tell of more warlike experiences One written on April 24 and 25 begins with the word, "Salud!"

"The above word," he explains, "is the new greeting of Spain. It takes the place of 'Buenos Dias,' 'Hello,' 'Good-by,' etc. It means more to the people of Spain than I could ever explain. It's given with the Popular Front salute (the raised clenched fist) and it is used everywhere. As you pass through any town the people, from tiny tots to octogenarians, all raise their hands and call, 'Salud, Comarados.' It is magnificent to watch—and it is even more stirring to be a part of!

"As I write this I hear the guns from the front lines answering the Fascists and driving them back. The very ground on which I stand (or lie) was in the Fascist lines two weeks ago. They lost 24 kilometers in three days and left all sorts of things around, shells, hand grenades, boxes, etc. All the writing on them is in German.

"I believe that the next two or three months will be decisive in this scrap and I have no doubt of the outcome. In fact we are superior. In the air and on the land we are gaining everywhere. Hitler and Mussolini sure received a set-back when they tried to start something here." At this point the letter stops. He added a few lines later.

The International Brigade.

"In just about two days I shall be 21 years of age. I can think of no greater or better gift than to be in a proletarian army fight-

"Boss" Pendergast Back on the Job

Missouri's Most Powerful Politician Recovered From Long, Serious Illness—Calling on Him Is Like Visiting a Potentate.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 2.

THOMAS J. PENDERGAST is on the job again, although only a few months ago some of his closest friends felt that he could never be more than nominally the head of his powerful political organization because of his protracted illness.

But the political boss of the State has so greatly improved in health that he has taken personal direction of every important development affecting his organization. Except that much of the detail work is taken care of by James M. Pendergast, his nephew and liaison officer, he is pursuing a system similar to that adhered to prior to his grave illness of last summer and fall.

Pendergast today looks and acts like a well man, although he chafes under a rigorous diet and must avoid undue strain or exertion. His color is good; his step firm; he has gained back much of the weight lost during months of hospitalization. Besides attending to his political duties, which include preparation for the important city election to be held here next spring, he supervises the exercising of his race horses at a nearby track and is making plans for his summer vacation. He retires early each evening, looks forward to daily quiet hours at his home with his wife and children.

Lost Weight but No Power

THOMAS J. PENDERGAST—A Recent Pose.

Routine of Receiving Visitors At Office Highly Developed.

Nor does he neglect his many private business interests. He keeps the salient details of his cement, distillery, and other businesses literally at his finger tips. His political activities, however, always his absorbing interest, are facilitated by the aid of his nephew and a highly developed routine of receiving visitors at his own office.

For his office, attached to the headquarters of the Jackson Democratic Club, on the second floor at 1908 Main street, is more than ever the mecca of the politically ambitious. Up the narrow stairway to the anterooms trudge job-holders of high and low degree, would-be job-holders, political lieutenants, proponents of this or of that, hoping to catch the ear of the "big boss."

One thing they have in common, be the visitor a suave lawyer or a rugged member of the rank and file, down on his luck. All of them want something. Some of them get it. Some of them don't. Most go away smiling, for Pendergast practices today one of his favorite maxims, "You can catch more flies with sugar than you can with salt."

Not All Who Try to See Boss Admitted to the Presence.

Not all who venture there are able to see the big boss. The time has long since past when it is physically possible or practical for Pendergast to begin "meeting the line" at 6 a. m. and keep it up most of the day. Now he receives only during certain hours on specified days each week.

Pendergast himself talks only to those whose problems he desires to attend to personally or who are involved in matters in which he is directly interested. Others are taken care of by his nephew and still others are disposed of by secretaries. But everything is done in the name of the Pendergast organization. Its door is always open. Its main voting reliance comes from "the poor of the city."

Most of those who confer with Pendergast today have taken the precaution to arrange appointments in advance. Others must run the gamut of secretaries and other attaches before they may even be announced. Such a system is necessary for the efficient running of an office that is the political nerve center of the State.

The Outer and the Inner Waiting Rooms for Visitors.

Going to see the boss is no haphazard matter. The caller is subject to as deft and smooth a routine as surrounds captains of industry or any high national official. Muscular attaches often stand vigilantly on the sidewalk when the boss is in residence. Others may patrol the upstairs corridor outside of the anterooms.

Ordinarily, the visitor has hardly paused for breath at the top of the steps when he is approached by a member of the organization. Courteously, he is asked to state his business. If he says that he has an appointment with Pendergast he is invited to a seat in an outer waiting room, lined with straight chairs and benches, while his questioner consults with the secretary to the boss.

If that consultation discloses that the visitor has, indeed, an appointment he is ushered into an inner waiting room where sit the chosen few who are about to be ushered into the presence of the boss. In one corner of this room is a desk and a telephone. By it is seated Pendergast's personal secretary, a man of marvelous memory, a mind for detail, a photographic recollection of names and faces. Another secretary may stand in the doorway between the inner and outer waiting rooms.

Shadows on Door Watched to Save Time for Pendergast.

Emissaries from the outside occasionally appear, whisper tersely to the secretaries, quickly depart. On one side of the waiting room is a door leading to the office of J. M. Pendergast. On the other side are two steps, the threshold of the office of T. J. Pendergast. The upper part of his office door is of glass, through which may be caught the shadow of visitors about to depart.

The secretaries are quick to glimpse the shadow, hurry to the portal ready to catch the word of the boss and usher the next caller in without loss of a second.

When the door opens everyone stiffens up. There is a tension in the air, communicated to the outer room as the hearty voice of the boss says good-by to the departing guest and welcomes the next caller. Sometimes it is raised in anger, sending a shiver of apprehension along the spines of certain applicants, but such an occasion is comparatively rare today. In days gone by, the boss was more prone to an exhibition of his feelings. He is milder now, noticeably more temperate.

Sometimes Pendergast will say, "No, No. I want to see so-and-so now." The visitor so quickly summoned passes hurriedly inside the private office attended by the envious or speculative gazes of the others.

Private Office of the Boss Inexpensively Furnished.

The private office of the boss is small, neatly and inexpensively furnished, carpeted in green, arranged in excellent taste. Venetian blinds, installed in a recent renovation of the office, shade the windows. A few ornaments, including a shillalah brought from Ireland from a neighbor, are on top of a polished desk. A calendar memorandum pad, covered with cryptic notations, is close by the swivel chair in which Pendergast is wont to sit. Arrangements have been made so that Pendergast may reach his office by elevator, avoiding the stiff climb up the stairs.

Business is transacted quickly, but not brusquely. Pendergast has the faculty of going to the heart of a matter. He has no time or inclination for irrelevant details. He is not ambiguous. He either gives an immediate decision or indicates when he will do so.

Leaning forward in his chair, he listens intently to everything his caller may have to say. When he has obtained the gist of it, he may interrupt with a wave of the hand; then he will pronounce his opinion or judgment. Sometimes he desires information. He is a past master at obtaining it.

Suave, Carefully Dressed and as Ever, Hard to Fool.

Some of those who come to him bring him false information, or information which they think would be pleasing. Seldom is he fooled. Fifty years of practical politics has enabled him to separate the wheat from the chaff. He is quick to spot the self-seeker, is amused sometimes by those who try to curry favor by hastening to him with newspaper clippings concerning the activities or the various matters affecting the organization.

Ordinarily urbane, meticulously dressed in conservative suits, Pendergast is all things to all men. His organization, he has told the writer, may be likened to a metropolis consisting of the "rich and the poor, the strong and the weak, the good and the bad."

There is a place for everyone. And if Pendergast has an administrative fault, his friends say, it is that of yielding to a personal plea and extending clemency or aid to some who do not deserve it.

This much may be said: No one, regardless of his political faith or attitude toward machine politics, may meet Pendergast and talk to him without becoming aware of a warm, verile personality which is one of the sources of his power.

Vote Fraud Inquiry Biggest Jolt in History.

He needs all the power of his personality now, for his organization has suffered the biggest jolt in its history through the Federal investigation of election frauds in Kansas City. Previous inquiries, official and unofficial, had been barren of results but this time precinct after precinct is yielding evidence of election stealing.

Federal grand juries have indicted 126 precinct officials and party workers from five of the city's 16 wards. It is anticipated that another grand jury, now in session, may return indictments from other wards. A citywide investigation still is in progress.

Fewer than half of those under indictment have been tried but in the eight trials held thus far in United States District Court there have been no acquittals and 41 convictions. The jury was unable to agree as to three defendants in the first trial. They are subject to trial again.

More than 20 men and one woman have been sentenced to Federal prisons, jail terms have been given others, some, who pleaded guilty or pleaded "no contest" and testified for the Government have been put on probation.

Basis of Appeals.

Their only hope of escaping serving their sentences lies in appeals before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals which may be decided in October. The appeals are based on technical grounds pertinent to the application of the Federal statute which protects a citizen in the exercise of his rights. It is contended also that conspiracy was not technically established.

But no attempt has been made to explain away the overwhelming evidence of every type of election fraud including stuffed ballot boxes, false returns, erased and switched ballots, bold intimidation at the polls. In almost every case defense attorneys have freely admitted State election laws were grossly violated; have been forced to fall back on the technical defense that the Federal charge of conspiracy to deprive a citizen of his rights through corruption of the ballot was not sustained.

In the face of this situation the organization, whatever its leaders may think of the tactics employed by the rank and file and sub-executives, must take care of its own. The best of legal talent has been personally recruited by J. M. Pendergast. Bail has been provided, funds furnished to pay for the appeals.

No move has been made to insti-

Secret Broadcasts in Europe Defy Dictators' Efforts to Rule Radio, Historian Ferrero Says

Elusive Rebel Outwits State Control—Meantime Official Propaganda Makes Air Waves Instrument of War.

BY GUGLIELMO FERRERO.
(Exiled Italian Historian.)

(Copyright, 1937.)

GENEVA, June 5.

IN SPITE of all its difficulties, the United States is still a happy country, because it lies outside what might be called the war zone. As a consequence, the radio there serves but to inform, instruct and amuse the public.

It is quite otherwise in Europe, which lives, as it has done for centuries, at permanent war, external war and civil war. The radio in Europe has rapidly transformed itself into an instrument of war.

The radio in Europe, as is known, is everywhere a State monopoly. The State in each country has organized it and made it function. Broadcasts of political information are everywhere official manifestations.

To have an idea of the hateful tension which today dominates the relations between European States, one should not read the speeches of statesmen nor the articles of newspapers, but rather listen every evening to the broadcast communications emanating from Rome, Paris, London, Berlin and Moscow.

Battle of Air Waves.

Every evening it is a kind of battle fought through space, with news, commentaries and electric wave-lengths as shot and shell.

Each night Moscow attacks Germany and Italy.

Rome and Berlin retaliate with the same energy, presenting all that occurs in Russia under the most unfavorable light.

Neither are the German and Italian radios more gentle with the democracies in general, and especially with France and England.

The Italian stations implacably ridicule England and discredit France, depicting her as a finished country soon to disappear amid revolutionary upheavals.

The German radio is more circumspect toward England, but does not spare France.

What a speaker has said concerning the politics of such and such a State over the radio, cannot be established by any official document. Governments can, therefore, be more sincere, broadcast sincerity being less dangerous. That is why the radio is a much more precise indicator of the true state of international relations than the press.

But the radio has not only become an instrument of war with European states; it is in process of becoming in Europe, a powerful weapon for political struggles and civil wars.

In Germany and in Italy, everything is severely controlled by the Government—the telegraph, telephone, the post, news agencies, and the printing of newspapers.

An Elusive Rebel.

Radio is an elusive little rebel. It is a breach opened in the great Chinese wall of governmental control that seeks to isolate the dictatorial countries from the world.

First, there are the foreign radios of the free countries—France and England, for example; or of hostile countries—Russia and Spain—which supply information even on events that the dictatorial countries wish to conceal.

One may evidently, in a certain measure, disturb the invisible wave-lengths that traverse space, but it is more difficult to interrupt them completely.

This has been seen in Italy and Germany during the critical moments of the Spanish War. In spite of all the efforts made by the two Governments to prevent one from getting the French, English, Russian, and Spanish wave-lengths, the Italian and German public succeeded sufficiently well to know what had taken place.

A Mysterious Broadcast.

But there is something more. For some months, each night at 11 o'clock, a mysterious wave-length traverses space, bringing to all the countries of Europe information and comments constituting a methodical and very virulent propaganda against Fascism and Nazism. It is the 29-meter wave-length, as it is called.

Where does it come from? No one knows.

The most varied rumors are current. Some claim that the transmitting station is in Russia, others place it in Spain. There are some who are sure that it lies in Alsace, on the border of Germany. And there are even those who assert—what seems very improbable to me—that it is a secret station within Germany.

In truth, nobody knows whence come these waves. But each night, at 11 o'clock, in Italy and Germany, in the towns and in the country, millions of people anxiously seek this wave-length which diffuses itself through the immensity of space, and strive to get it in order to learn what their Governments are hiding from them.

The attempt does not always succeed, but sometimes it does. The wave-length speaks now in Italian, now in German, and what it relates or advises penetrates disquieted minds hungry for news.

It is therefore not surprising that the totalitarian governments are beginning to concern themselves seriously with this new enemy, whom they had not suspected of meeting in their path.

They are making earnest attempts to subjugate the radio and submit it to their absolute control, as they have subjugated and submitted the telegraph, telephone, and the press to their absolute control.

Will they succeed? It is the secret of the future.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

In Behalf of Inland Waterway Transport.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Shipping Act, as you probably know, specifically states that rivers and canals are not eligible as navigable waters to obtain Government loans. The paradox is thus presented of Congress spending over $400,000,000 to improve the Missouri, Illinois and Upper Mississippi rivers, but refusing financial aid (low interest rates) to provide the boats to use the rivers after the rehabilitation program has been completed.

Savings banks, insurance companies and other institutional investors have their money tied up in railroad securities, and, as such, are antagonistic toward competitive developments. As a consequence, the inland operator has no source for obtaining capital except from the Government.

Many well remember the hectic days of 1918 and 1919 when it required three weeks to transport, by railroad, a car of flour from St. Louis to the Atlantic seaboard. Due to the transportation breakdown, it was necessary for the Government to take over control of the railroads. Shortly thereafter, there was a vertical rise in freight rates. Subsequently, upon return of the railroads to their corporate owners, there was another vertical rise in freight rates; the two advances aggregating approximately 75 per cent. This was during the year 1921, and that time corresponds with the beginning of the farm problem.

Finally, the crash came in 1932, when there was a complete collapse in the price of agricultural produce. Although Kansas wheat had dropped to the unprecedented level of 30 cents per bushel, coupled with a carry-over of 400,000,000 bushels, railroad rates remained frozen at peak levels. The same bushel which paid a railway freight rate of 21 cents, Salina to Chicago, was, upon delivery to the lake steamer at Chicago, transported to Buffalo, a third greater distance than the railroad haul, for only 1½ cents per bushel. In other words, the lake carrier performed its part of the affreightment service at a cost only 1-12 of that of its railway contemporary.

Congress, in its refusal to extend shipping loans to the inland river lines, delivered a mortal blow to the agricultural communities lying in the basin of the Mississippi River and its tributaries.

The City of Chicago, the State of Illinois and the Federal Government have thus far expended approximately $110,000,000 in connecting Lake Michigan with the Mississippi River. Obviously, the purpose of this huge outlay—apart from providing an outlet for Chicago's sewerage—was to make transportation cheaper and assist in upbuilding the Mississippi Valley; particularly so since the Central states were placed at such competitive disadvantages as a consequence of building the Panama Canal.

It is an economic waste to load 300,000 bushels of grain into a nondescript type of barge at St. Louis, and again transship into lake steamer at Chicago at an elevation cost of $3750. The character of improvements on the Illinois River is such as to warrant the use of an entirely different type of boat than those now employed. Henry Ford has conclusively demonstrated that combination motorships can be successfully used on the lakes and rivers. Today there are nearing completion at the Great Lakes Engineering Works, Detroit, two motorships, 300 feet by 43 feet 6 inches by 20 feet (molded depth) adapted for transporting automobile parts from Detroit to Chester, Pa. Such ships would carry a bushel of wheat from St. Louis to Buffalo at an average rate of 5 cents per bushel, or approximately half the existing rate.

Instead of paying subsidies to "bolster up" ships to operate in the foreign trade, as now proposed by the Maritime Commission, and serving no economic purpose, obviously the nation's transportation requirements would be better served by investing this money in domestic shipping through the medium of loans (not subsidies) for upbuilding the inland merchant marine.

When Kid McCoy Met Billy Stifft.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR sports editor writes of the fight between Kid McCoy and Billy Stifft at the old Coliseum. The day of the fight, Stifft had a death in his family and Billy asked the Kid not to mark him up too much, as he wished to attend the funeral. McCoy stepped around Billy like a cooper around a barrel, Billy doing all the leading and McCoy countering once in a while. The crowd started to ride the Kid.

Then it happened. More than half of the customers did not even see which hand McCoy used for the knockout, but the blow raised Billy from the floor. Then, when Bill hit the canvas, McCoy walked away to his corner and never looked back. After the count of 10, they carried Billy to the dressing room, and then the crowd cheered for the artist, the master-workman.

McCoy says he used the corkscrew punch, but the crowd did not agree on which hand the Kid had used, and poor Billy never knew what hit him. He was out for two hours. But Bill did attend the funeral in Chicago the next day.

THE FRAMING OF THE CONSTITUTION.

One hundred and fifty years ago this summer, the Constitution of the United States was framed by the delegates to the Philadelphia convention, called to revise the failing Articles of Confederation. That great news event went unreported, as its sessions were secret. In observance of the sesquicentennial, the Post-Dispatch will print on this page on Sundays and Wednesdays throughout the summer semi-weekly news letters such as the gazette readers of 1787 might have read if the information later obtained from Madison's journal, the letters of various delegates to friends at home and other sources had been reported in modern news style by the "intelligence" writers of a century and a half ago.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 5, 1787—The convention of delegates assembled in the State House here for the purpose of strengthening the Articles of Confederation is making rapid progress toward an end which has been greatly enlarged. It is still less than two weeks since organization was perfected, and yet the convention, acting as a committee of the whole, has approved the idea of a "national Government" and has taken long strides toward carrying out the idea.

George Washington, late commander of the Revolutionary Army, and delegate from Virginia, who was unanimously elected president of the convention on its opening day, May 25, is no longer in the chair, having stepped down five days ago when the delegates resolved themselves into a committee of the whole. Gen. Washington was succeeded in the chair by Delegate Nathaniel Gorham of Massachusetts, lately president of the Congress of the Confederation, who was chosen chairman of the committee of the whole by ballot.

Since resolving themselves into a committee of the whole, the delegates have proceeded to make up for the time lost between May 14, the date set for the opening of the convention, and May 25, when the belated arrival of the South Carolina delegation of four members, along with the arrival of two more delegates from New Jersey, established a quorum. The convention had no sooner begun to operate as a committee than it was confronted with as searching a question as could be put to it concerning the structure of the prospective government.

This problem was posed when Delegate Edmund Randolph of Virginia proposed that the convention should commit itself to the basic proposition that "a national Government ought to be established consisting of a supreme legislative, executive and judiciary." The implications of this plan were realized at once by the delegates, many of whom are against anything which might impair the independence of the 13 states, so recently freed from England by a long and costly war. Delegate Pierce Butler of South Carolina at once asked Delegate Randolph to "show that the existence of the states cannot be preserved by any other mode than a national Government." Delegates George Read of Delaware and Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts also expressed doubt as to the necessity or desirability of proceeding on the basis which the Virginian proposed.

Notwithstanding this opposition, the proposition carried when it was put to a vote. The Connecticut delegation was the only one opposed and that of New York the only one to cast a divided vote. It would be difficult to exaggerate the importance of this action, as it broadens the scope of the convention far beyond a mere revising of the Articles of Confederation and opens the way for the adoption of an entirely new form of government.

Other resolutions proposed by Delegate Randolph, calling for a "national Legislature" with two branches and the election by "the people of the several states" of the members of the "first branch," have also been approved. A two-chamber Legislature is in accordance with the practice in 11 states, only Pennsylvania and Georgia having one-chamber bodies. On the vote, only the Pennsylvania delegation opposed the two-chamber plan, and it is generally believed that this was in reality a friendly concession to the one-chamber preference of Dr. Benjamin Franklin, a member of that delegation and, at the age of 81, by many years the oldest delegate in attendance.

It appears that a division may result from the adoption of the proposal for popular election of the members of the "first chamber" of the national Legislature. For while the resolution carried, six states to two, with two other states opposed, signs of a fundamental difference of opinion are already showing. Delegates James Wilson and Gouverneur Morris of Pennsylvania and James Madison of Virginia, who favor a national Government, also favor election by the people. Delegate Gerry of Massachusetts may be said to represent those who oppose the national form and at the same time distrust the judgment of the people so completely that they would have all powers come from the state Legislatures.

What is probably the most important action taken thus far came with the adoption of Delegate Randolph's resolution to vest in the national Legislature the power "to legislate in all cases to which the separate states are incompetent or in which the harmony of the United States may be interrupted by the exercise of individual legislation." The fact that no state delegation dissented and that only Connecticut divided on the question reflects the widespread dissatisfaction with the lack of power of the Congress of the Confederation to legislate in the interests of all the states.

For the last several days, the delegates have been at work on the plan of the executive department. The proposal of Delegate Wilson for a "national executive to consist of a single person" has been approved, even though the delegates are agreed that an executive authority like that of King George III or his late Royal Governors must be prevented at all costs.

Opinion is divided on whether this executive should have absolute or limited veto power. Eight of the 13 State Constitutions vest the lawmaking power entirely in the hands of the legislators. But it is a matter of common knowledge that many Legislatures have passed unjust laws and the probability is that agreement will be in favor of a veto authority. Dr. Franklin is among those opposed to an absolute veto power for the executive. Delegate George Mason of Virginia declared, with much emphasis, that the granting of an absolute veto would create "a more dangerous monarchy, an elective one."

Just before this dispatch was prepared, the committee, on Delegate Gerry's motion, gave the executive a check upon laws, the Legislature to have the right to repass them over the veto by a two-thirds majority in each branch. With 10 states voting, only Maryland and Connecticut were opposed.

A variety of occupations are represented at the convention, among them farming, medicine, the law and trade. Many of the delegates have served in the Congress of the Confederation, while 20 or more are veterans of the Revolution. Altogether 74 men were nominated to attend by their state authorities, but the attendance is only about two-thirds that number. Rhode Island, the smallest of the states, is ignoring the proceedings. One of the amusing sidelights is the care with which younger delegates—and the average age is somewhere in the 40s—guard Dr. Franklin on his visits to the tavern after sessions for fear this kindly but talkative elder statesman will say more than he should to chance listeners.

DISASTER IS HIS DISH.

It was the lean and hungry Cassius who wanted to know "Upon what meat doth this our Caesar feed?" and, without pausing in his harangue, left the question dangling in mid-air, where it has hung from that dark, fateful day to this. And if his public has been wearIedly curious at times as to the provender of Dizzy Dean, the answer is now in the books. What Dizzy requires is trouble that makes the headlines scream.

For almost a week, the vicissitudes of Dizzy's fortune have vied with a royal romance and with enterprises of pith and moment, and more than held their own in the arbitrament of space and position. With pretty much the swagger of a tyrant, after the golden age had died, Ford Frick had ostracised Dizzy, given him hours to leave Athens, or, if you will, had indefinitely suspended our Aristides from the Field of the Cloth of Gold. This may be scrambling chronology and ceremony, but studious readers will get the idea all right, and is not that the true point and purpose of polemics? Of course it is.

All Dizzy needs is Jovian thunderbolts freighted with vultures to gnaw at his vitals while he, Prometheus-like, is chained to the rock. Such calamitous fare is beefsteak and fried onions for Dizzy. You see what it did for him. The artist of the mound had been performing like a dubster. Bingo, zingo, all around the ringo! Opposing teams had been making merry with Dizzy's reputed mystic service. But the sentence of exile having been pronounced and while the quicksands of oblivion were licking their chops and death beating on the drums, there stood Dizzy, one against the gods, and the gods weakened, and Dizzy was refranchised, and see what happened? Why, he stepped out and pitched his first top-form game since lilacs last in the dooryard bloomed.

Grief and headlines, and the star of Dizzy shines like blazes.

IRON COUNTY VOTES AGAINST A COURTHOUSE.

A third attempt to pass a bond issue for a new courthouse in Iron County, Mo., has failed. Proponents of the new courthouse may characterize its opponents as persons who have held back local development. The future may show them to have been, perhaps unwittingly, pioneers who blazed a trail for other counties to follow. County consolidation, such as Mr. Park recommended in his farewell message as Governor, is coming in Missouri. The growing awareness of the cost of local government will direct attention eventually to the unnecessary duplication of services at nearby county seats. Counties here and there will begin to merge. Operation costs will be reduced and services improved. Iron County may very well have followed the wise course in declining to invest in a new courthouse when the next decade may find counties consolidating and many unnecessary courthouses on the auction block, for sale to the highest bidder.

A PROPHET WITHOUT HONOR.

Michigan last year took a place in the front rank of the movement to introduce civil service into state government. This was the result of the exhaustive report on the problem and the model statute produced by a commission headed by Prof. James K. Pollock, professor of political science at the State university, appointed by former Gov. Fitzgerald and approved by his successor, Gov. Murphy. Michigan could save millions of dollars annually by adopting the merit system, it was stated. The statute was an iron-clad set of provisions for the reform.

So remarkably thorough was the job that other states at once took up the treatise and draft as a basis for their own reforms. The Tennessee, Arkansas, Maine and Connecticut Legislatures at their 1937 sessions passed laws based on the Michigan investigation. Five other states considered legislation after the Michigan model. Authorities on government throughout the nation sang its praises. But what has happened in Michigan? The bill has been in a House committee pigeonhole for months, with hope ebbing daily that it will be passed.

Public-minded citizens of Michigan doubtless have been reflecting in recent weeks on the scriptural words: "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country, and in his own house."

THAT NEW ORLEANS RAID.

In a raid on an alleged Red bookstore in New Orleans, police seized 5000 books and pamphlets deemed by them to be dangerous to the populace. The raid was conducted by Capt. Harry Oscar Gregson, a former prize-fighter, now acting as "literary editor" of the New Orleans Police Department.

A list of the seized books shows how zealously Capt. Gregson is exercising his new duties. It includes Elma Godchaux's novel of plantation life in old Louisiana, "Stubborn Roots"; "Green Margins," prize-winning novel of E. P. O'Donnell, dealing with life in the Delta country; a biography of Justice Brandeis; a pamphlet about the N R A; Charles and Mary Beard's "The Rise of American Civilization"; Paul de Kruif's "Men Against Death," a popular book about medical science; "100,000,000 Guinea Pigs"; books by Emil Ludwig, Grace Lumpkin and Aldous Huxley; copies of the New Republic, and a volume entitled "The Real Huey P. Long," a critical study of the late Senator.

Missing from the list are the vicious adventures of Rollo in Switzerland and the wild goings-on of that Dinsmore gal, but perhaps the Reds were able to conceal those incriminating volumes as Capt. Gregson and his squad went into action.

Handicaps of Bigness in Business

Large firms often lack supposed advantages, and find it easier to get big than to stay big, writer says; asserts they are more unwieldy than small concerns, less open to new ideas, hampered by huge investments and heavy overhead; grave danger in financial manipulation by owners; few are able long to dominate an industry.

John Allen Murphy, Co-Author of "The Economics of Mergers" and Former Associate Editor of Printers' Ink, in Harper's Magazine.

BIG BUSINESS does not enjoy the monopoly, either of opportunity or privilege, that is generally supposed. It is much harder for a business to stay big than it is for it to become big. We worry about the menace of big business but forget that it has many handicaps. These handicaps are so serious that, except in the most brilliantly managed corporations, disintegrating forces set to work almost as soon as the "bigness" stage is reached.

For instance, the large organization suffers from lack of flexibility. It takes it too long to turn round and to get going in a different direction. It cannot adjust itself to changing conditions fast enough to take advantage of the opportunities which the changes present. The small company, on the other hand, can jump into the new flux without delay.

It is difficult for a mass-production manufacturer to maintain a flexible program. Sticking to Model T too long, and not recognizing that the public demands frequent style changes, almost wrecked Ford. Similarly, the giant American Woolen Co. was unable to compete with smaller companies, because they were able to keep in step with nimble-footed fashion while American Woolen lagged behind in this respect.

Thus, we find nearly all new ideas being originated by little concerns. The most popular cracker of the day was brought out by a small manufacturer, and when its success was assured, it was taken up by its giant competitors. The dog-food business, whose sales are now soaring, was started, not by the big packers, but by their small competitors.

That the smaller concern is far more enterprising in initiating new products or new methods is well known to every experienced business man. The large organization should not be criticised for this. It did its pioneering before it became big. That may have been one of the things that made it big. But once it has attained a certain size, it must stay out of uncharted courses, at least until a competitor has shown these courses to be navigable.

Alfred Sloan, the head of General Motors, once said the huge corporation must stick to what is selling and leave the pioneering to smaller companies. It can and does experiment in its laboratories, but it cannot afford to gamble its production and selling facilities on new ventures.

Large concerns are handicapped by their huge plant investments. They are loath to accept new ideas that might jeopardize these investments. Few companies have the courage to abandon properties that have lost their reason for existence. The small fellow, having nothing to lose, goes ahead and tries new things or new processes and frequently triumphs over the intrenched organizations.

The big manufacturer has to keep expending to protect his investment. This frequently takes him far afield from his original business. Sometimes these outside ventures prove unsatisfactory, but once in them, it is hard to back out.

Large companies have the greatest difficulty maintaining their position of leadership. The big three cigarette manufacturers are constantly jockeying for the top position, and at their heels are four or five other companies, always threatening to oust the leaders from their place.

Even such a gigantic corporation as General Electric, with its hundreds of products, stands first on only a few lines. On many articles it is distanced by its small competitors.

The chief worry of the management of large corporations is the price-slashing proclivities of the little fellow. In numerous fields, N R A benefited the big companies the most because it protected them from price competition.

Overhead charges are the bane of the large corporation. I asked the head of a small manufacturing organization how they have been so successful in weathering the competition of the many giant outfits which exist in this field. "We are making a profit long before they cover their overhead," was his answer.

Big business suffers because it is owned by inactive stockholders. Too often, the management is composed of hired men, who have no real authority. They have to compete with small concerns that are ably managed by their real owners. Where large corporations are outstandingly successful, we usually find that they have overcome the handicap of bigness through the ability of one man—Henry Ford, Alfred Sloan, Owen Young, for example. Very few large enterprises have been able to find a succession of competent talent.

Big business is handicapped—and perhaps this is the most serious handicap of all—because its owners put too much emphasis on finance. They are more interested in the movement of their shares on the stock exchange than they are in the movement of their goods into markets. In the well-managed company, a nice co-ordination is maintained among finance, production and sales. To over-emphasize one makes the company top-heavy and eventually throws it off balance. That is what happened to the Kreuger, the Insull and other big business interests.

Big business men too often become obsessed with the notion that the profits to be made from manufacturing and merchandising are too slow. They think they can get rich faster by speculating in the securities of their companies. They forget that true business success is the result of the proper management. Finance should not be the whole activity of the business.

It is true these men frequently are successful in making money for themselves, but they do not do their companies any good and sometimes wreck them by their tactics. While it is possible to build a fortune through manipulation, it is not a good way to build a business. It is a common observation that as soon as big business gets into the hands of the ticker-watching school of management, its smaller rivals have their opportunity.

The proof that these numerous handicaps do hurt big business is the fact that with rare exceptions no one concern is able to dominate an industry for long. When United States Steel was organized, it controlled 65 per cent of the industry's capacity. Today, it is down to 38 per cent. At one time, Standard Oil was the only oil company that counted. Today, there are at least a dozen that must be reckoned with.

The same condition prevails in scores of major industries. It has been repeatedly demonstrated that it is impossible for a single company to rule an industry, unless it has a monopoly, such as American Telephone & Telegraph Co. enjoys. It is well known that there is no better place for a small man to start than in an industry that has recently been completely merged. The "merger" that thought it had gobbled up all its competition soon finds plenty of strong competitors that were not even in existence when the merger was formed.

An Obstruction to Justice

From the Kansas City Times.

THE ideal method for delaying trial in Criminal Court is the employment of a legislator for an attorney. The method is backed up by an old Missouri statute that makes continuances mandatory for the duration of the legislative session.

Now for the rich possibilities of the device as proved in the experiences of at least eight men charged in four major Kansas City cases. Last January, these cases were placed on the docket at about the same time the Legislature convened. Two members of the Legislature suddenly became popular, one of them being employed the morning the cases were to be set for trial.

So started the procession of the months. While the police were hacking away at thefts, robberies and burglaries in Kansas City, the Legislature settled down to its long deliberation.

This is the last week of jury trials in the current term of court. It is more than probable that all the cases will be carried over to the September term, for a total delay of eight months, all because of one obstructive statute.

Several Missouri Judges have refused to grant continuances under the old statute. They have held in the specific cases that it was being used simply as a device for avoiding trial. Most Judges, however, have hesitated to take a chance without the support of a Supreme Court decision.

Certainly something must be done. The law goes back to a time when it was difficult to find men for legislative service, a time when the sessions were comparatively short. The circumstances have changed. If the legal interpretations do not change with the times, the old law should offer glowing possibilities to still greater numbers of criminals.

Extension of Nuisance Taxes, Plugging of Loopholes in Revenue Law and Court Bill Are Others

WASHINGTON, June 5.—President Roosevelt's confident announcement on Friday that there would be some sort of legislation for "judicial reform" at this session of Congress was interpreted by Senators and Representatives as a notice that they would have to suffer a long, hot, humid Washington summer. They will be making up for the long week-ends enjoyed since Congress convened in January.

At his press conference, the President said he would send no more messages to this session. With this in mind, it is now possible to list the legislation which he considers "highly desirable" at this time. Roosevelt and Senate Majority Leader Robinson have emphasized, however, that this is not a "must" program — "must" having caused much resentment among sensitive congressmen on a previous occasion.

What Roosevelt Wants.

Herewith are the proposals, many of which will cause prolonged debate:

1. The $1,500,000,000 relief appropriation passed by the House and now before the Senate. Vice-President Garner and Senator Byrnes of South Carolina will try to reduce the figure to one billion, and there will be attempts in the Senate, as in the House, to earmark large amounts for special projects, such as public works, flood control and road construction.

2. Extension of the nuisance taxes already approved by the House Ways and Means Committee. This legislation should be enacted before July 1 to avoid complications.

3. Plugging of loopholes in the present revenue laws. If the House approves the Senate bill for a joint committee investigation, there will be shrieking publicity of tax avoidance and evasion.

4. The Supreme Court reorganization bill. Even after this has been acted on in the Senate, the House Judiciary Committee and the House must go through the motions of considering it. Senate opponents of the measure declare that, if the administration does not move to consider this legislation within a "reasonable time," they will call it up for action at this session. No one wants it carried over to next, an election year.

5. Wages and hours and child labor legislation. Hearings before a joint committee are now in progress. Oposition is expected to develop as soon as Congressmen and industrialists learn more about the bill.

6. Housing legislation, including slum clearance and low cost building. Senator Wagner has been the sponsor of legislation on this subject for several sessions and the President has announced that a start, not costing too much at first, should be made this year.

7. Farm tenancy legislation. So far, all of the plans advanced would cost too much. Ways are being sought to hold down the initial appropriation.

8. Agricultural legislation. The President has indorsed the "principle" of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's "ever normal granary" plan and has expressed the hope that action will be taken on it this session.

9. Regional planning in line with the President's message this week and Senator Norris' bill for seven regions patterned after the Tennessee Valley setup.

10. Reorganization of the executive departments. The Senate and the House committees have disagreed on legislation and at least three sets of bills, by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Senator Byrd of Virginia and Representative Cochran of Missouri, probably will be introduced.

11. Railroad retirement legislation to take the place of the pension plan blocked by court action. This should not cause much debate after the committees have reported.

12. Railroad holding company legislation. A Senate committee is now investigating this subject and if the findings continue along the present lines there may be action this session.

Three Items to Go Over.

The administration would like to see three important subjects go over until next session. Revision of the Social Security law, revamping of the tax structure and civil service extension.

At a recent press conference the President disclosed that in January the administration leaders had decided for budgetary reasons to

The administration would like to see three important subjects go over until next session. Revision of the Social Security law, revamping of the tax structure and civil service extension.

At a recent press conference the President disclosed that in January the administration leaders had decided for budgetary reasons to postpone revision of the Social Security program until next session. In a recent message to Congress, he said the Treasury would be prepared in the fall to suggest plans for reconditioning the taxing system. His message to Congress this week on civil service merely protested against possible legislation exempting many Federal employes from this service.

The program laid out by the President and Robinson is heavy and, even if the President permits some of the more controversial measures to go without action, there is no telling when the Congressmen will be able to get away from sweltering of Washington.

Americans in Spain's International Brigade

JOHN TSERONIS.

Missourians With Loyalists Write Home

ing against international Fascism. It is all I ask."

The latest letter from Ben Levine gives his opinion of the International Brigade and describes a narrow escape from death.

"I suppose," it begins, "I could sit down and write you a long history of the International Brigade and who it is composed of and how and why it was organized, but it would be of no use. Nothing I could write would be anywhere near the truth as I see it here. I couldn't write enough to describe the heroism that is shown in the fight against Fascism as waged by the Brigada Internacionale here in sunny Spain, as well as by the rest of the Spanish army. It can't be told in mere words. History is being made here and Hitler and Il Duce are finding it out.

Narrow Escape.

"You can read what is happening—how on every front we are gaining. Our morale is higher and our discipline is better. As Hitler and Mussolini have to their sorrow discovered, our aviation is so far superior that it is a shame. I have seen one of our planes handle and bring down three Capronis alone. Of such stuff are the defenders of democratic Spain composed—and Franco doesn't seem to like it.

"As for myself, I am still O. K. and in one piece with no punctures. I am attached to the Transport Division and up to this date have had two trucks shot out from under me. I have just come back from taking up a load of shells under a terrific bombardment. I think they had me spotted and then let loose. I had to keep moving 60 and 70 m. p. h. and the road was full of holes for about one kilometer. Only after I got the hill between me and the artillery was I a little safe.

"I am writing this while waiting for them to load my truck for a return trip up to the lines. Well, I have to eat before I go. If you don't hear from me soon you'll know why." And the letter is signed with the words, "Salud. No Passaran!"

Negroes in the Army.

Frank Warfield and James Cox are two St. Louis Negroes who went to Spain near the beginning of the year. At present both are serving with the Abraham Lincoln battalion.

Warfield is a 34-year-old electrical worker from the Wagner Electric Corporation. He was an active member of the St. Louis Unemployed Council and took part in the struggle for relief which was waged by members of the council during the years 1932-35. A brother, Oliver Warfield, is employed as a bartender at 2837 Easton avenue.

Cox is 42 years old. For many years he was employed by the Pullman Co. as a sleeping-car cleaner. During the last year and a half he was active in the work of the Unemployed Council and Workers' Alliance, and as a volunteer organizer for the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee of the C I O. As a volunteer steel organizer he was engaged in helping to form a C I O union at the plant of the Scullin Steel Co. on Manchester avenue. Cox's nearest relative in St. Louis is the Rev. R. C. Clopton, a brother, who uses his mother's maiden name as a surname, and who lives at 3022A Thomas street. The Rev. Mr. Clopton is pastor of the Truelight Baptist Church at 201 South Sixteenth street, and president of the St. Louis Negro Baptist Ministers' Union.

Why He Is With Loyalists.

Writing from the south of Spain, James Cox says:

"After winters in St. Louis, this is a fine country. The grass is green and the birds are singing and everybody treats us like brothers. We are all anxious to see some action and I guess we will soon. These people here don't deserve the raw deal they are getting and we all want to do our part to help them. I guess that is the way every good American feels.

"The slogan here is 'No Passaran.' It means 'They shall not pass.' Everybody uses it and they all mean it. The spirit of the people is great. They are poor and have had lots to put up with, but if the Fascists would leave them alone, they'd make out all right. The way they treat us is swell. You can't go any place but what they run up to you and shake you hand and say 'Salud.'

"The International Brigade is a fine bunch. They come from all over the world. Lots of Americans and plenty of German and Italian anti-Fascists are fighting in it.

"This is all I can write now. Remember me to all the boys and tell me, what do they do on Saturday nights in St. Louis now?"

On Communist Ticket.

John Day has not written many letters from Spain. His friends describe him as a man who does not talk or write much but who, once he has made up his mind to do a thing, carries his thought into action.

Day comes from the tri-state lead belt of Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas. He was born in Washburn, Mo., on July 20, 1904. He attended the Emerson Grammar School and Joplin High School in Joplin, Mo., leaving the latter at the age of 14 in order to go to work. Both his parents were born in Missouri, the father, Charles West Day, in Sheridan County, and his mother in Linn County.

John Day worked in and around Joplin and later in the Texas oil fields. He became an expert cement finisher and belonged to the Hod Carriers' Union in Joplin. At an early age he became interested in labor problems and took part in several strikes, including one conducted by the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers' Union in the tri-state area. During the depression he became active in the problems of the unemployed and WPA workers. He was a member of the Communist party and ran on the Communist ticket as a presidential elector in 1932 and as Secretary of State for Missouri in 1936. His father, four brothers and two sisters are living.

Day is a member of the Abraham Lincoln battalion in Spain. In a card sent to a friend in Joplin, he wrote: "I hate to say 'I told you so,' but has not history borne out my analysis? Fascism will be defeated in Spain." And again, "Our main task is to build a United Front and Farmer-Labor party in the U. S. A. so that Fascism will be unable to attack us there."

Vincent Biggane who went from Edwardsville, Ill., to serve with the International Brigade is 28 years old. He is a member of an Irish-American family long resident in Southern Illinois. In Edwardsville he attended St. Boniface's Catholic Church and went for three years to the parochial school there. His father, Patrick Biggane, was an employe of the Pet Milk Co. at Greenville, Ill., for 20 years. A brother, Lawrence, lives in Edwardsville.

Vincent Biggane was active in the Illinois Workers' Alliance and was working on a W P A project before he left for Spain.

The first letter that his brother received mentioned the difficulty of getting mail in war-torn Spain and the lack of American cigarettes. A second letter written from the front lines said: "This is not a bad section and I am getting along all right. The only thing that bothers me is that I will probably be here for May 1, when I expected to be in Albecete or Madrid for the celebrations.

"Please send me some cigarettes and tobacco. It is hard to get anything to smoke here, as I told you in my last letter. Insure the stuff for about three times what it is worth or it won't get here."

Sinking of Warship.

A later letter mentioned the sinking of the rebel warship Espana by Loyalist planes.

"Just a few lines," it began, "to let you know where I am at the present time and how I am getting along. I have had a leave and am ready to start all over again even if I have to stay here from now on. So far, I think, I have done my part. In fact, I know for sure there are four of them out of the way.

"Well, I suppose you read in the papers about the battleship being blown up. It was the biggest battleship in the Fascist navy and it was the one that did all the damage to Barcelona. When our planes got it it was full of Fascists but they have done all the damage they will ever do, and brother, I'm telling you, all you hear from the Spaniards is the blowing up of that ship!

"I wish you were here and could see for yourself the way the Spanish people treat us. You cannot walk down the street but what they come running after you and wanting to shake hands and take you in some place and buy you a drink."

Killed in Action.

John Tseronis only wrote one postcard from Spain. It went to his brother, Marcus, in Detroit and mentioned that he was undergoing a three-week training period in Barcelona.

Tseronis was a World War veteran and an expert machine-gunner. He didn't need much training, and besides, the Loyalist Government was hard pressed on the Jarama River front outside Madrid. Tseronis was sent with other reinforcements to the International Brigade. The next word that came told how he had been killed in action while serving with fellow-American volunteers in the Abraham Lincoln battalion.

Tseronis was 43 years old. In 1912 he came to America from the Island of Crete in Greece. He was a bricklayer and plasterer by trade and active in the labor movement.

In 1917 he joined the American Army and fought with the A. E. F. in France.

After the war he became a member of the Greek Workers' Federation and of various labor organizations. At one time he served a six-month sentence on Welfare Island, N. Y., for participation in a demonstration in Harlem on behalf of the nine Scottsboro defendants.

Lincoln's Words on Flag.

In St. Louis, where he lived for about a year and a half prior to his departure for Spain, he was active in the Greek Workers' Educational League and as a volunteer organizer for the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee.

Tseronis was the first St. Louisan to fall in Spain's war. The ideals that moved him to journey across the ocean in defense of the Spanish Government continue to motivate others from this section of the Middle West.

Today, when the Abraham Lincoln battalion marches along the white roads of Spain, men from St. Louis and the surrounding area are in the ranks. They can look up to the head of the column and see there a sight that an eye-witness has described as one of the most moving in the whole war. As the breeze catches the folds of the flag that is carried in the front rank, these Americans in a foreign land can read again the familiar words from Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. For inscribed on their banner is the message, "That Government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Talk on Labor Controversy.

Robert Saunders, a labor speaker, will talk at 8 p. m. Tuesday, at the Book Nook, 24A North Meramec avenue, Clayton, on the controversy between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization. The meeting is open to the public without charge.

45 From St. Louis Will Leave for St. Paul Today.

Forty-five members of the St. Louis chapter of the American Institute of Banking will go today to St. Paul, Minn., to attend the national convention of the institute. The delegation is the largest which has ever attended from St. Louis.

The convention, at which 1500 delegates are expected, will open tomorrow and continue through Friday.

Pendergast Back on Job After Illness

tute prosecution in the machine-controlled courts of Jackson County. It is not anticipated that such a move will be made. The attitude of the city administration controlled by the organization, was reflected recently in the action of City Manager H. F. McElroy in promoting a fireman, under indictment for election fraud, to a captaincy.

An acute internal problem has been created in the Pendergast organization through the revolt of unionized city firemen against the practice of dipping into their pay toward the close of the fiscal year on official pretext that reductions are necessary to meet a requirement of the city charter that the books be balanced at the close of the year.

City Manager McElroy has fired many of the protesting firemen. The word has gone out they may get their jobs back only by making peace with their ward bosses and resigning from the union. Some of the firemen have protested to Pendergast. He has "looked into the matter" but their plight has not been alleviated.

This has caused dissension among firemen who always have been counted upon to put in regular licks at the polls, getting out the vote, polling the precinct, furnishing election officials, contributing to Democratic clubs.

Election Board a Problem.

Pendergast is naturally interested in restoring harmony. The wheels of the organization must be greased for the important city election next spring. In the meantime, there arises the perplexing question of the present Board of Election Commissioners which was in office at the time of the last national election.

A cry has gone up in many quarters for a new board. Pendergast has been approached by certain persons who would like to become election commissioners. A delicate situation is presented. To repudiate the present members might be construed as a concession to those who are attacking the organization, spurred on by the vote fraud expose.

Yet pressure has been brought to bear on Gov. Stark for the creation of a new board. All these factors must be weighed by Pendergast. He is concerned too with the retention of R. Emmet O'Malley as superintendent of insurance whom he has steadfastly defended against demands that the Governor appoint a successor. What action Gov. Stark may take has not been indicated.

Outwardly Unruffled.

But with all these extra problems, superimposed upon the multiplicity of perplexing propositions which must be solved by the head of a powerful political organization, Pendergast is outwardly unruffled.

He is standing pat, looking forward to his vacation, confident that the organization will emerge triumphant, convinced that the election next spring will return a huge majority for his forces. He has not changed a bit since June, 1936, when he said to this correspondent at the Democratic National Convention at Philadelphia:

"Politics is a business like anything else. Vote-getting entails practical obligations, not only of patronage, in some instances, but to be a 'friend in need' to the lowliest constituent, not merely at election time but 365 days a year, year in and year out.

"The successful politician is the man who keeps his word and lets his friends and enemies know where he stands. There are no alibis in politics. The delivery of the votes is what counts."

Rabbi Wise will discuss Jewish conditions throughout the world and the present situation in Palestine and will review achievements of the World Jewish Congress and the American Jewish Congress. A testimonial dinner in honor of Rabbi Wise will be given at 7:30 in the evening.

Nazi War on Waste Means Bumper Crops Have to Be Eaten, Traveler Sampling German Menus Finds

What Children Learn Under Hitler's Rule—Communism and Fascism Not Unlike, Anti-Bolshevik Exhibit Indicates.

By OTTO FUERBRINGER,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

WHEN you first arrive in Germany you see signs in the railroad stations and other public buildings telling all Germans to combat waste (Kampf den Verderb) and it isn't long before you find out that these admonitions are taken very seriously. The Germans have always been a reasonably frugal people and those few who didn't know how to save had the lesson brought home to them very sharply during the war and the inflation years. But under Hitler's mighty program of attempted self-sufficiency, the Germans not only have to save; they have to learn to use to the best advantage whatever it is that they have.

There was a neat illustration of that on the train from Cologne to Munich. The noon meal on the diner was served table d'hote, like most meals on Continental trains, and a very good meal it was. Fish with caviar sauce and steak as we know it in America. But the vegetable was Brussels sprouts. I had just come from England where I thought I had eaten enough sprouts to last a lifetime. I explained this to the German at the table with me and made a mild protest. He laughed and said he didn't like them either but explained that there had been a bumper crop of sprouts last year and what there was a bumper crop of had to be eaten. He said I'd probably encounter them on menus quite frequently, and I did.

Saving Little Things.

He initiated me into other little forms of saving, too. He folded the silver paper from his cigarette packages and put it in his pocket and told me that the tin box in which my cigarettes were packed would be rescued for re-smelting by the waiters. When I got to Munich and had to buy some shaving cream there was a little red slip wrapped around the tube which said: "Attention: Please don't throw this tube away because it is made of metal which we urgently need and which must, in part, be imported from foreign countries. Give this tube which, like all other used materials, is worthless to you to the collectors who will ask for it. The metal will be re-worked for use and you will help save on foreign exchange."

And later on, in Berlin, there was a notice in the papers from Gen. Goering that all hair which is shorn from heads in barber shops must be saved from then on. It didn't say what for.

But after you are in Germany for a while you realize that saving, even if it sometimes takes odd forms (at the Berlin State Opera there were always people who would come in evening clothes but bring their own lunch to eat in the intermissions), is a natural way of life for the people, that in many instances it is only sensible, and that it is the wasters and squanderers who appear out of step.

Atmosphere of Fear.

There is a sort of nightmare atmosphere of fear abroad in Germany today, real enough to many Germans, but it can touch the visitor also. I saw my friend from the train a good deal while I was in Munich and one night I suddenly had the feeling that he was following or watching me. It wasn't imagined, the details were vivid enough; and although it didn't bother me, I took it as an indication of what the psychological climate is like in Germany today: a visitor who isn't looking for it can get the definite feeling that he is being kept under surveillance and being guided to only the best and the harmless places. This feeling is fed by the fact that when you talk of anything other than inconsequential things in a public place voices are automatically, almost unconsciously, lowered and that many Germans completely avoid politics as a topic of conversation. I remember trying in vain all one night to get a political discussion going at a small student gathering. And when I first came to Germany and was still dubious about my German vocabulary I would tell people that I would learn soon enough, but I wasn't quite sure yet whether I could carry on a continuous conversation on all topics, on politics, for instance. The invariable answer was that that was just as well, it was best to avoid politics anyway.

Teaching the Children.

One day I went to a town a few hours from Munich to visit a family whom we will call Schmidt. The father is a professional man and at lunch there was he, his wife, and their daughter, a vivacious young girl about 12 years old. She was wearing the brown jacket, the middy and skirt of the Bund der Deutschen Maedel—the girls' division of the Hitler youth organization. I suppose any really active child can lead a conversation, and she led the one at the table that day. She told of all that she did at the Bund meetings, of the ritual of salutes, and how she, as the leader of a small group of still younger girls, taught them the maxims of "the new Germany."

There was a good deal of this and the father was finally moved to say: "Yes, that's the way it is in Germany these days, the 18-year-olds teach the 15-year-olds, the 15-year-olds teach the 12-year-olds, the 12-year-olds teach the 10-year-olds, and so on down until the 5-year-olds teach the 3-year-olds."

I asked who taught those above 18 and he replied that they probably didn't need any teaching, by that time they already knew all they needed to know.

A Nazi Girl's Treasures.

After lunch the daughter took me up to her room to show me her magazines, books, hiking clothing, in fact, all her belongings. She was completely wrapped up in the Hitler youth organization and for her it meant an outlet for a kind of movie hero worship, for Girl Scout work, and membership in the local missionary society. There was a photograph of Hitler with two swastika flags over her bed. She wanted to show me a picture of Baldur von Schirach, the head of all the youth groups, but the first one showed him with a double chin, so she made me wait for a handsome profile.

Her handbook was about the most interesting thing. It was in calendar form, with all the big dates of the Nazi movement marked in and pithy little sayings down in the corners of the pages. Most of these told her that war and battle are noble and that Hitler is a great man. I remember one which said: "It is certainly strange that Adolf Hitler should have all the qualities of a god and still be a human being like the rest of us."

Later on she wanted me to contribute to a fund to take care of Germans in foreign countries, especially America and the former German colonies, and when she got me to subscribe for a few issues of her youth magazine she marked that down in her book as a service done for the movement that day.

Insistent Patriotism.

Well, I had a good deal of needless patriotism pounded into me as a boy and, although I was never a member of any youth groups, those friends of mine who were seem to have grown beyond the groups' boundaries of ritual and banalities without much trouble. But we had other activities, other interests, on the side. In Germany today, however, the Hitler youth movement is designed to mean and represent everything to the German boy and girl, to encompass all their activities. I couldn't help wondering when, if ever, the little daughter would outgrow the little Nazi formulas she was learning now.

The patriotism and nationalism which is instilled in the German children is much more insistent than any which American boys and girls ever get; the current history which they are taught, the moralities and the proverbs, are much more cut and dried, much sillier, much more dangerous.

Among the things to see when I got back to Munich, the young daughter told me, was the anti-Bolshevik exhibit in the library wing of the Deutsches Museum. I had already seen the small anti-Communist exhibits on various street corners: they consist mostly of the age-old pictures of starving children. But this was something special: a gigantic series of pictures, posters, books, newspapers, magazines and movies designed to show in the simplest possible terms the terrors of Communism and the wonders of Fascism. The first general impression was one of amazement at the number of pictures of bullet-ridden bodies; after that, it seemed to me, the exhibit did nothing better than the way in which it showed how very much alike, in many details, the actual practices of these two political philosophies are.

The Anti-Bolshevik Exhibit.

But we'll start at the beginning. The entrance hall to the exhibit was a dark, austere room with a square memorial with a wreath on it in the center and nothing else but the names of all the Nazis and near-Nazis who had died violent deaths—and thus were "sacrifices to the new Germany"—on the walls. It is amazing to an American to what full extent the Nazis make use of their martyrs. I don't suppose more than a handful of people in America ever observe the day on which Lincoln was shot. But in Germany today the anniversary of the day on which anyone who happened to be wearing a brown shirt at the time when an anti-Nazi or a Frenchman or an embittered Jew killed him is the occasion for fulsome newspaper stories, at least, and usually the pretext for public demonstrations. The Germans say that Hitler has discovered "ein neues Festland" (a new land for continued celebrations). And most of the celebrations are on days when people died or were shot, the biggest on the anniversary of Hitler's unsuccessful putsch in 1923 when 16 of his pals fell in front of the Feldherrnhalle in Munich.

Going from the entrance hall of the anti-Bolshevik exhibit you came to a series of rooms which sketched, by means of pictures and posters, the war years and inflation times; the growth of the Communist party in Germany to 6,000,000 voters by 1932; and then, in a series of astoundingly realistic photos, some of the people, lying naked and bloody on morgue slabs, who were killed in political clashes in the years when, prior to the Nazi accession, there still could be open political differences. The underlines said they were all killed by Communists.

Hitler's Rise to Capitals.

There followed then a succession of scenes showing the rise of the Nazi party and they contained not a few lessons in history. There was one wall made up entirely of posters advertising Hitler's speeches. In the early ones it was possible to see what the times were like when he started campaigning and why he was able to gain a foothold: a poster for 1923 announced the admission price to one of his talks as 150,000 marks. Entrance was free, however, to war veterans and unemployed. But the most striking bit was the way in which the posters delineated the gradual emergence of Hitler as an individual; how he and his implacable will to power became more important than what he had to say and what we would do when in power. On the early posters the title of the speech and a few lines explaining the probable content were in the largest type, while Hitler's name itself was just a small line at the bottom. Gradually, as the years went on, the title got smaller and Hitler's name larger, until the last posters usually just announced in giant letters: ADOLF HITLER SPEAKS!

Communism "Exposed."

There followed rooms extolling Italian Fascism and some in memorial to Nicholas Horthy, the Hungarian regent who put down the Communist revolt in his own country. And then there were the rooms which "exposed" Communism. But didn't they do the same for Naziism? They attacked the Soviet anti-religion drives; but the Nazis, if not as direct in their methods, are at least as anxious as the Russians to have no other religion interfere with their own special brand. The GPU was enthusiastically denounced; but the Nazis have their Gestapo. There was a large picture of Stalin surrounded by children and the implication was: what is this monster doing professing love for little boys and girls. But Adolf Hitler also has himself photographed with the young in affectionate poses. There were maps showing the alleged Soviet program for world revolution. But there also were maps showing the progress of Naziism in foreign countries. Didn't the Nazis themselves see there was little difference?

The Spanish Section.

There was also a Spanish section, divided off with flaming red cheesecloth and not open to children. But the entrances were wide enough and the room small enough so that all could see the display anyway. And a lovely bit of propaganda it was: blown-up pictures of a family of about five daughters all of whom had supposedly been attacked and killed by the loyalists. The blood was so thick on the bodies it looked as though it had been painted on after the pictures were made. I couldn't help but think of all the Germans who even now are still protesting about the atrocity pictures which the Allies sent out during the World War.

The exit of the exhibit was, like the beginning, a bit symbolic. Having been through all the terrors of Communism you came into the clean, fresh air of Naziism. And it was a clean, bright, crisp room with murals all around the walls of Germans at work and play. There was a farmer, an athlete, a painter, an architect, a laborer, an aviator, a soldier, a sailor, men in party uniforms, and a family group. And they all had the brightest blond locks and the bluest of blue eyes you ever saw. The only other object in the room was a bust of Hitler which showed his black hair.

TREND OF GOVERNMENT DISCUSSED BY LANDON

Ex-Governor of Kansas Cautions Against Too Great Centralization of Power.

By the Associated Press.

BALDWIN, Kan., June 5.—Former Gov. Alf M. Landon told members of the graduating class of Baker University here today they were "graduating into a world which is suffering from a painful, but on the whole, stimulating reaction."

"But we must move carefully in order that we do not destroy proven methods by our impatience or contempt," he warned. Landon spoke as a representative of the board of trustees of the school.

"The derangements following a staggering war, the severity of the economic depression which came 12 years later," he said, "have given many people a sense of helplessness and defeat. They now look to strong central government as the only means of gaining the economic securities which all of us desire.

"If we are compelled to choose between economic power concentrated in the hands of a few individuals and economic power concentrated in the Government, of course we will choose the Government. But in the long view, both will destroy democracy."

Landon said: "You can simplify the disputes and differences over governmental issues roughly into these two schools. First: Those who believe that the best and most efficient government rests on the collective wisdom of its citizens, and second, those who believe the best and most efficient government is the one that rests on the power of one individual."

T V A CHAIRMAN TO SPEAK

Dr. A. E. Morgan to Make Address Here June 14.

Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, will address the St. Louis chapter of the English-Speaking Union at a meeting at 12:30 p. m. June 14 at Hotel Statler.

Dr. Morgan was formerly president of Antioch College. During his stay in St. Louis he will be a guest at the home of J. Lionberger Davis, head of the local chapter of the English-Speaking Union.

"Of Making Many Books"

EDITED BY JOHN G. NEIHARDT

NOTED CRITIC'S MEMORIES

BEFORE I FORGET. By Burton Rascoe. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Garden City, New York.)

AMERICAN literature, in common with other manifestations of American life, moves very rapidly. Men like Dreiser, Lewis, Mencken, Cabell, Anderson, have already acquired an aura of white-haired venerableness. We look upon them as benignant or, as the case may be, irascible grandfaththers; we accord them a tolerant praise for having done good work in their day; and we make the polite but firm assumption that they are too far out of touch with the times to have anything to say to us.

It is therefore something of a surprise to find that Burton Rascoe, a member of this oldest literary generation, is only in his forties. To be a grandfather at such an early age indicates a considerable precociousness. And Rascoe, as revealed in this volume of reminiscences, was undeniably precocious; he also possessed an almost inexhaustible energy.

Born in a small Kentucky village, growing up in the raw Oklahoma town of Shawnee, Rascoe was doing newspaper editorials and running a column of philosophical comment, as well as ghost-writing literary papers for clubwomen, while he was still in high school. By the time he entered Chicago University he was better educated than most degree-holders. He became a reporter for the Chicago Tribune while he was still a freshman, and left school at the end of his second year to devote his full time to newspaper work. Before he was 25 he was Sunday editor, rotogravure editor, "high-brow page" editor, literary editor, and dramatic critic of the Tribune, holding most of these jobs simultaneously, and during the same period had acquired a wife and two children. There can be small wonder that he was on the edge of a nervous breakdown by 1920, when the Tribune fired him for making a slighting reference to Mary Baker Eddy.

This record of his early years was written by Rascoe the newspaper man rather than by Rascoe the Protean student and critic. Memories, anecdotes, extracts from youthful diaries, old clippings, quotations, previously published essays and innumerable odd details are tossed together with little respect for cohesion or order and no great attention to chronology except in a general sense.

The discursiveness and casualness of the book are in themselves no great crimes; one can enjoy reminiscences without demanding that they have architectural structure. A more important defect is the almost complete absence of ideas. One reads of Rascoe's dinner parties and visits with all the literary lights of the time, one chuckles over the great critical battles of which he was a storm center; but one learns nothing of what these writers said, nothing of what the battles were about. Certainly a man with Rascoe's background of education and experience must have thought, and thought deeply, about the world through which he moved. Unfortunately there is no record of these thoughts in his book.

The Nineties Were Not Stuffy

REMEMBER THE DAY. By Kenneth Horan. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Garden City, New York.)

GROWING up in the '90s must have been fun. Here, at any rate, are the memories of one little girl who enjoyed it very much.

The Ingham household, of course, was unusual. Papa was a remarkable man, Governor of his state, editor, good Episcopalian, but better Republican. Mamma, too, for a great lady, was remarkably easy to live with. Charming her sensitivity to the mildest profanity, spirited her heroic determination to bicycle if it killed her, uncanny the starched crispness of her shirtwaist, comfortable her easy conversational culture, inspired her housekeeping—but all these pale into insignificance beside her major cause for pride, "the smallest waist in the State of Michigan."

However important may be the place of parents in the home environment, that held by domestics is, from a child's point of view, not to be ignored. Here again the Inghams were fortunate. Not every child knows the thrill of having a prison trusty for yardman. Again, what could be pleasanter than a mademoiselle whose grammar was not above reproach and who liked folk songs and the theater better than irregular verbs? Moreover, to add to the circle the final excitement of incongruity, Mrs. Flynn, the cook, was a complete immersion Baptist and a stern, brooding moralist. In such a world things were bound to happen, and eventfulness, after all, is what a child most needs for happiness.

Though the Inghams were in themselves a remarkable family, still the age they lived in had much to do with the pleasure their daughters took in growing up. Where did the decade get its reputation for stuffiness? The '90s were splendidly catholic in choosing their celebrities. To the Ingham house came, of course, the leaders of the party, McKinley and Roosevelt. Came also Jane Addams, Gen. and Mrs. Tom Thumb, Col. Ingersoll, Lyman Abbott, O. Henry (just out of prison), and Mark Twain. Politicians, clergymen, oddities, artists and atheists—and the children met and knew them all. Yes, it was a tolerant, stimulating age to be young in. Papa didn't take much stock in W. J. Bryan, but he wept during the "cross of gold" speech, protesting in a choked voice, "He's wrong. He's all wrong."

"Remember the Day" is a gay book. It is warmly written. The author is deft, never sentimental. She knows the meaning of wit. The light, well-leaded pages go quickly. As one finishes the book, one regrets that, because of necessary limitations to the remembering of far-off things, "the aunts and cousins are purely fictitious." They are all such pleasant people. It seems a pity they are not real.

Seeing America From a Bus

WHEN Nathan Asch, novelist, felt the desire to find out for himself just what the people of the United States were doing, saying and thinking, he elected to travel by bus. To him this method of getting about seemed almost ideal for one wishing to lay his ear close to the heartbeat of the country. The unavoidable proximity, the tedium of long night stretches and the mutually endured jostling and bouncing fostered a camaraderie that passengers on the railroads seldom know, even in the smoking cars.

In illuminating marginal incidents, Mr. Asch has pieced together a picture which is truly representative of the American underdog. He encountered dust storms and drouth, he talked to and shared the experiences of oil drillers, share-croppers, sheepherders, beetfield workers and those pathetic wanderers disinherited either by economic circumstances or the hand of fate. Clinging tenaciously to the shreds of their respectability, though only one notch higher than the hobo on the rods, the human tumbleweeds exhaust their last resources in the quest for a secure anchoring place.

A sharp eye and a true instinct for drama and pathos are part of Mr. Asch's stock in trade, and he has employed them to splendid advantage. It is extremely difficult in these days of standardized shops and corner hamburger palaces for a fleeting traveler to capture on paper a part of that elusive flavor differentiating each great American city from its fellows. Native citizens feel it and the articulate ones may write about it, but it requires astute observation to write understandingly about such a number of places.

Mr. Asch's style is lean, but never to the point of monotony. His panoramic canvas, though its pigments may be somewhat drab in hue, is a noteworthy accomplishment.

—Jack Conroy.

Wanted: Scientific Money System

IN DEFENSE OF CAPITALISM. By James H. R. Cromwell and Hugo E. Czerwonky. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

ASSERTING that the widespread unemployment and suffering of the American workmen are not attributable to capitalism, but to its failure to function properly, Cromwell and Czerwonky suggest "certain simple and practical amendments to the Federal Reserve Act, which, if adopted and properly administered, would preclude the recurrence of business depressions."

The authors believe that the Federal Reserve Board should be empowered to expand the volume of money as the flow of consumers' goods increases. This new money would be used to finance the Government, to expand bank deposits, or to subsidize industrial activity. They argue that increased production is possible only when savings are available for investment. Hence, anything which interferes with the accumulation of capital is undesirable and should be eliminated. Under this head are income taxes, estate and inheritance taxes, and old age and unemployment insurance levies. Labor, they state, will gain more through insisting upon the adoption of a scientific monetary system and freedom of capital accumulation than by collective bargaining. Tariffs and all governmental regulatory measures are to be repealed. Laissez-faire capitalism, as the authors view the matter, will function perfectly when equipped with a scientific money system.

Despite the criticism directed at contemporary economics by Cromwell and Czerwonky, professional economists have analyzed the effect of introducing new money into the economic system sufficiently to make it evident that new purchasing power would force readjustments in the distribution of resources which would create more problems than would be solved.

Nevertheless, it may be freely granted that the authors have done a workmanlike job of rationalizing.

"SOMEWHERE IN THE EASTERN SEAS"

Her Hubby Was Unsympathetic

NO STEPPING BACKWARD. By Vera Wheatley. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.

HAPPY was the bride that golden summer day when Gerda Hazeltine became wife to Bogardus Fleming. Theirs had been the charming idyll of young love at first sight that enchants the lovers and delights the neighbors. The wedding guests were agreed that they had a pretty day for the event, and all wished them well.

There were those among the guests, however, who were nagged with forebodings that all would not be well. These few, loving the poetic and sensitive Gerda since girlhood, thought of the morrow. Infatuated the girl must be, for what else could draw her to "Bogey" Fleming, a creature compounded of good looks, a mediocre mind and prosaic tastes? Infatuation dead, what tragedy might entangle Gerda in the new and stifling environment her marriage would provide?

These misgivings were soon crystallized into fact. Gerda, freed too late from infatuation, found her life intolerable. The good "Bogey" sincerely disdained her verse-making, her talent for the violin, her passion for gardening, the self-sacrificing devotion for those she loved—her family, the small crippled Don, the Gardener Dear of her childhood. Essential to Gerda, these things were regarded by her husband and his intimates as trivia, condescendingly tolerated.

Her story then becomes the tragedy of her spirit-breaking struggle to retain her identity in this alien environment, and the heartbreak that came with compromise. Sympathetically written, it is a tale that will leave the reader with a lingering sadness.

Readers of the author's "Saturday at Hazeldine's" will recognize the heroine as the gardening Gerda of the earlier story.

—Martha Flesher Jackson.

Behind the Scenes In College Life

THE TREE HAS ROOTS. By Mary Jane Ward. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

A READER is reminded in this novel that there is more to a modern university than buildings and books, students and professors. Behind the scenes are the all but forgotten "property" men and women, the clerical and maintenance staffs so frequently taken for granted. Mary Jane Ward has written into her narrative characters that in most college stories have been relegated to the prop-heap.

Mary Katowitz, a pretty waitress in the Commons, distrustful of college boys, finds happily that they are not all deserving of an unpleasant reputation. Miss Dobbs, who has spent her best years serving the university in a secretarial capacity, reverses the impression that she is an automaton in the revelations of a stormy romance. Old Mr. Norwith, once a teacher, now the campus handyman, adds the pathos of humble dignity to the tale.

Miss Ward has given these faithful employes a place of vital importance in their world and has shown their contribution to be essential in its development—even as the roots of a tree. The author's observations of campus life are accurate and interesting, and her sympathy with the workers is a deeply sincere one. The novel will find a response in all readers who recall some human "fixture" in their own college acquaintances.

A Tremendous Secret Withheld

CAPTAIN KIDD AND HIS SKELETON ISLAND. By Harold T. Wilkins. (Liveright Publishing Corp., New York.)

ON deck all ye lubbers who thrill to gory pirate tales, all ye seekers after hidden pirate gold, here is meat and drink for ye! This is the story of Bill Kidd, captain of them all.

From the day, late in 1696, when King William III gave Capt. William Kidd a privateer's commission to sweep the Eastern seas for pirates, the Captain was a doomed man. Kidd sailed out in the sloop "Adventure Galley," ahead of him the oceans, at his back, in England, half a dozen influential citizens who had invested their money in the adventure. Kidd, the Crown, the crew and the partners were all to share in whatever pirate contraband could be captured. But the Captain and his rowdy crew of bloody-fisted, hairy-chested devils found slim picking as representatives of the Crown out after the wily buccaneers who were making all sea commerce a dangerous enterprise.

Cruising about empty handed among rich merchantmen was bad business. After a good deal of this, it appears from the documents now printed, the crew forced Kidd to turn pirate. Probably they didn't have to urge him too much, although he was forced to lay one of the most vociferous stark in death with a well swung iron bucket.

Rumors of these doings began to trickle into London from the Red Sea. Orders went out for the arrest of captain and crew; and when they sailed into an American port they were taken into custody. The end was hanging at Execution Dock and the corpse of the Captain, trussed in chains, swinging from the gibbet at Tilbury Point, a warning to all incipient buccaneers.

Mr. Wilkins springs a big surprise when he tells of the recent discovery of no less than five old sea chests that once belonged to Captain Kidd. But the mightiest surprise of all is the discovery of the maps of Skeleton Island where the Captain is supposed to have buried his pieces of eight, his Arabian gold and his gems. It is "somewhere in the Eastern seas," and modern cartographers know nothing of it. Mr. Wilkins offers just enough information about Skeleton Island to give lovers of pirate lore and pirate metal a tremendous thirst for more. He explains that he is not at liberty to divulge more and hopes to become one of the party that will soon go out to dig the sands of Skeleton Island.

Here is more solid information about Captain Kidd, his swaggering crew, his sailing and his treasure than has ever before appeared in one volume. The material is poorly organized, but then one can't have everything.—Frederic E. Voelker.

Had Everything But Good Sense

BECKFORD. By Guy Chapman. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

OF all the strange personalities that have left their impress on their times, William Beckford, author of "Vathek," was one of the strangest. "Never," says his biographer, "had the fairies bestowed so many gifts on a commoner's son." He was strong, lusty and handsome, of enormous vigor and furious mental energy. He was the heir to an almost fabulous fortune, and backed by the best blood and the best political talents of his country. None other than the great Pitt was his godfather. As he grew to manhood his tutors included Mozart, Sir. W. Chambers and Robert Drysdale.

And now William Beckford's story, which has tempted and defied biographers in the past, yields itself at last to the untiring scholarship of Guy Chapman, who sets it down sometimes lightly, sometimes heavily, but always with penetrating insight into the strange character of the man who falsified his private papers that biographers would find fact elusive.

What had he to hide? Scandal began associating itself with Beckford before he was out of his 'teens The earliest object of his affections was William Courtenay; but being of vivid imagination and sensibility, there were many others, and his affections soon embraced Louisa Beckford, wife of his cousin, Peter; and later we find them conspiring together at black magic.

Stories were told of the strange, unholy rites at Fonthill, where he spent more than 272,000 pounds building a palace fit for the Caliph Vathek himself. But he was driven from England by family pressure. His marriage to Lady Margaret Gordon did not curb his wild extravagance; and Parliament, in which he held a seat for many years, offered no amusement.

After selling Fonthill, Beckford retired to Bath where he lived in Oriental splendor, calling his retreat Bagdad, and conducting himself more and more like the Caliph Vathek, a product of unbridled passions. He would ride forth each day on his great Arab, accompanied by an entourage of grooms, among them Perro, a misshapen dwarf long in his service.

Chapman has written a definitive biography, going to great ends to prove and disprove the doctored letters that the real story of William Beckford might be revealed. Sometimes the quoted matter dulls the reading; but the story itself is extraordinarily good.

THE AMERINDIANS. By Donald M. McNicol. (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York.)

IN THIS volume Mr. McNicol has attempted to skim the whole field of the bitter conflict between red and white, from the time of Columbus to that of the Canadian quarterbreed, Louis Riel, in the 1880s. To squeeze such a project into a volume of a little over 300 pages is, quite obviously, impossible. It has, therefore, resulted in little more than a catalog of events, tribes, persons and places.

There are a few spots in the book that are more than this, particularly those passages dealing with the later Sioux wars under Red Cloud and Sitting Bull, and the Canadian rebellion under Louis Riel.

The work is unevenly written and shows occasional signs of haste; but the author deserves credit for having digested a voluminous mass of material. -F. E. V.

Center of Europe's Political Arena

WHICH WAY FRANCE? By Alexander Werth. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

WRITTEN by a man peculiarly well equipped to discuss his subject, about a nation occupying the very center of Europe's seething political arena, this book is of compelling interest. Alexander Werth, who spent part of his youth in Petrograd, and who specialized in French literature at Glasgow University, is Paris correspondent of the Manchester Guardian. From the pages of that liberal English journal many of the book's passages are taken.

The author first outlines phases of France's political history since the war, its highlights being reconstruction, occupation of the Ruhr, Locarno, boom and financial crisis, Briand's peace policy and the rise of German militarism. With the great riots of February, 1934, climaxing a parliamentary crisis precipitated by the Stavisky scandal, he dealt in an earlier volume, "France in Ferment." In the present work, the riots are reviewed briefly and events following, to the end of 1936, provide the main theme. During this period the Fascist menace became more and more clearly defined, symbolized chiefly by the Croix de Feu, whose "strange relationship" with Doumergue is traced by the author. Aligned, in spirit at least, against democracy, were the "200 families"—a financial oligarchy strangling the Bank of France—and the "marchands de canons," the arms manufacturers. The meteoric succession of governments following Doumergue, the Saar plebiscite, Stresa, the "bamboozling" of Laval by Mussolini and Hitler's occupation of the Rhineland, all made their contribution to these hectic years.

But the part of the book that tingles with electric excitement is that beginning with the elections of 1936, which brought into power the Front Populaire Government, composed of Left-wing elements, whose Cabinet was to be formed by Leon Blum, for years leader of the Opposition. At the moment, France was confronted by a financial crisis; the Abyssinian situation was acute owing to the matter of sanctions; and when the Government finally took over, a million workers were involved in the great stay-in strikes. Blum's achievements in keeping peace among his own adherents and in conciliating the Right, even after the advent of the Spanish tragedy, constitute one of the most brilliant records in the political annals of the French republic. In some ways, this remarkable man seems a very embodiment of French character. Successful civil servant, social figure, esthete, but withal persistent champion of the working man, he had been converted to Socialism at the age of 6 by his grandmother, who recalled with fiery sympathy the Commune of 1871. Years later, he succeeded Jaures as head of the party. The Royalist attack upon him in the street, early in 1936, served to seal him as "one of ours" for the workers.

Although the French "new deal" has not become effective in its entirety, and news dispatches still record serious disturbances, yet workers and farmers have benefited, the Bank of France has been democratized and nationalization of armament manufacturing is in progress.

Mr. Werth's keen talent for interpretation, his faculty of "candid-camera" description, and the Gallic flavor of his writing all contribute to the success of his book.

From Frying Pan Into Fire

CALL IT FREEDOM. By Marian Sims. (J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia.)

FREEDOM gained through divorce, after 10 years of marriage to a drunken weakling, proves to be only a particularly enmeshing form of bondage for Martha Harvey, the intelligent, attractive product of a small Southern town. Faced at the age of 35 with the responsibility of bringing up her 9-year-old son without help, and with the added necessity of fighting her developing love for Warde Alford, the husband of a close friend, she finds her chosen path a rocky one. In "Call It Freedom" the author has analyzed the reactions of Martha Harvey to this situation, and has made of her a living figure who commands the reader's sympathy and affection throughout the story.

Mrs. Sims has done a fine piece of work in portraying the clique to which Martha belonged—a group whose equivalent can be found in any good-sized town of the United States—a group characterized on the surface by its rather boisterous cocktail parties, its golf playing and its bridge, its "book clubs" for the women and its "luncheon clubs" for the men, its utter frankness, mounting to a rather breathless daring, about sex in conversation; and under all the would-be smartness an unquestionable sense of decency and responsibility.

This novel has taken Marian Sims a long step forward from the "popular" novels she has heretofore written. While "Call It Freedom" retains some of the earmarks of the popular novel, especially in its rather overdrawn love scenes, the sensitive analysis and finely-drawn characterization put the book definitely above its predecessors.

AN OCTOGENARIAN SATIRIST

EARTHLY DISCOURSE. By Charles Erskine Scott Wood. (The Vanguard Press, New York.)

WHEN Wood's first volume of dialogues, "Heavenly Discourse," was published ten years ago, critics greeted it with such adjectives as "Rabelaisian" and "Voltairean." He was compared with Lucian, Anatole France, Swift and other masters of satire. In "Earthly Discourse," he has made another contribution in the great tradition of humanistic satire.

The volume contains 11 dialogues on diverse subjects. As in the former work, God and Satan appear, this time to discuss yellow journalism with William Randolph Hearst, professional patriotism with a D. A. R., and the conflict of Capital and Labor with various captains of industry. The two longest dialogues are devoted to the Duke of Windsor's affair with Mrs. Simpson and to the United States Supreme Court. Others deal with censorship, the American Legion, Angelo Herndon, and Hitler and the Nazis. Then, suggestive of Aristophanes, Wood satirizes the pandemonium of parliamentary deliberations in present day law-making bodies with a tale of frogs in Congress. Reminiscent of "Penguin Island" is his portrayal of a guinea-pig society struggling with the problem of birth control.

Wood writes with the accrued wisdom of 85 years of rich and varied experience. After graduation from West Point over half a century ago, he served in the Indian campaigns in the Northwest where he remained to fraternize with the Indians and become a member of their tribes. Then, in Portland, Ore., he became one of the most distinguished and picturesque lawyers of the Northwest. He is one of the few writers whose breadth of vision and understanding have enabled them to record objectively the tragi-comedy of our time. His tolerance, taste and understanding place him far above those whose shrill invective reveal the smallness of their minds. He sees objectively the human frailties of those whom he attacks and defends.

Near the end of his years of watching mankind muddling slowly forward toward a better day, Wood seems to ask in his dialogues of God and Satan, "When will they learn?" In the last dialogue, between God and Satan, he sees man "still in the jungle" and with no hope for immediate escape; yet he reveals his faith that the masses will in the end achieve their better day.

The Twilight of the Hapsburgs

GOLDEN FLEECE. By Bertita Harding. (The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

MRS. HARDING, whose two previous contributions to the ever-widening field of "fictionized biography" have proved so popular, has rather outdone herself in this story of the decay and dissolution of the ancient house of Hapsburg, and of the tragedy which stalked its last remaining sovereigns, Franz Joseph of Austria and his cousin and Empress, Elisabeth.

With rare insight Mrs. Harding has seen these royal personages for exactly what they were — normal, intensely human beings, possessed of average intelligence and capacities, born and bred to believe in the divine right of kings, and refusing to believe otherwise even when the World War destroyed their dynasty.

Mrs. Harding seems to have treated the vividly patterned background of European politics, during the 68 years of Franz Joseph's reign, as of less importance than the very human story of Elisabeth herself—Elisabeth, of the whimsical Bavarian house of Wittelsbach, Europe's most beautiful sovereign, who never learned that one cannot run away from self. "Elisabeth," says Mrs. Harding, "remains history's most glaring example of a woman spoiled by man's sheer kindness." On the other hand, Franz Joseph perhaps remains history's most striking example of a kindly sovereign, husband and father, whose well-intentioned efforts were rewarded, not with domestic happiness or national prosperity, but with a complete collapse of everything he held dear. Benign and tactful, patient and sympathetic, he showered Elisabeth throughout the long years of their married life with a largess of freedom and affection for which he received in return only ingratitude.

What peculiar fate dogs the steps of Emperors and Kings with tragedy and scandal may never be known, but the Hapsburgs were no exception. The tragedy of Maximilian and his Belgian Princess, Charlotte, Mrs. Harding related in "The Phantom Crown." Rudolph, heir to the throne of Austria, perished in a suicide pact with his mistress. Ludwig II of Bavaria, Elisabeth's cousin, was quite mad, and his absurd and dangerous antics contributed no small part to her ceaseless and semi-hysterical perambulations over Europe, for above all else she feared insanity. She died at the hands of an assassin while on one of these giddy journeys, leaving an old and lonely Emperor to mourn her passing.

That monarchies were not to last forever, Rudolph alone discerned. As a schoolboy he had written: "The concept of royalty is nothing but a mighty ruin, which may last through today and tomorrow, but must eventually sink into oblivion."

Franz Joseph himself died before the next storm, but when it finally came the ruin was complete and the rule of the Hapsburgs was over.

Golden Fleece will take its place beside Mrs. Harding's deservedly successful "Phantom Crown" and "Royal Purple."

In Kansas Sixty Years Ago

SOD-HOUSE DAYS. By Howard Ruede. Edited by John Ise. (Columbia University Press, New York.)

SIXTY years ago last March Howard Ruede of Bethlehem, Pa., took a homestead on the prairie of central Kansas. During the following year he wrote regularly to his parents in the East, giving in meticulous detail the story of his daily life. In 1928 his letters were discovered by Mr. John Ise of the University of Kansas, who has edited them for the Columbia University Studies in the History of American Agriculture.

There is nothing exciting in "Sod-House Days," for the Indian wars were over in that section of the country when Ruede came; and what bison were left of the southern herd roamed farther to the west. The record here preserved is one of work, scheming, and deprivation lightly borne. If Ruede and his neighbors are building a dugout or laying up a sod-house, digging a well or breaking prairie, the whole process is made perfectly clear in the writer's quite unimaginative account. If the reader must have thrills he shall have to create them for himself out of the hope implicit in the writer's striving and scheming.

There can be no question as to the genuine value of such a record, so far as it goes; but it should not be assumed that the record is comprehensive in its presentation of that time and country. One who lived in a sod-house farther to the north and west during the same period can remember much of vital importance that Ruede either overlooked or did not experience. The social life, for instance, was unique and far from dull, but our letter writer seems never to have had any fun. The hot winds, the grasshoppers, the prairie fires are barely mentioned! Now and then there is some slight indication that the hard-working, thrifty young German noticed beauty, but mostly he is concerned with work and petty figuring. One feels that he was of "the salt of the earth," right enough; but to be 23 years old in a new country like that—and yet to be all nose-to-the-grindstone!

Logical Approach To Ideals

THE RECOVERY OF IDEALS. By Georgia Harkness. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

AS professor of philosophy in Elmira College, Dr. Harkness has had wide experience with the Protestant young people of today. She has found them, for the greater part, without any definite spiritual ideals, restless, unhappy, discouraged. Children of that generation who followed Darwin, Freud, and other materalistic thinkers, they have inherited the sense of human futility.

It is principally to this group—this "lost generation"—that Dr. Harkness addresses herself. She offers them a philosophical approach to ideals. Contrary to the popular notion that an ideal is a "sort of pretty will-o'-the-wisp to lead spiritually-minded but soft-hearted and empty-headed people away from the paths of dependable realism," she finds them among life's most dependable realities. To prove this, one has only to note the change they can make in a life.

With the aid of scientific knowledge, logic, and the Christian tradition, Dr. Harkness arrives at a philosophy which proclaims the old fundamentals—the existence of a personal God, the freedom of man's will, his consequent responsibility, and the high destiny of the human soul.

Week Closes With Many Small Gains; U. S. Governments Up as Group.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—A holiday-shortened week, during which volume held at unusually low levels, restricted price movements in the bond market, but the quiet advance since midweek continued into the brief closing session.

Dullness on Tuesday and Wednesday was attributed to uncertainty over the Government's June-quarter financing plans. Although this was partially eradicated early Thursday, when Secretary Morgenthau announced the Treasury would borrow $800,000,000 of which $500,000,000 represented new money, investors continued to remain on the side lines.

U. S. Government loans edged back and forth most of the week.

Domestic Corporate Liens.

Domestic corporate bonds loitered, with lifting tendencies dominant most of the time. Wide arcs were described by New York, New Haven & Hartford loans, following announcement of the filing Tuesday of a reorganization plan for the road. Wednesday and Thursday saw heavy declines by the less directly secured loans. Thereafter swings became more orderly. Other rail obligations moved upward on light trading. Industrials and utilities also tended to rise a bit.

Foreigns clung to narrow paths, as the little interest appearing centered in the domestic market.

New financing for the period was sharply below the corresponding 1936 week, but showed a slight increase over the previous two weeks.

Saturday's Bond Trade.

The market plodded through another quiet session today and emerged with many small gains. U. S. Governments turned up as a group, following Friday's slightly erratic movements, and finished with advances ranging to 9-32 of a point. While several remained even on the day, none lost ground.

Turnover for the short session totaled $4,363,000, face value, for all bonds compared with $3,895,000 on May 22. A week ago the market was closed to inaugurate the long Memorial day holiday.

Lower rated railroad bonds moved ahead small fractions as did public utility issues. The Associated Press averages for 20 carriers liens moved up .1 of a point to 93.6 and the 10 utilities gained the same amount at 98.1.

Hudson Manhattan refunding 5s advanced 1 point to 67½, Southern Railway 4s added ⅝ at 78¾ and St. Paul 5s of 1975 edged a bit higher. On the down side were International Hydro-Electric 6s off ⅜ at 76⅝ and Interborough Rapid Transit 5s continued to slide, losing ¾ to 63¼, Postal Telephone 5s dipped ½ to 25¾.

Foreign dollar bonds failed to stir up interest and prices showed only minor changes.

CURB CLOSE MIXED WHEN RETREATS FOLLOW GAINS

NEW YORK, June 5.—After pushing a little higher in the first hour, the curb market retreated today as buying interest waned. The close was mixed. A few industrials were responsive to moderate demand. Technicolor, E. W. Bliss Co., International Petroleum, Humble Oil and St. Regis Paper finished with some gains. Gulf fell back after a fair rise in early dealings. Fractionally lower were the final prices for Arkansas Natural Gas "A," Consolidated Aircraft, Niagara Hudson Power, Newmount and New Jersey Zinc. Transactions of 74,000 shares were the smallest for a Saturday in about a year. Previous Saturday volume was 161,000 shares.

New financing for the period was sharply below the corresponding 1936 week, but showed a slight increase over the previous two weeks.

Saturday's Bond Trade.

The market plodded through another quiet session today and emerged with many small gains. U. S. Governments turned up as a group, following Friday's slightly erratic movements, and finished with advances ranging to 9-32 of a point. While several remained even on the day, none lost ground.

Turnover for the short session totaled $4,363,000, face value, for all bonds compared with $3,895,000 on May 22. A week ago the market was closed to inaugurate the long Memorial day holiday.

Lower rated railroad bonds moved ahead small fractions as did public utility issues. The Associated Press averages for 20 carriers liens moved up .1 of a point to 93.6 and the 10 utilities gained the same amount at 98.1.

Hudson Manhattan refunding 5s advanced 1 point to 67½, Southern Railway 4s added ⅝ at 78¾ and St. Paul 5s of 1975 edged a bit higher. On the down side were International Hydro-Electric 6s off ⅜ at 76⅝ and Interborough Rapid Transit 5s continued to slide, losing ¾ to 63¼, Postal Telephone 5s dipped ½ to 25¾.

Foreign dollar bonds failed to stir up interest and prices showed only minor changes.

CURB CLOSE MIXED WHEN RETREATS FOLLOW GAINS

NEW YORK, June 5.—After pushing a little higher in the first hour, the curb market retreated today as buying interest waned. The close was mixed. A few industrials were responsive to moderate demand. Technicolor, E. W. Bliss Co., International Petroleum, Humble Oil and St. Regis Paper finished with some gains. Gulf fell back after a fair rise in early dealings. Fractionally lower were the final prices for Arkansas Natural Gas "A," Consolidated Aircraft, Niagara Hudson Power, Newmount and New Jersey Zinc. Transactions of 74,000 shares were the smallest for a Saturday in about a year. Previous Saturday volume was 161,000 shares.

Horses and Mules.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., June 5.—Cautious buying prevailed in horses and mules here the past week and the general market turned in a lower average. Receipts made a moderate total of around 375 head on commission and a number of buyers put in their appearance, but selling lacked vigor.

Eastern chunks and work horses eased and pressure, too, was directed against plain work mules and smooth mouthed mules. On the other hand, the filly trade was fairly good and a demand was noted for riders. Also, good mine mules and sugar mules had a fairly good call.

Dealers report orders for colts, especially yearling and two-year-old fillies and mule colts. A special sale of colts will be held here June 22 and 23.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $125@160; medium to good draft, $100@125; good to choice chunks, $100@125; smooth-mouthed chunks, $80@110; large farm mares, $125@150; medium farm mares, $90@110; fillies, yearlings and twos; small common, $30@50; good size, $60@85; extra size and quality, $120@160 (horse colts sell $15@25 per head less than fillies); good Southern mares, $75@100; small Southern mares, $40@60; small cheap horses, $30@50.

*MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@140; colt mules, small, $60@85; draft mules, $150@200; mine mules, 15.3 to 16 hands, $135@160; mine mules, 14 to 15 hands, $90@125; choice cotton mules 14.2 to 15 hands, $150@175; small, green mules, over 3 years old, $50@85.

*Quotations are for average animals and do not cover those of outstanding quality or the very cheapest grade.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY STOCKYARDS.

Moderate Forward Movement In Stocks Despite a Series of Incidents Causing Nervousness

Short Week's Trade Reflects Influence of European Situation and Strikes, Carloadings and Retail Trade Gains.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—A late spurt in industrials and rails helped pull the stock market forward this week, after an abrupt drop at the start, and the closing brief session showed many moderate gains in favored specialties despite week-end profit-taking.

Early in the week values crumbled as traders became nervous over the latest Spanish crisis. Returning to work Tuesday after the long week-end holiday, Wall Street was confronted with Monday's selling in European financial centers.

As the week progressed, war threat clouds apparently lifted and stocks moved higher, although the advance was not aggressive.

Brokers said the half-hearted rise reflected the damper on sentiment provided by strikes in independent steel companies. What the shut-downs meant to industry was indicated by the sharp cut in steel operations—estimated at 77.4 per cent of capacity by the American Iron & Steel Institute, compared with 91 per cent the previous week.

In important divisions of industry, support was uneven. Power output was a little higher. A drop in motor production was accompanied by a fresh outbreak of strikes as the week drew to a close. Carloadings swelled more than seasonally. Retail trade expanded.

A week of Wall Street rumors that the Government might cut its gold price—a move deemed deflationary by brokers—was topped by the assurance of President Roosevelt that there had been no change in gold policy.

Sales during the week (five days) amounted to 2,953,880 shares, compared with 3,266,264 a week ago (five days) and 3,833,720 a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 215,389,599 shares, compared with 243,159,613 a year ago and 107,365,557 corresponding period a year ago.

Quiet Demand for Farm Implement Shares Saturday's Feature.

Quiet demand for farm implement shares and specialties helped to keep today's stock market on balance, after profit-selling made its appearance, following an early forward tilt, and extreme advances were pared or cancelled in many instances. Small fractional gains were in the majority at the finish.

It was the slowest Saturday session in a month, transfers totaling 342,440 shares, but the Associated Press average of 60 issues managed to emerge .1 of a point higher at 67.8.

Sporadic strikes in plants of General Motors and Chrysler were settled but the former's stock was off ¼ at 55⅜ and the latter's yielded ⅝ at 113⅜.

The steel labor situation kept shares in this department subdued. Rails shifted about uneasily as carrier wage negotiations gave indications of being a long-drawn affair.

Utilities held to a restricted groove.

Among shares closing up as much as a point or so were Deere at 134, International Harvester 112, J. I. Case 171, du Pont 158, Flintkote 31¼, Union Pacific 140, Western Union 58¼, Cerro de Pasco 69¾, and General American Transportation 69.

On the offside were U. S. Steel at 101⅜, Westinghouse 143½, General Electric 54¼, Southern Pacific 51½, Santa Fe 84, Sears Roebuck 89¾, Douglas Aircraft 58¾ and Standard Oil of N. J. 66⅝.

Bonds did a bit better. Commodities were mixed as grains broke sharply at Chicago. Wheat lost 3 to 4½ cents a bushel and corn was down 1½ to 3⅜. Cotton was up 15 to 35 cents a bale.

While gold was taken in sizable amounts at London for shipment to America, the British rate was raised about 1 cent an ounce after a drop of some 8 cents yesterday. Both sterling and the French franc were moderately improved in terms of the dollar.

U. S. CIVIL AIRCRAFT, PARTS OUTPUT IN YEAR, $78,000,000

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The Air Commerce Bureau reported today the value of civil air craft and parts produced in the United States last year was $78,148,893.

Production of airplanes, totaling 3010, was nearly double the previous year, the bureau said. The planes, exclusive of engines and certain other parts, were valued at $47,531,565.

The 4295 engines built were valued at $26,383,055 and propellers, parachutes and pontoons at $4,234,273.

Five balloons, valued at $38,709, were produced.

Aircraft manufacturers employed 30,575 factory and office workers.

Coach and Locomtive Orders.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Chicago & Northwestern has ordered one 4-6-4 locomotive from American Locomotive Co., making a total of nine ordered since February. General Electric Co. has received an order from East Erie Commercial Railroad for one Diesel-electric switching engine, and Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co. is supplying Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific with 10 coaches.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY SHOWS LOSS OF 1.9

Steel Mills Affected by Strikes; Auto Output Lower, Due to the Season.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Giving ground before another wave of strikes, this time in steel plants, industrial activity dipped somewhat this week. The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index was 106.4 per cent of the 1929-30 average, compared with 108.3 in the previous period and 89.4 a year ago. The setback was widest in more than a year.

Steel-mill operations fell 15 per cent, as strikes affected a number of plants.

Automobile output, well past its normal seasonal peak, fell back abruptly. The reason advanced in trade circles was that inventories had been built up sufficiently to meet any normal demand, with a reaction long overdue.

Cotton manufacturing also dipped slightly.

Freight carloadings picked up on heavy shipments of coal and ore.

Electric power production and residential building improved somewhat.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on the latest available statistics and with 1929-30 as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest wk.	Pr. wk.	Yr. Ago.

FOREIGN CROPS AND MARKETS REPORT BY GOVERNMENT

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The Agriculture Department reports that rise of world wheat prices to near the pegged British price had caused suspension of quota payments made by wheat millers and importers. The payments are used to assure British growers a domestic price of $1.32 a bu (10 shillings a hundredweight).

British Government leaders have asked Parliament to increase the domestic wheat subsidy quota from 50,000,000 to 67,000,000 bu. The quota payments, which have been collected since 1932 have varied from more than 38 cents a hundred pounds in 1935 down to less than 5 cents early this year.

The Canadian Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa says agricultural operations had been delayed by cool weather and abundant rainfall throughout Canada, except in part of the prairie provinces.

Wet fields delayed seeding, the Canadian agency says, with much remaining to be done. Pastures were aided. Southern Alberta and Saskatchewan, however, need rainfall.

The second official estimate on the new wheat crop in India is 359,359,000 bu, compared with 352,240,000 bu last year. The flaxseed crop is placed at 6,720,000 bu, compared with 15,520,000 bu last year.

Prospects for the Cuban pineapple and avocado crops, which are exported to the United States, are reported good by the American Consul at Habana. He says the yield of export pineapples is estimated from 900,000 to 1,400,000 crates. The avocado crop is estimated about the same size as last season, when the United States imported 9,844,089 pounds.

The Belgrade office of the department said cold, rainy weather in the Danube basin during blossoming time had reduced prospects for the prune crop to about one-fifth normal.

The American Vice-Consul at Yarmouth reports a good apple crop is indicated in Nova Scotia.

ZINC AND COPPER STEADY, LEAD UNCHANGED, TIN OFF

NEW YORK, June 5.—Copper in the domestic market held steady at 14 cents a pound, delivered valley, last week. Domestic buying was said to have been in somewhat smaller volume, due to the influence of new labor difficulties.

In the export market, however, prices turned easy and lost about half-a-cent on a let-up in demand. At the close of the week, export commanded a premium of only 7 points, ruling at 14.07.

Following early steadiness, tin declined about ¼ of a cent for the week. Consumers were reported building up larger inventories, but, with consumption lessened because of industrial disputes, the market was narrow.

Lead likewise showed a curtailment of intake by consumers, but, with a large smelter keeping his refined output down, the price structure was unchanged, with the undertone firm.

Zinc was steady, with a little new bidding observed. The tight situation in prompt supplies was the paramount influence in the market.

Antimony was reduced ¼ cent, following the previous week's advance.

With operations in the Youngstown district down to 45 per cent of normal because of the strike involving three major companies, and Cleveland-Lorain and Chicago districts also suffering heavily from the work stoppage, steel operations in the country as a whole declining to a new low level for the year. Ingot production for the week was down to 77½ per cent, against a revised figure of 85 per cent in the previous week.

WASHINGTON BUSINESS NOTES

WASHINGTON, June 5. — The Commerce Department reports iron and steel exports have steadily increased during the last three years, "clearly reflecting the strong demand in overseas markets."

Without attempting to evaluate the influence of foreign armament demands, the department says an uptrend of these exports has been accelerated since the latter part of last year.

"Foreign iron and steel industries have reached peak operations in an effort to meet local consumption requirements," the report continues, adding that Japan has curtailed exports and Germany has quit granting preference to export orders.

At 243,000 gross tons, April shipments of semi-finished and finished iron and steel from the United States were 35,000 tons above the same month last year and were more than any month in 1929.

The National Coal Association estimates bituminous coal production for the week ended May 29 at 7,425,000 net tons, compared with 7,280,000 tons in the previous week and 6,678,000 tons in the same week last year. From Jan. 1 to May 29, production is listed at 189,371,000 tons, compared with 168,170,000 tons in the same period last year.

Advices to the Commerce Department from business representatives in foreign countries include:

ITALY—Hydraulic works planned on Tiber.

MOSCOW—Improvement in telephone system planned.

YUGOSLAVIA—Aluminum plant to be constructed.

LOCAL STOCKS DOWN ON SMALL TURNOVER

Light Losses Are the Rule—Several Issues Score Gains for Period.

Trading on the St. Louis Stock Exchange was light last week as prices ruled unchanged to lower. Most losses were small. Wagner Electric, however, was down 2½ points on limited turnover. Missouri Portland was unchanged after slight upturn. Falstaff was higher. Brown Shoe closed higher.

National Candy, Dr. Pepper and Hussmann-Ligonier were down fractionally.

Huttig preferred was off sharply from last sale made several months ago.

DRY GOODS AND SPECIALTY STORE PROFIT GAIN IN 1936

NEW YORK, June 5.—The National Retail Dry Goods Association reports the average department, dry goods and specialty store made a profit of 2.6 per cent on sales in 1936 compared with 1.6 per cent in 1935.

The dollar sales total was 11 per cent higher than in 1935, the report states, which, together with an increase in operating efficiency, enabled the average store to lower its operating expense ratio from previous levels, despite the fact that there were higher costs and increased taxation of various kinds.

Among the departments of the average store showing the strongest sales gains were many of those in the home-furnishings division, the association reports, indicating renewal of interest in articles for the home that became evident with business recovery and increased employment.

Departments leading in the percentage of sales increases included blankets, 23 per cent; furniture, 22 per cent; floor coverings, 20 per cent; lamps and shades, 21 per cent, and household appliances, 15 per cent.

GOLD MOVEMENT; CURRENCY CHANGES

Metal Shipments to U. S. Overshadow Actual Exchange Fluctuations.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—A new gold rush to American shores overshadowed actual movements of currencies in foreign exchange markets this week. A vast de-hoarding movement, which began in Western Europe late in the preceding week, gathered momentum, and by Friday total engagements abroad for shipment to the United States had attained a total of $47,058,000. This compared with engagements of $29,543,000 in the preceding week and a somewhat smaller average total in the weeks immediately preceding.

The new movement followed rumors of policy change which were repeatedly denied by high officials at Washington.

Actual currency movements were kept fairly well in hand. The British pound sterling dropped from $4.93 9-16 to $4.92⅜ and then quickly regained composure and was holding around $4.93½ as the week drew near a close. French francs lost about .01 of a cent, but also came back, as did Holland guilders and Swiss francs.

Italian lire held solidly against all developments, reflecting strong official control.

In narrow fluctuations today most leading currencies gained in terms of the dollar. Sterling rose ⅛ cent, and minor advances were recorded by French and Swiss francs. The Holland guilder dipped slightly.

Early advices from London reported bar gold amounting to £1,300,000 available in the open market taken for unknown destinations. With the dollar at 4.935 to the pound, the priced fixed for the metal was equal to $34.62 per fine ounce against $34.61 at the same time yesterday.

London financial authorities estimated, the cables said that 70 per cent of foreign gold hoarded in that center had been sold, and, with the de-hoarding movement so far advanced, monetary experts were looking for more orderly conditions in the gold market within the next few weeks.

Rates follow:

Great Britain in dollars, others in cents. Great Britain, demand 4.93⅝, cables 4.93⅝, 60-day bills 4.92⅜; France, demand 4.45⅞, cables 4.45⅞; Italy, demand 5.26¼, cables 5.26¼.

GOLD MOVEMENT; CURRENCY CHANGES

Metal Shipments to U. S. Overshadow Actual Exchange Fluctuations.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—A new gold rush to American shores overshadowed actual movements of currencies in foreign exchange markets this week. A vast dehoarding movement, which began in Western Europe late in the preceding week, gathered momentum, and by Friday total engagements abroad for shipment to the United States had attained a total of $47,058,000. This compared with engagements of $29,543,000 in the preceding week and a somewhat smaller average total in the weeks immediately preceding.

The new movement followed rumors of policy change which were repeatedly denied by high officials at Washington.

Actual currency movements were kept fairly well in hand. The British pound sterling dropped from $4.93 9-16 to $4.92⅜ and then quickly regained composure and was holding around $4.93½ as the week drew near a close. French francs lost about .01 of a cent, but also came back, as did Holland guilders and Swiss francs.

Italian lire held solidly against all developments, reflecting strong official control.

In narrow fluctuations today most leading currencies gained in terms of the dollar. Sterling rose ⅛ cent, and minor advances were recorded by French and Swiss francs. The Holland guilder dipped slightly.

Early advices from London reported bar gold amounting to £1,300,000 available in the open market taken for unknown destinations. With the dollar at 4.935 to the pound, the priced fixed for the metal was equal to $34.62 per fine ounce against $34.61 at the same time yesterday.

London financial authorities estimated, the cables said that 70 per cent of foreign gold hoarded in that center had been sold, and, with the de-hoarding movement so far advanced, monetary experts were looking for more orderly conditions in the gold market within the next few weeks.

Rates follow:

Great Britain in dollars, others in cents. Great Britain, demand 4.93⅝, cables 4.93⅝, 60-day bills 4.92⅜; France, demand 4.45⅞, cables 4.45⅞; Italy, demand 5.26¼, cables 5.26¼.

Demands: Belgium, 16.83; Germany free 40.05, registered 21.50, travel 25.25; Holland, 54.99; Norway, 24.80; Sweden, 25.45; Denmark, 22.04; Finland, 2.19; Switzerland, 22.82; Spain unquoted; Portugal, 4.48½; Greece, .91; Poland, 18.97; Czechoslovakia, 3.49; Yugoslavia, 2.34; Austria, 18.75n; Hungary, 19.80; Rumania, .75; Argentina, 32.88n; Brazil, 8.80¼n; Tokio, 28.74; Shanghai, 29.90; Hongkong, 30.44; Mexico City, 27.85; Montreal in New York, 99.98 7-16; New York in Montreal, 100.01 9-16.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—An overnight addition of $12,000,000 worth of gold pushed the total of the Treasury's inactive stock of the metal to $807,832,082 today.

Imports of the metal caused the Treasury to "sterilize" the foreign gold in an inactive fund.

President Roosevelt said yesterday no action was contemplated at present to stop the heavy receipts.

The inactive fund is part of a $12,039,165,350 store of gold owned by the Treasury, about half the world supply of the precious metal.

FARM MORTGAGE INVESTMENTS

WASHINGTON, June 5. — The Farm Credit Administration reports private individuals, banks and insurance companies increased investments in farm mortgages in the first quarter of this year, compared with last, while loans by Government agencies declined.

F C A says the total of first mortgage recordings for the first quarter of this year was $223,000,000, a decline of 5 per cent from last year.

It says the credit came from the following sources: Private individuals, $79,000,000; commercial banks, $61,000,000; life insurance companies, $36,000,000; F C A agencies, $33,000,000, and all others, $14,000,000.

Index for 35 Items Registers 90.50 Against 91.36 Week Ago and 71.85 Last Year.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Slackening industrial demand and widespread rainfall over the Mid-West pressed commodity prices down this week, extending the current decline to more than two months.

With strikes affecting many companies, managements have drawn on inventories rather than step into the market for further stocks. Then, too, analysts point out demand during the nearby future is uncertain in many consumer lines, clouded by hint of a summer slackening in industry.

This is reflected in such prices as rubber, turpentine, lumber and burlap, all of which have slipped back. Bituminous coal and tin register small gains.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 important wholesale staples fell to 90.50 per cent of the 1926 average, from 91.36 last week, and compared with 71.85 a year ago. The latest figure was 7 per cent under the year's high.

Declining commodities held a three-to-one edge numerically over those turning in advances in this list.

Corn, wheat, oats, rye and cotton all moved off somewhat.

Livestock drifted lower. Lambs chalked up a healthy advance. Official estimates pointed toward a reduction in animals available for market during the next few months.

Market basket items dipped into new low ground for the year. Although demand is reported to have been fairly well maintained, supplies expanded with the passing weeks. Eggs, flour and lard fell back, while cocoa moved up a notch.

Textiles slumped to a new bottom for the past seven months, with cotton cloth and silk in the van. Wool stood against the trend, rising slightly on strong demand. The textile situation generally, however, continued to show the effect of over-production that has been noticeable in the recent past.

The index, with its components based on 1926 as 100, compared as follows:

	June 4.	Prev. Wk.	Yr. ago.

COTTON STEADY, 3 TO 7 POINTS HIGHER IN PRICE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Cotton was steady today, within a narrow range, on moderate price fixing and week-end covering. October rallied from 12.67 to 12.72 and closed at 12.71, with final prices 3 to 7 points net higher.

Trading was light in absence of incentives for fresh commitments. The opening was unchanged to 2 points higher, reflecting steadiness at Liverpool, and a little trade and foreign buying.

Contracts were supplied by July liquidation and light scattered local selling promoted by reports of beneficial rains in Eastern Texas and Western Louisiana.

General light to heavy rains were reported from Central Texas eastward through the central belt and there were a few scattered showers in the Carolinas.

The weekly forecast was for scattered showers during the middle of the week in the Gulf and Southern Plain States.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 51,000 bales, against 68,000 last year and 56,000 two years ago.

WHEAT 3 TO 4.5 CENTS LOWER ON CROP PROSPECTS

Prices About 23 Under Season's Peak in April; Corn, Oats, Rye Also Give Way at Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Violent slipping of wheat prices today—4½ cents a bushel in some cases—resulted largely from flurried liquidating sales by holders.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were around the day's bottom figures, 3 to 4½ cents below yesterday's finish, July, $1.06½-¾; September, $1.06¾@1.07⅛; December, $1.09@1.09⅛; corn, 1½@3⅝ cents off; July, $1.19½-⅝; September, $1.06@1.06¼; December, 77@77¼c; oats, 1¼@2¾ cents down, July, 39¾-⅞c, and rye showing 3½@3¾ cents setback, July 88½c. July wheat suffered the sharpest tumble in Chicago tday, falling at one time to $1.06½ from $1.11 at yesterday's close.

Corn, oats and rye values gave way in sympathy with wheat. It was stressed that Chicago this week had received more than a million bushels of Argentine corn, and will unload another quarter million on Monday. New seasonal low price records were established for September and December oats and rye.

Provisions, reflecting downturns of grains to some extent, were unchanged to 12 cents lower.

Wheat Crop Prospects.

Decided improvement of 1937 wheat crop prospects in the United States appeared to be the principal underlying factor in the price-drop. Heavy beneficial rains fell in domestic spring wheat areas, and the weekly forecast indicated helpful cool clear weather throughout the winter wheat region.

An unexpected drop in Liverpool quotations did much to start today's selling stampede. With unofficial predictions current, too, that the domestic winter wheat yield would approximate 700,000,000 bushels, an amount 50,000,000 bushels more than recently forecast, wheat prices here reached the lowest level touched in the last six months, about 23 cents a bushel under the season's peak, made early in April.

Speculative Burden.

Numerous speculative sellers added to the burden of the market. Stop-loss orders in profusion were automatically forced to be executed, and gave momentum to the downward sweep of values. Meanwhile, general indifference of buyers was an outstanding market feature, although some purchasing for mills came into evidence at times.

Cables attributed bearish action of the Liverpool market to present slow demand for wheat both in Great Britain and in European continental countries. Talk was heard that, although the amount of wheat on ocean passage to importing countries would soon decrease sharply, Canada and Australia could easily supply the relatively small amount of wheat needed by Europe in the next nine weeks. Furthermore, a leading authority reported that, with perfect conditions from now until cutting time, the Kansas yield of wheat might be raised 5 to 10 million bushels above 133,789,000 bushels.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 35,596,000 bushels, and corn 36,459,000 bushels. Open interest in wheat was 89,724,000 bushels, and in corn 32,875,000 bushels.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, June 5.—Wheat futures fell sharply today. July closed 3½c lower at $1.06¼ and Sept. sold off 3c at $1.06⅞. Sept. oats were 1¼c lower at 35⅝c.

Winnipeg wheat started ⅝@⅞c lower. The close was 2@3¼c lower.

Liverpool wheat was ¼d higher in opening cable and closed ¼@⅜d lower.

Argentine wheat opened ½c lower and corn unchanged. The close was ⅝@¾c lower for wheat and ¼@⅜c off for corn.

Local wheat receipts which were 4500 bu compared with 7500 a week ago and 67,500 a year ago included 1 car local and 2 through. Corn receipts which were 27,000 bu, compared with 43,500 a week ago and 48,000 a year ago included 16 cars local and 2 through. Oats receipts which were 14,000 bu, compared with 12,000 a week ago and 40,000 a year ago, included 7 cars local and 1 through. Hay receipts were 1 car local and none through.

In the cash grain market Saturday, wheat was nominally about 3c lower. There were no offerings and little inquiry. Corn was 3c higher. Offerings were light as most of the receipts were applied on previous contracts. Demand was limited. A feeder bought a car of No. 3 yellow, the only sale made. Oats were ½c lower. Supply was somewhat larger and the demand was better. Mills, feeders and outside order buyers showed the interest.

ANTI-FIREWORKS ORDINANCE PASSED

It Bars Discharge, Sale or Exposure in City—Public Displays Permitted.

A bill prohibiting discharge, sale or exposure for sale of fireworks within the city was passed by the Board of Aldermen yesterday with the minimum of 15 favorable votes. There were 11 votes against it and three members absent. The measure, if allowed to stand, will not become effective until after the Fourth of July. An effort may be made to reconsider it next Friday.

After Alderman Hubert A. Hoeflinger changed his vote from "aye" to "no," Alderman Bernard J. Fitzsimmons switched from "no" to "aye." Alderman Emmett Golden, an opponent of the measure, asserted that comparatively few persons here were injured by fireworks, whereas the bill would cost St. Louis merchants more than $1,000,000 worth of business annually. No private displays of fireworks will be allowed, but only displays in public places, in charge of competent adults, under permits issued by the Department of Public Safety.

Violation of the ordinance would be punishable by a fine of $5 to $500.

The annual standardization bill, fixing the pay of about 4000 city employes in the classified service, with 55 instances of increases over last year, was passed unanimously. The increases will not swell the budget, as the various departments will have to absorb this cost by reducing the work correspondingly. There were 52 increases in hourly rates, ranging from 6 to 25 cents, including 31 at 25 cents, five at 20 cents and five at 15 cents. Additional weekly pay was provided for three classifications, as follows: Bakers, $3.10; baker's helpers, $3.40; butchers, $2.50.

Another bill passed unanimously provided additional pay of $10 a month for institutional employes supposed to receive maintenance but for whom living quarters were not available. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment had reduced the amount from $15.

The board adopted unanimously a resolution by Alderman Golden, expressing its sense that workers in the institutions should not have their pay docked when tardy or indisposed. Golden complained of such docking, particularly at City Sanitarium.

ST. LOUIS U. HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION WEDNESDAY

David C. Chopin and William A. Moffitt Win Scholarships at University.

Commencement exercises of St. Louis University High School will be held at 8 a. m. Wednesday at the university gymnasium, 3672 West Pine boulevard. The Rev. Richard A. Cahill, S. J., president of the high school, will present diplomas to 101 graduates.

Two four-year scholarships to St. Louis University will be given by the high school instead of the usual one such scholarship, since David C. Chopin and William A. Moffitt tied for first place in competitive examinations for the award. George T. Mehan Jr. will receive a $37.50 prize and medals for victories in a State-wide oratorical contest sponsored by the American Legion, and Lawrence Jansen will receive a $10 prize and medal for the Missouri award in the National Gorgas Memorial Essay Contest.

The commencement address will be delivered by Circuit Judge Maurice V. Joyce of the Third Illinois District. Graduates who will speak are Mehan and John C. Corley.

Early in the nineteen hundreds, Louis K. Liggett, an ambitious young salesman with vision, persuaded 40 independent, courageous druggists from towns large and small, sprinkled across the nation, to join together, pool their resources and talents, and form a co-operative manufacturing and merchandising organization.

On that day Rexall was born. On that day the retail drug business was lifted from an obscure apothecary shop to a world circling business and profession that raised its standards beyond previous conception.

Today, in this town, there's one or more Rexall Drug Stores where you will find the values advertised here—on sale at the prices shown here.

Upon his first American encounter with Mrs. Campbell that veteran sustained her reputation for saying the wrong thing wittily by remarking that "You'll find Katharine Cornell so fascinating personally that you'll even like her as an actress."

Agate, on his own, discovered what this department had never heard remarked before, that the facades of the skyscrapers at night, when their windows are irregularly illumined, resembled nothing so much as cosmic crossword puzzles. He almost at once found himself, untutored in the ways of Manhattan, stopping at a third-rate hotel, dining at catsmeat shops and being thoroughly fed up with the city. And he wrote a series of dispatches chronicling the filth, noise, bad food, dowdy women and unspeakable costliness of everything in America.

After a week of misery, however, George Jean Nathan took him to the Colony, and ever since then life and his digestion have been looking up. When he departed he was busy with a new series, contradicting and correcting everything he had said before. Heaven alone knows what the readers of "The London Sunday Times" will think of New York.

FOLK WHO ARE fascinated by fancy names — Frank Sullivan makes elegant rhymes with them—should look up the list of the advisory council of Andred Simon's Wine and Food Society of London. Mr. Simon must be as delighted with his catalogue of patrons as he would be by the possession, say, of a magnum of Chateau Latour '99, for they include Sir F. Colchester-Wemyss, Sir Stephen Gaselee, K. C. M. G., X. Marcel Boulestin, Ambrose Heath, Maurice Healy, the Lord Horder, Sir John Squire, the Dowager Lady Swaythling. G. B. Stern and Mr. Vyvyan Holland. If E. Phillips Oppenheim ever runs out of high-sounding titles for his fictional aristocracy, let him toy with Sir F. Colchester-Wemyss or the Dowager Lady Swaythling!

IN CASE you've been wondering what Billy Rose, erstwhile Mad Mahout of the Hippodrome, has been doing all spring, in addition to staging his Aquafestival for the reopening of the Great Lakes Exposition at Cleveland, we can quote you verbatim from the stage directions of the opening scene of the stage spectacle he has been running up for the Fort Worth Frontier Fiesta in Texas. The scene is a synthesis of the best features of four best sellers, "Gone With the Wind," "Wake Up and Live," "Lost Horizon" and "It Can't Happen Here."

The set is played against huge chromium stairs.

"First you will see the Black Shirts, then the Brown Shirts, then the Red. These will go into a modern bacchanal, which will be interrupted by a fanfare of trumpets. Edward Marshall, Metropolitan singer, will appear at the top of the stairs on the world's biggest revolving stage and will sing a song representative of the Spirit of America. Women in white patent leather costumes will appear, West Point cadets will march down the stairs, forces of the sea, forces of the air and finally the Texas Sweetheart No. 1 will sweep down the magnificent stairway.

"The Texas Sweetheart will be wearing the largest gown ever created, consisting of 1200 yards of spangled satin and 24 boys will carry the train. She will represent Liberty. Then, on a flagstaff, 50 feet above the scene, the Stars and Stripes and the Lone Star banner will be raised, while miniature battleships fire cannon in the lagoon in front of the receding stage and the heavens will be lighted with a shower of gold and silver stars."

The books will be dramatized with a musical background; there will be no dialogue, the appeal being visual and melodic. Describing the "Gone With the Wind" scene, the

London Drama Reviewer Reverses Himself After Knocking New York City

James Agate of London Sunday Times Discovers Big Town Not So Bad As He Had First Imagined

By Lucius Beebe

NEW YORK, June 5.

A LITTLE exploited, but nevertheless distinguished, visitor to the Broadway scene during recent weeks has been the so very British James Agate, monocled and pontifical drama reviewer of "The London Sunday Times" and film critic of "Tatler." Agate has been here on assignment from his paper to report the estate of the American drama and by personal inclination to avoid the discomforts of the coronation. Years ago when Boston was in its heyday and Mrs. Jack Gardner its most spectacular citizen, a mid-Western visitor, asked what most he wanted to see when he got there, replied, "The Atlantic Ocean and Mrs. Gardner." In much the same vein Agate has found that the most fascinating things in New York are "your Radio City and Mrs. Pat Campbell."

Upon his first American encounter with Mrs. Campbell that veteran sustained her reputation for saying the wrong thing wittily by remarking that "You'll find Katharine Cornell so fascinating personally that you'll even like her as an actress."

Agate, on his own, discovered what this department had never heard remarked before, that the facades of the skyscrapers at night, when their windows are irregularly illumined, resembled nothing so much as cosmic crossword puzzles. He almost at once found himself, untutored in the ways of Manhattan, stopping at a third-rate hotel, dining at catsmeat shops and being thoroughly fed up with the city. And he wrote a series of dispatches chronicling the filth, noise, bad food, dowdy women and unspeakable costliness of everything in America.

After a week of misery, however, George Jean Nathan took him to the Colony, and ever since then life and his digestion have been looking up. When he departed he was busy with a new series, contradicting and correcting everything he had said before. Heaven alone knows what the readers of "The London Sunday Times" will think of New York.

A CHINESE COOK

who was an artist, created many of the finest Hawaiian dishes. A story of his methods and many of his recipes appear today on

PAGE FIVE

"You will see a plantation in the Old South. Ladies and gentlemen will appear at a garden party, and Harriet Hoctor, famous ballerina, will arrive in a carriage drawn by four horses. She will portray Scarlett O'Hara, characterizing the romance of the book in dance. Everett Marshall will portray Rhett Butler and will sing 'Gone With the Wind,' composed by Dana Suesse, who wrote 'The Night Is Young and You're So Beautiful' hit of the 1936 show. Pickaninnies will dance and there will be an ensemble dance. The distant booming of cannon is heard, and Marshall gallops in on a horse, to shout that the end of a civilization is at hand. As the huge stage begins to turn, the mansion bursts into flames. Thus we will start the show by burning up the scene."

Just a child's portion of idealism!

ONE of the finest ways to see New York Harbor is to take a round trip on one of the fast ferries of the Central Railroad of New Jersey on the Sandy Hook run to Atlantic Highlands. . . . The voyage from the foot of Cedar street and back takes less than three hours and is elegant in the evening, when you can have supper on board. . . . George Abbott always gets plugs for restaurants and hotels and such that he patronizes into his plays. . . . That accounts for the mention of the toothpicks at Lindy's in "Room Service," as well as the flagrant boost for a brand of champagne which is imported by a friend. . . . The Wine and Food Society closed the gastronomic season by a magnificent dinner for the members of the National Committee at Jack and Charlie's on Tuesday.

F. P. A., in "Liberty," says that five glasses of sherry failed to make him any wittier than usual. . . . It would make most people fall into what Milt Gross used to call "a dip slip." . . . Incidentally, Heywood Broun, the town's most insistently self-identified radical, is back at "21," where dinner checks come to $25 for two. . . . A substantial number of Manhattanites are planning to make safari to Denver, when the Central City Opera House opens in mid-July, with Richard Aldrich as producer, Jed Harris directing and Ruth Gordon playing the lead role in "A Doll's House."

If you think hams come only from Virginia and Westphalia, you can look over the stock at Reuben's, some of which stem from China, Japan, Spain, France, Holland, Denmark and Lithuania. . . . A favorite is a Spanish ham cured with white pepper and hotter than Nigerian chile sauce.

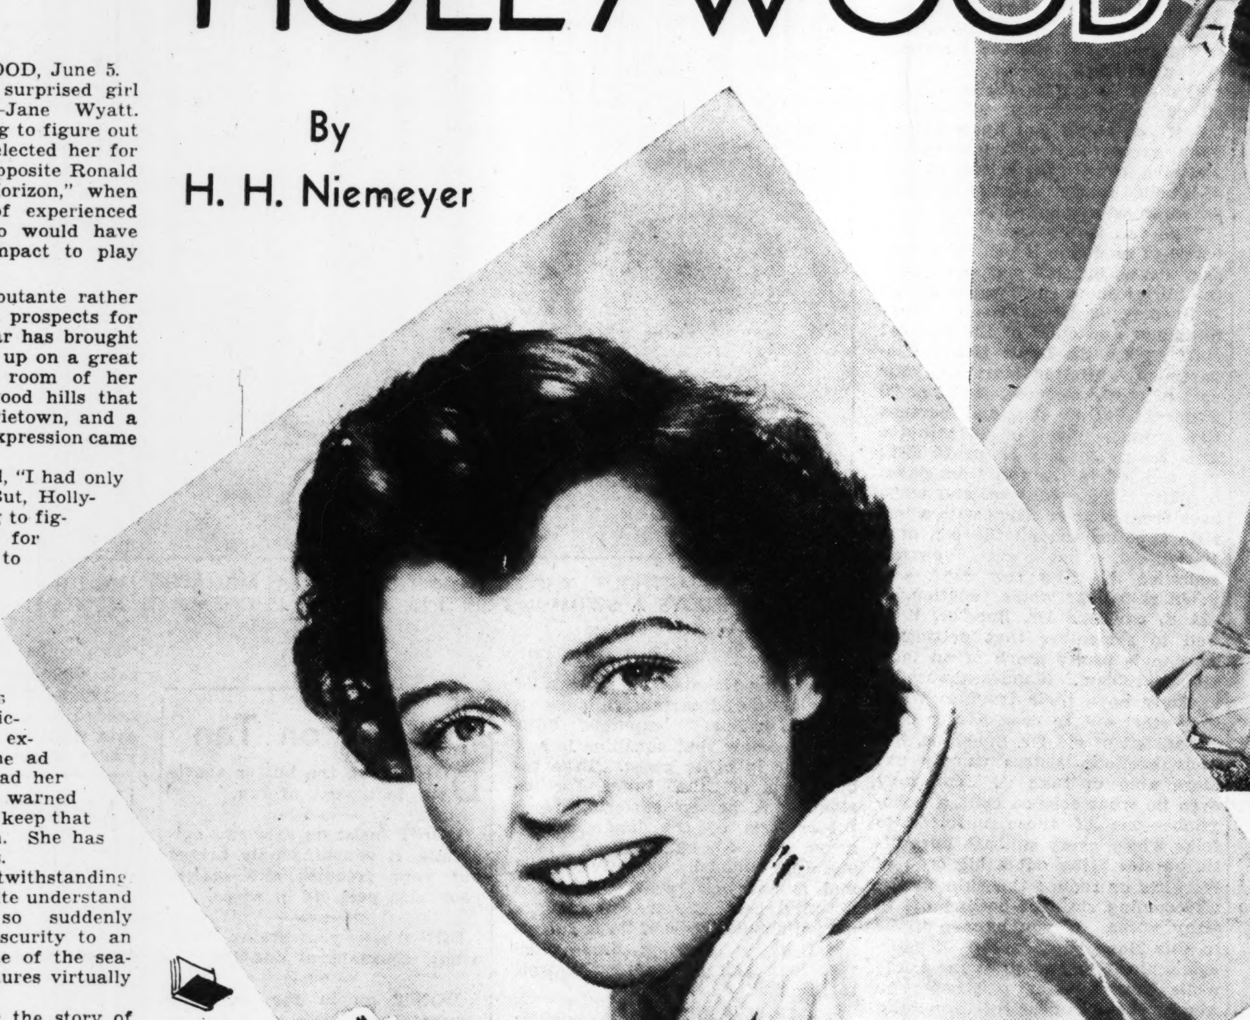
Natural Straw Bag

A bag that is made entirely of straw except for the frame, is among the coolest and most practical of summer accessories. Natural is considered the most fashionable this season, although there are white, navy and red bags from which to choose. When the bag becomes soiled, it gets a bath with soap and water applied with a small brush.

The MOST SURPRISED GIRL in HOLLYWOOD

By H. H. Niemeyer

MISS WYATT HIGH ON A TERRACE FRONTING THE SEA AT HER BEACH HOME IN CALIFORNIA.



JANE WYATT.

. . . WHILE STROLLING IN THE PARK ONE DAY.

HOLLYWOOD, June 5.

MEET the most surprised girl in Hollywood—Jane Wyatt. She is still trying to figure out why Frank Capra selected her for the role of Sandra, opposite Ronald Colman, in "Lost Horizon," when Hollywood is full of experienced young actresses who would have given their last compact to play the part.

Looking like a debutante rather than one of the best prospects for stardom that the year has brought forth, Jane snuggled up on a great divan in the living room of her home in the Hollywood hills that overlooks all of Movietown, and a thoughtful, puzzled expression came over her face.

"After all," she said, "I had only done two pictures. But, Hollywood has been trying to figure out Mr. Capra for years, so who am I to try at this late date?"

Jane laughed. Her's is a warm, sincere laugh; as honest as her healthy, rougeless cheeks. She is the picture of vitality and exudes confidence. The ad writers must have had her in mind when they warned the feminine world to keep that schoolgirl complexion. She has it in large quantities.

But, confidence notwithstanding Jane still does not quite understand why she was lifted so suddenly from comparative obscurity to an important spot in one of the season's outstanding pictures virtually over night.

"Did you ever hear the story of my screen test for 'Lost Horizon' "? she asked.

We had not heard it.

It seems that several months before Frank Capra started to assemble his cast, Jane went to New York to fill an engagement in the theater. Before leaving, she confided to William Hawks, her agent, that the ambition of her career was to appear in a picture directed by Capra.

"You and a few dozen others," was his laconic comment.

Feeble protests by the pretty young actress about getting cleaned up met with no response and fewer explanations.

"It's a test," said Hawks.

"What test?" asked Jane.

"Don't ask so many questions," responded Bill.

So, Jane Wyatt took a test, but what is was for she never did know until three days later, when the agent informed her that she was to play the leading feminine role in the screen version of "Lost Horizon," directed by Frank Capra.

"But—but"—— stammered Miss Wyatt.

"You asked for it," said Hawks.

—o-o—

EDGAR WARD, Jane's strapping husband, is a former Harvard tennis star and skiing expert. A year before he had broken his leg and injured his hip in a skiing accident at St. Moritz. Two operations had failed to correct the improper healing of the injuries and Ward faced the possibility of being a permanent cripple unless he underwent another operation. The day before Miss Wyatt went before the cameras at Columbia to make her first scenes under Capra's direction, young Ward went to the hospital for his third operation, the result of which meant the difference of complete health or the life of an invalid.

A bride of but a few months, Jane wanted to give up the greatest opportunity of her career to be with her husband, but Ward wouldn't listen to it. He knew how much the part in "Lost Horizon" meant to her.

"Go ahead and take it, honey," he said. "I'll be all right. Show them what you're made of."

Jane Wyatt did show them what she was made of. Her average day during that trying period began at 6 o'clock in the morning when, by special arrangement, she was allowed to visit her husband each day in the hospital. At 7:30 she reported at the makeup department in the studio to have her hair dressed. From 9 until noon she worked in scenes with Ronald Colman before the camera. There was another visit to the hospital at noon and at 1 o'clock she was back in the set to devote the afternoon to acting.

Such was the daily routine of the young actress for more than a month when Ward was sent home from the hospital with the assurance that, with a little care, he would be as good as new. Not a soul in the studio knew of what was transpiring in the life of little Miss Wyatt until she and her husban had won their very important fight.

Yet, Miss Wyatt is as feminine as a powder puff.

She is the daughter of Christopher Biloff Wyatt, a New York broker, and Euphemia van Rennaslaer Wyatt, and was born in Campgaw, New Jersey, during a brief period in the lives of her parents when Wyatt pere had a notion that he would like to go in for a little gentlemanly farming. Campgaw is a swell place to put such a notion into effect. It isn't even on the map.

A few months after Jane made her first entrance on the Big Scene her father decided that the more modern surroundings of Park avenue were better adapted to the upbringing of a daughter who, some day, would have to take her place in society. So, they moved back to Manhattan, where Jane received her early school training at Miss Chapin's School.

As the girl grew older, she developed a decided complex to do something more important than to preside over teas and do the social whirl. The complex took concrete form after two years at Barnard College. That was in 1930, when Jane was 19 years old. She decided that she would become an actress.

A policy of direct action had been Jane's method since childhood and it didn't desert her then. When school closed in June, she packed her bag and headed for Stockbridge, Mass., where she enrolled at the Apprentice School of the famous Berkshire Playhouse.

Armed with the fundamentals of acting, Miss Wyatt returned to New York in the fall, announced that she would not return to Barnard College and headed for Broadway instead of Park avenue. She got herself a job as understudy to Rose Hobart in "Tradewinds," but the show closed shortly when Miss Hobart was called to Hollywood and picture. So, Jane got herself another understudy job. This time it was as pinch-hitting actress for Katherine Wilson in "The Vinegar Tree." When this production closed, she got a real part that she could play nightly. It was the ingenue lead in A. A. Milne's "Give Me Yesterday," with Louis Calhern.

—o-o—

BENT upon experience in a hurry, Jane returned to Stockbridge in the summer of 1931 to appear in a score of ingenue leads. A slump in the New York theaters that fall was an ill-wind for producers, but it blew no harm to Miss Wyatt. The season of 1931-32 brought no fewer than five theater engagements that helped to mould the work of the budding actress. These included "The Tadpole," "Fatal Alibi," "Olivia Bows to Mrs. Grundy," a short season with Laurence Langner's New York Theater company and a summer engagement with June Walker and Osgood Perkins in the New York Repertory company.

Not until 1933 did Jane get a break with a real stage success. Again the Hollywood influence was injected into her career. Margaret Sullavan, who was playing in "Dinner at Eight," was called to Movietown and a screen career. Jane was engaged for her stage role. She remained with the company for six months, playing the entire Chicago run as well as the rest of the New York engagement. The play drew the attention of Hollywood in her direction. But the attention did not develop into action until two plays later. These were "Love Story" and "Joyous Season," with Lillian Gish, former star of the inarticulate screen era. The company was Universal and the contract was one of those currently popular arrangements whereby the player can appear on the stage for six months and devote the balance of the year to the screen.

Ten plays and three stock engagements in four seasons!

Such was the concentrated experience demure little Miss Wyatt brought with her to Hollywood. It is little wonder, therefore, that after just two pictures—"One More River" and "Great Expectations"—Frank Capra decided that she was quite capable of portraying the important role of Sandra in "Lost Horizon."

But, Jane, is still surprised.

"At first I thought I wasn't

Conceit Called One of Man's Worst Faults

"No Other Human Trait Is Responsible for So Much Demoralization."

By Elsie Robinson

NO trait in our ornery human nature is responsible for so much demoralization as conceit. And this is largely due to the fact that few of us understand what conceit is all about.

Popularly, conceit is supposed to be an expression of pride . . . the result of "being stuck on yourself." To the contrary, conceit is a defense mechanism . . . a sign of fear. Fear of what? Fear of being ignored, despised, deprived of one's rightful "place in the sun."

Deep in all of us, there is a persistent craving for esteem. This craving isn't wrong. It is as normal and necessary as our need of food and air, and we become mentally and spiritually warped if we are deprived of such fundamental satisfaction. Souls and minds may become withered through malnourishment as well as bodies. Indeed, the very fear of such humiliation or injustice—even though utterly unfounded—drives us into morbid acts and attitudes.

—o-o—

EACH DAY'S horror headlines show the extremes to which distorted egos will go to put themselves on record. Mass murders and suicides and the ghastliest atrocities are all due to the sick spirit's desire to "show off," "get even" or "grab the spotlight."

Commonest and pestiest of all the varied fruits of frustration is conceit. Conceit is an aggrieved adult's device for kissing his own bumps . . . pinning medals on his own chest. A conceited person is always, in his own mind, a cheated person. He isn't appreciated. People ignore him . . . laugh at him, maybe, behind his back . . . "do him dirt" generally.

But where does an egotist get such idiotic notions?

Usually he himself doesn't know . . . or will offer the most fantastic excuses. But actually, chronic conceit begins early in life, with some childish pique or fear.

Little Willie, for example, is dispossessed from mother's lap when baby sister arrives. Twenty years later William has become a self-centered, mouthy young squirt, who demands the center of the stage—or else! To the world at large, Bill is simply a pain in the neck. But a psychiatrist, looking deeper, would see a bewildered child, seeking vainly to regain a lost paradise . . . using conceit as a shield to cover a wound which has never healed.

—o-o—

AND THEREIN lies the deep menace of conceit. If we knew what it was all about . . . If we realized that it was one of the fiercest and most furtive forms of fear . . . we could cure it. But we don't know this. And so, beneath the surface braggadocio, the fear spreads . . . undermining brilliant brains, fine characters, splendid records.

Throttle your bored yawns, for once—gaze deep into the eyes of and boasting blowhard — and you will see a soul in torment, trying by any desperate means to obtain the admiration it needs so dreadfully.

Conceit isn't just a bad habit. It's an actual sickness—as real and agonizing as smallpox or diphtheria.

And the cure? I suspect it's the same old prescription which heals and heartens all of us, whatever our ailment—love, faith and understanding. Give these to the most bewildered spirit, and you'll soon see it swinging back in step with the big parade again.

Trimming for Summer Hats

A WIDE - BRIMMED hat for summer wear is only as chic as its trimming, so the millinery designers are going to extremes to produce the unusual in decorative features.

Outstanding among the novelties are the little rolls of white grosgrain ribbon that look exactly like cigarettes and are placed carelessly around the brim of a white baku straw model. A wide strip of the ribbon stretches over the top of the hat to take the place of a crown.

Four little redbirds that are made of glass are posed at the front of the crown of another white straw hat which has a brim of cartwheel proportions. A third uses flowers as decoration, but has them of straw appliqued across the front of the brim in a brilliant color scheme. Ribbon sashes appear in variety, but less than three gay colors will not cause a flutter of interest in a season when streamers are flying in the breezes.

MY OPINION

by Martha Carr

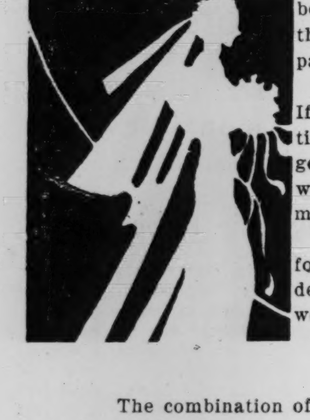
My dear Mrs. Carr:

SOMETIME ago I wrote you asking your advice on how to handle a too-friendly caller—the woman who dashes into my home at any hour. I could tolerate these intrusions if she would confine her visits to the living room, but she invariably finds her way into the kitchen. We cannot pretend to be out because, so often, one of the family is in the yard, the radio may be on, or the car parked outside.



If I say I am busy, she decides to help. If I say I am going out, she has a grand time, examining everything while I am getting ready. Conditions are such, that we come in contact a great deal and I must remain friendly.

Following your advice, I tried being formal, with the amusing result that she decided I was a shrinking violet—and she would take the job of pepping me up!

Whatever would you do now?

P. T. A.

The combination of a thick skin combined with a lack of intelligence, makes the situation almost unanswerable; especially since you must preserve at least the outward semblance of friendship.

Latched doors ("because of strangers who might step in when you are in another part of the house,") sometimes are effective. Those who have a little consideration will not repeatedly keep a busy woman answering the door. But should the custom of your neighborhood be one where doors, either screen or the house door, be customarily left open, that is again a problem. With the locked door opened only slightly and a very, very sweet smile, you could say, "Will you excuse me, I am running my head off trying to get through this morning (or afternoon) and can't stop a minute. Will you come over tomorrow?"

If the woman offers to help, say without explaining, "Oh, I wouldn't think of letting you and it is something I am obliged to do myself. So sorry." And with that make the movement of closing the door. Should she rush back to the kitchen, stop your work there, if you can, saying, "Let's go into the living room; it is too mussy in here." After a very short time, "Will you excuse me? Come over tomorrow when I can have more time to enjoy your visit. I always want to visit with you when you come and right now I have so much to do, my wits are just running around in circles."

None of these hints may make a dent; if not, I can think of nothing but physical violence.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● On April 26, I wrote you a letter signed "Bachelor Girl" which, for a very important reason, I desired to have printed, but as I unavoidably missed a few copies of your paper, I am at a loss to know whether it was; if not, will you please do so, that is of course, if it is in accordance with your wishes. Thank you.

BACHELOR GIRL.

Your letter was the lead in my column of Tuesday, May 4. I cannot reprint it, but, unless the issue is exhausted, you can buy a copy of the paper at the Business Office of the Post-Dispatch, first floor Post-Dispatch Building.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WE HAVE A BLOCK of petrified wood. It seems to have been part of a tree trunk. It weighs at least 100 pounds. A friend of ours told us it is used to make cameo rings. He says there is only one other place in the United States where this substance can be found. I wonder if you or one of your readers can give us information about this?

MRS. E. C. K.

You should make your inquiry of some manufacturing jeweler here.

—o—o—

Dear Martha Carr:

● I HAVE BEEN CONFINED TO BED for six months and get a great deal of pleasure out of your column. My trouble is lung infection; but though laid up, I can do most any kind of needle work. I have several lovely pieces that I want to enter at the Missouri State Fair. I have won several prizes at our State Fair in Illinois. Will you send me the address of the Fair Association? Thank you.

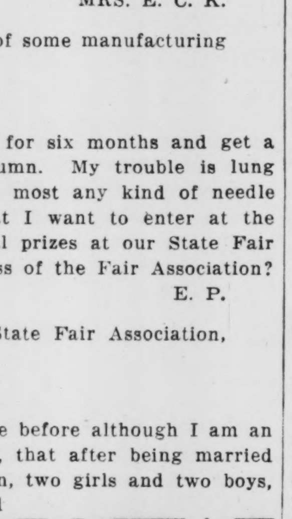
E. P.

Write the Secretary, Missouri State Fair Association, Sedalia, Mo.

—o—o—

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE NEVER ASKED your advice before although I am an admirer of your column. My trouble is, that after being married and having a family of four fine children, two girls and two boys, of whom I am exceedingly proud, I find there is insanity in my husband's family.



I understand that his grandmother died in an insane asylum and another relative also died there. In the past week my husband's brother has also been taken there.

My children have found about all this and I am afraid it is going to make an impression on them. They are very bright youngsters and I would like to keep them from becoming depressed about it. My daughters graduated from school with very good grades and never failed a term. My boy went two and one-half years and had to go to work as his father refused to do anything toward helping to keep him in school. The youngest boy goes to high school and brings home excellent report cards.

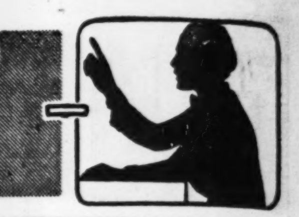
What advice would you give me about this situation. I will do anything to keep their spirits up.

MOTHER.

I think you should not be too uneasy about this inheritance, if you can call it that. We know there are many cases in the asylums which have been the result of mental and nervous strain (sometimes a brain too active and overworked and an instability brought about by over work).

There is now a difference in medical opinion on the score of inherited insanity. The best way to help your children is to go to a psychiatrist or to one of the psychiatric clinics and talk over the matter with a specialist there. I am sure if your children are normal and healthy neither you, nor they, should brood upon the inherited tendency to insanity; but the physician probably can tell you how best to reason about it and keep up the morale of the family.

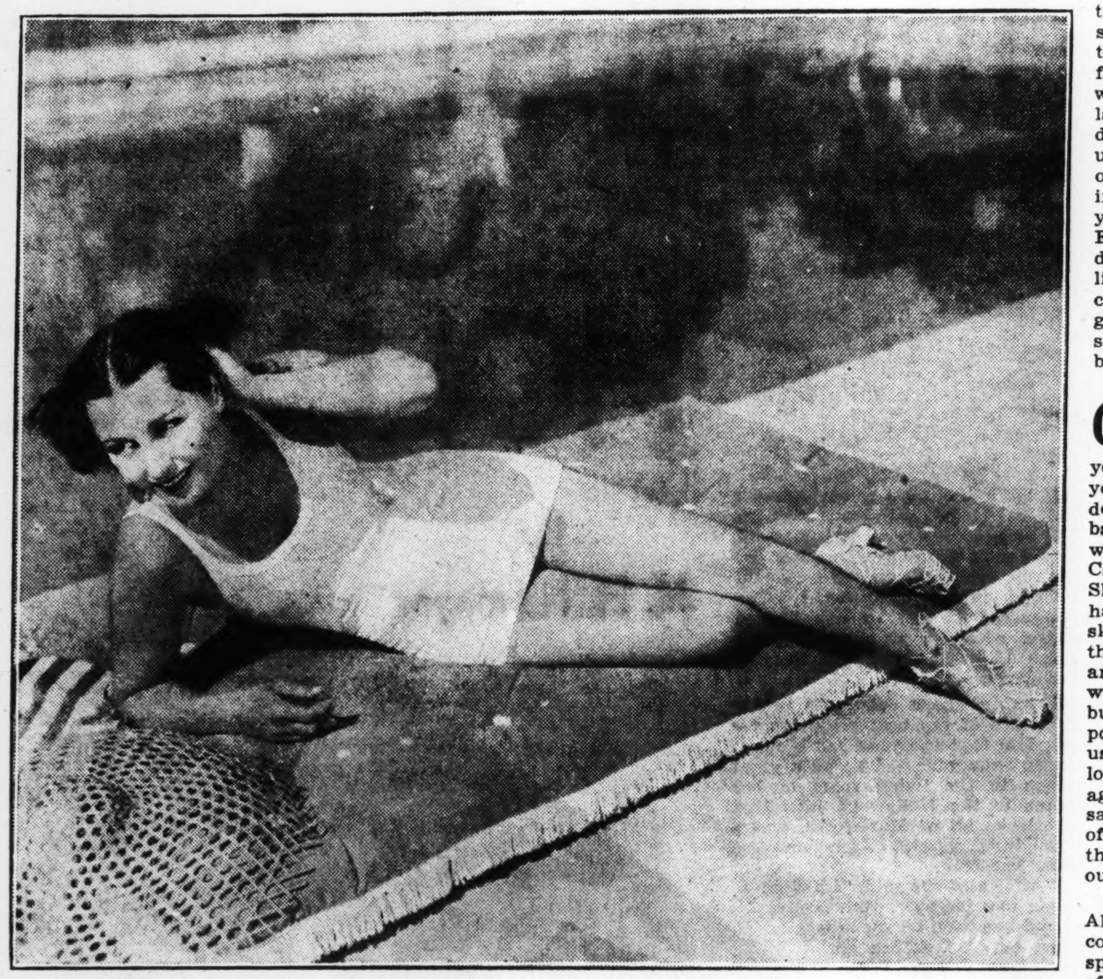
THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT



HOW TO AVOID BLISTERING SUNBURN

Take Sunshine in Easy Doses When You Go on Summer Vacation, All Doctors Advise

By Virginia Irwin



GLADYS SWARTHOUT, THE GIRL FROM DEEPWATER, MO., WHO MADE GOOD IN THE BIG CITIES, OBVIOUSLY ENJOYS A SWIMMING SETTING, FOR SHE IS ONE OF THOSE FORTUNATE PERSONS WHO TANS EASILY.

Most any time now you'll be packing up for that long-looked-forward-to vacation. Your backless bathing suit reminds you after every long hard day that you'll soon be sprawled out on the beach under the caresses of Old Sol, soaking up your share of sunshine. You're mildly ashamed of that sickly, whitish pallor acquired by being muffiled in woolens all winter long, but you plan to remedy that your first day out.

One day in the sun is all you ask to rid yourself of the resemblance to something that has been kept in a dark closet. but if you carry out that plan, you'll probably be asking for ointment to take the burn out of your blisters.

"Take it easy," is the advice of all doctors to sun-tan worshipers, but if you think you know better, don't expect any sympathy when you turn up with the crimson blush of a boiled lobster and the proverbial smart of a spanked baby.

"The sun is the world's greatest bottle of medicine if you take it in easy doses, but it's poison to take the blister short cut," warns Dr. H. I. Spector, assistant Health Commissioner and chief of the medical staff of the St. Louis Health Department. "Better start on your coat of tan by degrees, say 15 or 20 minutes the first day, and increase the dosage five or 10 minutes at a time. After perhaps 10 days you can loll in the sun from dawn to dark if you want to, and come back from your vacation with a terrific appetite and all the pep of a 10-year-old, but get yourself scorched the first few days, and you'll ruin your whole vacation."

And, cautions Dr. Spector, it is well to remember that getting a sun-tan is pretty much of an individual problem. Blondes almost invariably have their troubles when they start out to coax a nice coat of tan out of old Dr. Sunshine, but their brunette sisters usually are more able to take it. You may even be what science calls a heliophobe—one of those unfortunate folks whose every sunbath does little besides bring out a big crop of freckles, or reduce the skin to the unbecoming state of peeling off in stray wisps. If you happen to be in this class, you'd best find yourself a nice tree and sit in the shade while your luckier playmates go about the business of browning themselves to the color of old pennies.

IT'S A GOOD idea, too, to know something about the state of your own body, before you go in for any extensive sun-tan wooing. Otherwise you may be courting sunstroke or heat prostration. Last summer in St. Louis 559 deaths were attributed to heat prostration and heat stroke, but the records show chronic myocarditis and arteriosclerosis as accompanying causes in a great many cases. So if you have a chronically bad heart or suffer from high blood pressure, your place during the heat of the day is in a comfortable chair on the veranda rather than on the beach battling with a medicine ball.

"We know that sunshine is the best medicine in the world for such diseases as rickets, tuberculosis of the glands and certain skin conditions," Dr. Spector explains. "But we also know that sunshine is bad medicine in other cases. Take tuberculosis of the lungs, for instance. A person suffering from tuberculosis of the lungs should never go in for sun bathing. Hemorrhages would be his only reward and it has been proven at Koch Hospital here. So that is why a person should know if he is suffering from any chronic diseases before he recklessly exposes himself to the sun."

Even if you're a perfectly healthy human, you'd better keep your head covered when you're out of doors, especially during the middle of the day. Sunstroke is usually brought on by the direct action of sunlight on the head and is no laughing matter. Death may result within 24 to 36 hours unless proper treatment is administered and if you ever happen to be in the vicinity of somebody who has thumbed his nose at the sun and been rewarded with sunstroke, your first move is to call a doctor. If there's no doctor to be had, the temperature of the patient must be reduced by applications of ice water, ice packs, cold sprays or ice bags until it drops to 102 degrees. Then use cold sponges, but watch the temperature, for it must not go below normal.

Sunburn is not as dangerous as sunstroke, of course, but get yourself properly blistered and you will be not only uncomfortable, but actually sick. And when you begin to break out with the little water blisters, be careful of the skin when they begin to pop, because the old layer of skin will be needed to protect the new layer of skin that will form underneath. If you're wise, you'll hunt up a doctor, but if you insist on dosing yourself, you can cover the burn with a thin paste of baking soda, starch or flour. Or you can smear your burn with vaseline, olive oil, white of egg, lard or cream and then apply a dressing of the same material or use equal parts of lime water and olive oil. And don't be surprised if you feel just about as punk as you did when you had scarlet fever. For severely sunburned persons doctors prescribe a stay in bed, light diet and plenty of water. Circulation must be stimulated, too, to get rid of accumulated poisons. But so much for the dark side of sun bathing.

GET your sun-tan sensibly and, authorities say, you not only improve your general health, but you brighten your brain and sweeten your disposition. Bronze your epidermis in short stages and you'll go back home after your vacation with an appetite like that of Primo Carnera and the sunny smile of a Shirley Temple. You don't even have to worry about wrinkling your skin. Yearly the report goes around that gals who go in for heavy tans are in danger of turning out to be wrinkled hags in no time at all, but, as a New York dermatologist points out, the fad has been with us 10 or 12 years and we still don't look like a race of prematurely aged females. This dermatologist says that the only people in danger of wrinkling under the sun are those who cannot tan and who go out repeatedly and get burned.

So, go get your fashionable tan. All you need is to exercise a little common sense and show a little respect for old Doctor Sunshine's bag of tricks. Take your time and don't try to rush your skin into changing overnight from it's winter whiteness to the blackish-brown of a South Sea beachcomber. Store up all the Vitamin D you can while you're on your vacation, but don't go back home ready to collapse every time someone raises a hand behind your sunburned back.

Don'ts on Tan

DON'T take the blister short-cut to a coat of tan.

—o-o—

DON'T insist on a bronze epidermis, if sunshine only brings out your freckles and makes your skin peel off in wisps.

—o-o—

DON'T bake your brains. Wear a hat, especially at mid-day.

—o-o—

DON'T go in for extensive sun-bathing unless you're sure your heart and blood pressure can take it.

—o-o—

DON'T smirk at sunstroke. Call a doctor.

—o-o—

DON'T expect sympathy when you turn up looking like a boiled lobster covered with blisters. All you'll get is the bronx cheer from your sensible sisters who take their sun-tan in easy stages.

MOST SURPRISED GIRL IN MOVIES

going to like pictures," she told me. "Now I love them. I think Mr. Capra is responsible for my change of heart. I had visions of directors storming around the set in boots and riding breeches, doing more acting than the actors. But, not Frank Capra! He is the David Belasco of the screen. His method of directing, according to what I have heard of Mr. Belasco, is the same. He doesn't direct—he corrects. He gets the player's impression of the scene first, then molds it to his own ideas. And, the funny part of it is that it is all done so smoothly and so quietly that you don't realize you are being molded. If there is a genius in Hollywood, that man is Mr. Capra. But, if you tried to tell him that he'd probably crown you with a sun-arc."

We had to smile at the mental picture of Capra crashing a 100-pound sun-arc on the dainty head of this little beauty.

"If you owned Hollywood, what would you do with it?" The question was one to which we expected an answer true to Broadway tradition. This time it was we who were surprised.

"If I owned Hollywood," said the thoughtful little Wyatt, 'I'd leave it exactly as it is. There is no place in the world that offers such a challenge to ambitious persons and rewards the successful so bountifully. The very obstacles to be surmounted in this town and the hardships to be endured in the pursuit are the things that make achievement worth while. I sometimes wish that my experience had been a little more difficult. Don't get the impression that I think I'm at the top. I know that I'm far from it. What I want to get over is the idea that I enjoy a good fight."

We blinked and wondered if the words were coming out of Jane's pert and pretty mouth. They were.

Before we were through blinking, she changed the subject.

—o-o—

"I'VE just learned a swell recipe for shrimps a la Newburg. Take it down. Maybe your wife will like it. You take one pint of shrimps, three tablespoons full of butter, one teaspoon of lemon juice, a half a cup of cream, two egg yolks slightly beaten . . ."

She stopped suddenly. It was probably the blank expression that confronted her.

"Maybe you're not interested."

We weren't.

"Can you speak Tibetan?"

Our surprised look would have been a credit to Edward Everett Horton.

"I can. Harrison Forman taught me while we were making 'Lost Horizon!' He's the explorer who was our technical director."

Before anything could be done about it Jane was on her linguistic way.

"Hsjig . . . nee . . . sum . . . rjuh . . . rugna . . . rjuck . . . rdin . . . rebjel!" . . .

She beamed at her accomplishment.

"That's one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight."

Amazing! Our wonderment encouraged her.

"Shoch, shoch, Njo! Rimba shee!"

"What's that?"

"That means 'Come on . . . let's go!'"

"Where?" we inquired.

"No place. Nga misheega! That means I don't understand."

There was a phrase we had an immediate use for.

"Sung! Sung! Hara Sung!" continued Jane.

"And, that means?"

"That," laughed the bewitching Miss Wyatt, "means 'scram!'"

We took the hint and reached for our hat.

But just in passing it might be remarked that you won't see Miss Wyatt in another picture for some time. She and her husband are expecting an addition to their household this summer and Jane is spending all of her time now knitting baby things. Next winter, though, she'll be back in the studios.

You Do Have the Time -:- -:-

By MARJORIE HILLIS

ONE of the most curious things about life is the elasticity of time. An hour can seem to collapse like an accordeon, so that it's over almost as soon as it's begun, or it can stretch out indefinitely. And you can fill a day up with the doing of some one unimportant thing, or you can pack it full of a dozen or more important ones. On the days when I have one short article to write, it takes me all my time and I'm just about as busy as on the days when, in addition to the article, I have to make some notes for a speech, and dictate a lot of letters, and correct some of last week's writing, and telephone six people, and get my hair washed!

I don't claim to understand this. I only know that I'm beginning to be suspicious of people who say they "haven't time." The phrase arouses a picture of some one who doesn't get much done anyway. One of those women with a small house or apartment, perhaps, who lets her house take up all of her time except for a little shopping and an occasional game of bridge. Or some one who works from nine to five-thiry and then goes home to rest up for the next day's bout—not having discovered that change and entertainment often rest one more than going to bed (up to a point). Neither type would feel any more driven if they planned their schedules to include a course in something that would interest and broaden them, and a little work for some specific charity, and a little more varied fun.

Did you ever stop to think what Mrs. Roosevelt and Dorothy Thompson pack into a day? They have houses too, and jobs (writing a newspaper column is a very definite job, with no letup), and they have to buy clothes and have them fitted, and get their nails maincured, and do a good deal more reading than the average person. And you may notice, they don't look all worn out. Not like Mrs. Jones, who has recently had the children home for Easter vacation, and housecleaned, and entertained the bridge club.

It takes a lot of work that is interesting and successful and done with enthusiasm to get anybody down. And when, eventually, you really do feel tired, you also feel justified in resting completely in your own particular way—at home or on a beach or on a cruise or in the country. An orgy of rest and doing-as-you-please is a lot more fun when it's in definite contrast to what you do every day.

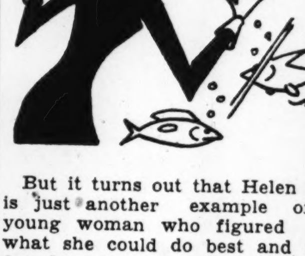
That's why a lot of people are bored on vacations—even though they really think they are frightfully busy all the rest of the time. It's strangely easy to be frightfully busy doing very, very little!

—o-o—

SEVERAL TIMES this past winter, walking down Fifth avenue, I have found myself brought to a sudden stop in front of a group of windows so arresting that I couldn't get by. It didn't take many such stops to make me realize that they were always in the same smart shop, and by this time I had begun to hear murmurs about Helen Cole, the bright young woman who did them. And so—since half of the girls who ask me about careers are sure they are good at designing, or something else related to clothes or merchandise—I made some inquiries as to how this young woman got just where she is.

Before I go into that, however, I really should tell about the windows. There were, first of all, the Surrealist windows, each with one costume and a lot of apparently unrelated objects that somehow composed into a marvelous color effect and set off the dress or coat. One window had real fish, and not just gold-fish or goopys, either, and men were as entranced as women. (Rumor has it that the fish were Mrs. Cole's small son's idea, which makes me wonder if some of the Surrealist painters have helpful sons. This would explain a lot.) These windows were the first to attract so much attention that they became news, but they were a mere preliminary to later ones.

There were, for instance, the set of astrological windows by which (I suppose, though I didn't try) you could figure out which was right for you and dress accordingly. And the English windows with wagon wheels and gate-posts and panels of smart country houses or other English scenes suited to the dress and in ravishing colors. The dog windows, with the most engaging life-sized dogs made of such surprising things as leaves, each accompanying a well-dressed woman, set the town talking again. And there were the pink-and-black windows, and the windows with enchanting glass ladies wearing doilies for neckerchiefs and with their suits painted on, and a Japanese window that took a prize. And, finally, there was a single window, showing beauty preparations, with dozens of glass bubbles coming up over a reclining pink cellophane, figure.



But it turns out that Helen Cole is just another example of a young woman who figured out what she could do best and then found a way to market her talent. She began by decorating any house in which she lived, and then she mixed a little into her sister's decorating business. But decorating, she decided, was too personal. If the people whose houses you did weren't your friends to start with, they were at the end, and she didn't like mixing business and friendship.

It wasn't financial necessity that started her on a real career, nor has she ever had that to spur her on. It was just her own ideas, and the general lack of security, the I-wonder-what's-going to-happen-next feeling that all of us had not so long ago. This drove her first to designing a line of only moderately successful clothes for a wholesaler; then to a department store, where she was assistant to the head of the accessory department and later did displays; and finally to her triumphant success, achieved in a few short months, in another shop.

It wasn't pull that got her where she is, and it wasn't training. It was just thinking of something no one had thought of before and then finding a way to express her ideas —no matter how many people told her they didn't make sense.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Dorothy Coleman

A NEW model of the self-serve grocery store is in the making. We heard about it from a Memphis marketer the other day and can't predict how soon St. Louis housewives will have their burdens lightened by its extraordinary co-operation. We may as well tell you right off that unless your list of today's "musts" amounts to $1 or more you won't be admitted to these promised emporiums. As you pass the clerk's desk he gives you a key. (The name of the stores is some kind of pun on the word "key.") You then proceed up one aisle and down another. But you don't get to lay hands on a single article. They are all on exhibit behind glass doors, so that the general effect, we understand, is much like a small town postoffice.

Now suppose you come to the breakfast cereal department. You select your favorite brand, insert the key in the lock of that box, and wait for a small light to flash —once for one order, twice for two, and so on. The flash means that the box has caught on to what you have in mind. But nothing comes out then. You continue on around, punching keyholes as you go. When you reach the clerk on the return trip, you surrender the key. He slips it into the cash register, out comes your bill, and before you can say "Post Toasties," another clerk appears from behind the scenes with your day's order, ready-wrapped. "Oh," as William Shakespeare, or Aldous Huxley would say, "Oh, Brave New World!"

THERE'S JUST no end to people's inventiveness. It wasn't any time ago that someone dreamed a dream and we had to get used to black blotters in the banks. They made it harder for forgers to copy signatures, we were told, but all the same it took half the fun out of affixing your John Hancock not to see it reversed on the pink or white blotter. About as disappointing as a black washcloth would be. You could never tell how much good you were doing.

Now, the banks—or, to be specific, the Industrial Loan Co.—are offering us fountain pens for which you need no blotter at all. You can write "It won't smear" three times on the back of a deposit slip, run your hand over it immediately, and, by Jove, it won't smear.

Another scientific marvel, with many advantages. In the first place, it won't smear. Then, counters can be kept much neater without the clutter of blotters, those funereal black ones, especially. No spill-and-fill ink pots to worry the office boys. Pen points last three months instead of 24 hours. Sounds keen, doesn't it? What we are worrying about is where we're going to pick up our own desk equipment, with banks, one by one, going off the blotter standard.

—o-o—

WE WILL NOT soon forget the stooped black figure we saw in the Union Market one noon. Huddling under a dingy black shawl, she waddled from stall to stall, begging scraps of meat, spoiled vegetables, and such, which she tucked into an untidy bushel basket. Across the market she waddled, keeping her eyes furtively on the floor. In the waiting room of the bus depot she rested for a moment, poked around in her basket and pulled from a brown paper sack a crumpled black hat. She got as far as the double doorway. Then, after a quick glance around, slipped off the shawl and jammed the hat down over her ears. The hair revealed was cropped close like a man's.

The Artists' Guild has its haunt, but a cheerier one. A little old man comes regularly to see the art exhibits. Comes alone, stays an hour or more and appears honestly to enjoy the sculpture or painting. To express his appreciation to the guild, for this opportunity, he returns at intervals bearing a sack of cakes and cookies. They are not always too fresh. but he distributes them ceremoniously to anyone around to whom he feels indebted.

Remember the balloon man who used to direct traffic on the corner of Forsythe and Skinker? Wonder what ever became of him. He didn't care whether you bought his wares or not. His first concern was to keep traffic moving smoothly at that busy intersection. Now and then he would step out into the thick of it, but as a rule he gesticulated frantically from the curb, jabbering to himself but seldom raising his voice at those who disregarded his signals.

Our first impulse is to try to find out more about these colorful characters in the everyday scene. We fail to realize that their remoteness is half their appeal. If we approach too close we may find their trappings shabby and their speech disappointingly commonplace. Curiosity can kill more than the cat who indulges it. Better to keep our distance — and our illusions. Better to go on calling them mysteriously, "the man with the earrings," "the woman who walks out Lindell" and "the black beggar of Union Market."

Sheer Weight Summer Wraps Most Popular

WHEN it comes to the selection of a summer wrap, the style of the garment rather than its weight governs the choice in St. Louis. Coats, jackets and capes are merely fashion gestures which add to the completeness of a costume—unless the owner happens to be planning a vacation wardrobe.

Because of the demands of style rather than the necessity for warmth, the most popular wraps are of sheer weight. Whether for daytime or for evening there is a trend now toward transparency. A genuinely cool night which is a rarity calls for another coat than the one which St. Louis fashionables consider of 1937 summer weight.

Featured among the most attractive all-purpose coats in the more exclusive shops are sheer coats of swagger length. Some of them are wool of cobwebby texture while others are made of silk, cotton or synthetics. The dark chiffon coat which is shirred allover is being introduced as part of a complete ensemble as well as a separate item. It is here in lengths ranging from the bolero to the full-length fitted redingote although the boxy, fingertip length predominates. Other sheer coats that are featured of synthetic materials are plainly tailored and may be obtained in high shades as well as the dark and neutral tones.

IF A WOMAN wants a white coat this summer she may have difficulty in deciding upon the type because there are so many varieties from which to choose. The young girl will have one of those snappy little "beer coats" made of white cotton in her wardrobe but her older sister doubtless will prefer a coat of sharkskin. Pique, linen and a loosely woven cotton which looks like wool also are being employed successfully for separate wraps this summer. Unusually practical are the full length pique coats designed primarily for beach wear but being accepted by many young girls for wear over their summer formals, too.

The old-fashioned "duster" which was so popular during the Merry Widow fashion era has returned to favor. Its modern version is made of linen or of shantung and except for the absence of bulk the cut of the garment is quite similar. The waistline is semi-fitted and the coat usually covers a street length dress. Incidentally the natural shade which was in vogue at the turn of the century is repeated again, rivaling the white coat.

Deep Tones Are Fashionable in Summer Linens

THE deeper the tone of your summer linens, the more fashionable they become. As for the fabric which adorns your table, genuine linen that is soft of texture is preferred this year to novelty materials. Plain surfaces are the rule and a trimming of contrasting color adds to the attractiveness of a luncheon or an informal dinner set.

Place mats and runners are being used so extensively to replace large table covers during the hot weather that most of the sets on display in the shops consist of nine or more pieces. The exception is the cloth which covers only part of the table and is accompanied by luncheon size napkins.

Noted among the interesting color schemes is the combination of wine red and peach—an alliance which looks especially well with pottery ware in the popular tones of delft blue or sea green. A band of the light shade usually trims one side of the place mat and the napkin and it is decorated either with initial or monogram. Stamped monograms are being used this season to replace the embroidered type. An insertion of heavy net decorated with an initial is another method of adding a more personal touch to summer table linens.

Summer Jackets

GET a trim little jacket of white linen or sharkskin and see what it does for your summer wardrobe. Wear it over a halter top dress that would be good only for home or beach without this tailored addition. Use it with a contrasting linen skirt and produce a suit that is right for shopping or business. Transform a flowered chiffon frock into something that is right for luncheon by donning the same little jacket. Short sleeves, lapels that lie very flat and a fitted waistline are three assets of such a handy fashion item.

Checked Frocks

Remember the days when every little girl had at least one shepherd's checked frock in her wardrobe? Now mother is going in for checks in a big way. There are red and white ones, blue and white ones and plenty that are black with white besides a variety of multi-colored plaids for summer sportswear.

Tailored themes predominate because checked fabrics are associated with trim styles. Diversion is provided, however, by extravagantly pleated or gored skirts or by little bolero jackets. The favorite materials are of the crepe variety and seldom do they fail to have white pique trimmings.

Novel Scarf

If you are a fiend for checkers or backgammon and want to play the game while on a holiday outing, it isn't necessary to carry a board along. You're scarf will serve instead, if you have chosen a cotton square marked exactly like a game board. When not being used in this novel manner, the scarf is worn as a neck 'kerchief, a turban, a hood or a vagabond bag.

Handwork Is Important in Summer Wear

ANY woman who has succeeded in evading the fascination of needlework will be joining the ranks of knitters, weavers or patchwork enthusiasts when she starts a summer vacation. The sight of one half-completed Afghan displaying a colorful cross stitch pattern, a fascinating bird picture appliqued on bright cotton or a featherweight sweater in her favorite pastel tint will be sufficient to start her on a buying orgy for the necessary materials.

Handwork is of so much fashion importance in summer clothes and in home decoration that even the most simple designs and themes have a distinct appeal. Yarn flowers embroidered on a belt or raffia flowers added to a garden hat supply a note of individuality while the admission that a handsome candlewick bedspread or a needlepoint chair cushion is the creation of one's own fingers creates favorable interest.

—o-o—

NEEDLES and fingers seem to work faster during the summer months in spite of warm, lazy weather, so every woman who enjoys handcraft is searching the shops for ideas to use during the coming weeks. Applique designs are among the summer favorites although the interest in knitting and crocheting never seems to wane. The added enthusiasm for applique is explained by the needlecraft experts who say that many novices prefer small bits of easy-to-finish work during the vacation period and choose such pieces as quilt blocks, luncheon sets, pictures, bath mats and towels. Also most applique work is done with cotton which feels cool to the hands and therefore has a distinct appeal during warm weather.

The vogue of appliqued mats ranging from the size to use as pot holders or pads on the breakfast table to those for the bathroom floor is a development of the present year. Interesting effects are achieved by appliquing bright motifs to ready quilted padding and binding the edges with cotton which repeats a shade of the design.

LET ME SUGGEST

by Josephine Walter

SOMEHOW, St. Louis summers have a way of fooling us. Trusting soul that we are, we never think it's going to get as hot as it actually does, and by that time it's too late to do anything about it. Which all may be very involved but is merely our subtle way of saying that if you haven't gotten your house into summer attire by now you better do it quickly or the heat goblins'll get you.

So often I hear people say, "I'd love to get some slip covers this year but I simply can't afford them," when they should be saying, "I'm getting slip covers because I can't afford not to." For there is no doubt that, during the summer months when the children are much more in evidence around the house and the grown-ups take to active sports, the furniture takes a lot of punishment. Protective as well as cool-looking slip covers are the only practical answer. In addition, a change of atmosphere will do a lot for the family disposition, when a change of locale is out of the question.

—o-o—

● THE ONLY REQUISITE for slip covers, aside from the fact that they must fit as well as the winter upholstering, is that there should be a complete spirit of harmony among the fabrics selected. A summer room, to be cool and relaxing, must not be too distracting and "busy" and therefore it is not only permissable but desirable to use the same fabric on several pieces of furniture. It is usually a good rule not to use over two or at the most three different fabrics for draperies and slip covers in a summer setting. A gaily flowered chintz or cretonne for the draperies and one big piece in the room and plain fabrics on the other chairs in one of the colors of the print with bindings in another color, or a striped chintz or cotton repeating the tones of the figured material are safe and effective combinations.

Oiled silks, mattress pad material and regular mattress ticking are some of the new materials that have been effectively introduced for slip covers. And when you're looking for materials, scour the dress goods departments as well as the regular fabric departments. Trimmings, too have taken on character and in addition to the regular bindings and fringes, you can now get buttons that resemble sea-shells as well as all sorts of anchors and such for a nautical flavor. The combining of a plain and quilted chintz, or a plain and figured material on the same piece of furniture is yet another way of obtaining variety in your slip cover effects.

—o-o—

● BUT SLIP COVERS are only one answer to the summer change question. There are a million and one ways of making the house seem cooler without actually changing the temperature at all. Windows have a great deal to do with our summer outlook. The only thing not to do is leave them bare. Summer draperies of gaily flowered chintz, of sheer and filmy tarleton, of crisp organdy or of soft and silky celanese are all suitable in certain types of interiors, the more dressy types being ideal for city apartments and the others for country houses. One of the newest ways of hanging curtains of this type is hanging straight to the ground over the entire window. By putting such curtains on traverse cords, it is possible to hang them thus during the heat of the day and then draw them back at night to catch any passing breeze.

—o-o—

If, however, even the sheerest of curtains sound hot to you there are many other decorative and cooling effects for your summer windows. Valances, either of chintz to match your slip-covers or of wood, painted or decorated with a wall paper border, are attractive and not expensive to achieve. In addition, a narrow valance that fits entirely around your window frame and is decorated with a fluted chintz ruffle, rows of fringe, or even cording is always effective. Inside shutters, decorated in a peasant fashion, can be a charming solution to the summer window problem and, simplest of all but gay and summery, are rows of potted plants.

SOME OF THE new types of blinds also deserve your consideration, when contemplating the summer outlook, indoors. There are many new types, much less expensive than the regular Venetian blinds, which are decorative and will do much, as well, to keep the summer sun out of your rooms. One of the most attractive types is made of very thin slats of bamboo and may be had in a wide range of colors including turquoise blue, tea rose, lemon yellow and white as well as more vivid shades, such as fire engine red and emerald green. These same blinds may be left up next winter for they combine well with heavy draperies as well as sheer summer effects.

Awnings are still another answer to the summer window problem, if some thought is given to them, instead of merely accepting the first gaudy stripes that come along. Plain canvas awnings may actually burst into bloom, with gaily colored flowers painted on the inside so that people sitting inside a room may gaze out upon them.

CULINARY Masterpieces From HAWAII

These Recipes, created by a Chinese Cook, can be copied with ease.

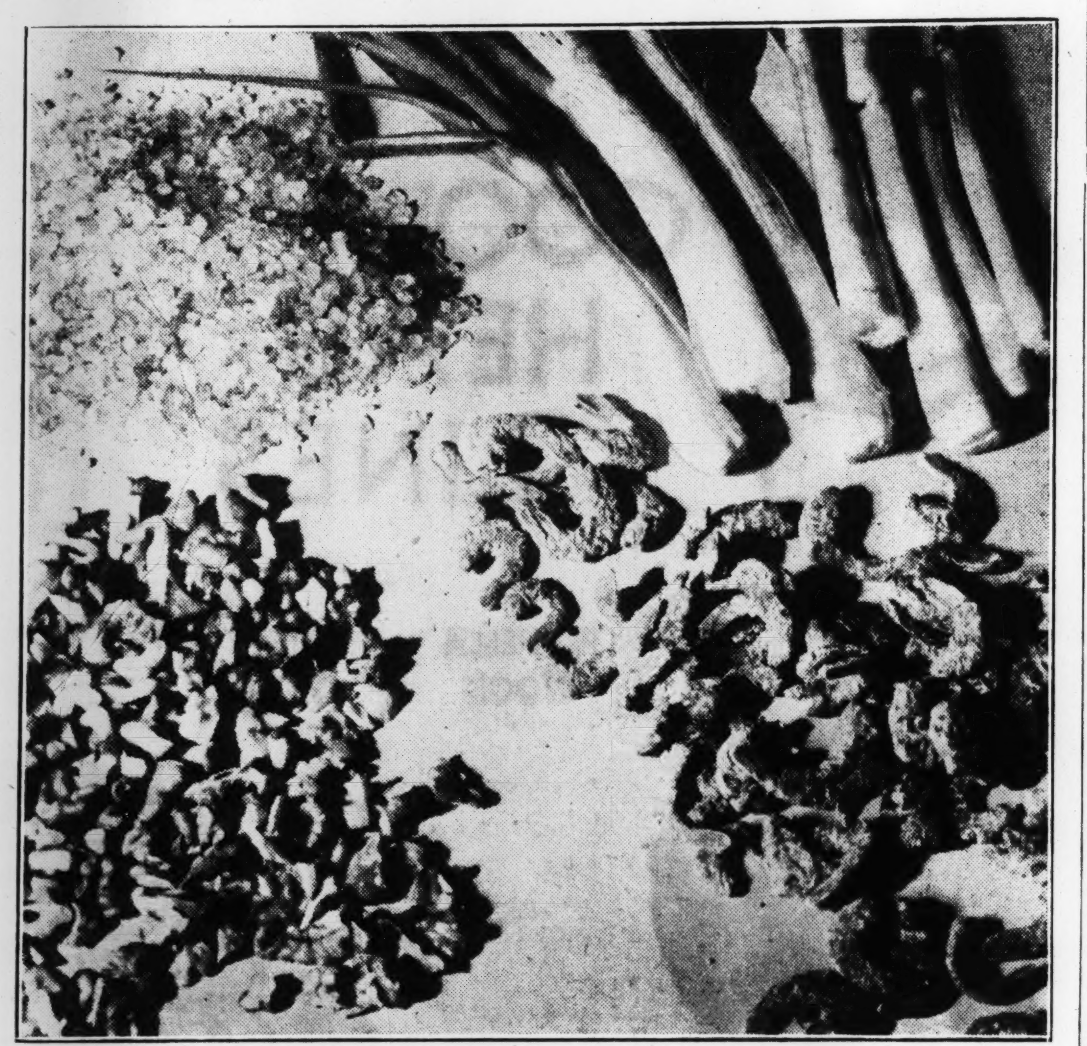
By Armine von Temski

THE greatest artist I ever knew—a Rembrandt in his line—was an old Chinaman who plied his trade in a white-washed kitchen on a vast estate in Hawaii. Writers fire the imagination with the perfectly chosen word, painters delight the eye with line and color, musicians enchant the ear with melodious sounds, but Ah Lau was master of a universal art which appealed to every man or woman, irrespective of race, education or up-bringing who came, even briefly, beneath its spell.

Ah Lau cooked for 30 or 40 people every day, and he seemed to take an equal delight, and be equally expert, in preparing foods to satisfy the tastes of Polynesians, whites and Orientals. He was old, and the parchment-like skin of his face was drawn so tightly over the bones that it seemed as if, at any instant, they might burst through. But like all real artists he was tireless. The divine fire pouring through him kept him working for hours before anyone else was awake or stirring and long after everybody had gone to bed.

How he ever managed in his crowded days to concoct the culinary masterpieces which issued from his workshop remains a mystery but memory of the dishes he prepared persist on the island of Maui, though he has gone, and like all masterpieces they should be preserved for posterity to enjoy.

Peanut butter soup was one of his specialties and under his artful touch became a delicacy which, even in retrospect, starts gastric juices running. When he was assembling the ingredients he moved reverently about the kitchen like a Buddhist priest busy with a holy rite.



THESE WHET THE APPETITE—ROCK SALT, ONIONS, WALNUTS, SHRIMPS.

PEANUT BUTTER SOUP

Two tablespoons butter
One-half cup peanut butter
Three tablespoons flour
One tablespoon scraped onion
One-half teaspoon salt
One quart milk
One cup light cream
Shredded coconut.

Melt butter and peanut butter in skillet over low heat. Blend in flour. Add onion and salt. Add milk slowly, stirring until smooth. Cook over low heat, 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Add cream. Blend well. Approximate yield: Six portions. When it was done he dusted it lightly with paprika and shredded coconut and served it from squat bowls set on serving plates, with saltine crackers or crisp rye wafers.

As a rule peanut butter soup constituted the main event of a light lunch or supper and the rest of the meal consisted of salad and dessert. Stuffed beets, prepared as Ah Lau prepared them made a perfect following course, both for tastiness and color, and had the advantage in that they could be prepared at some slack time during the day and set away to chill until the time came for the gastronomic adventure of the day.

STUFFED BEETS

Six large beets
One cup finely diced celery
One green pepper, finely cut
One teaspoon chopped chives
One-half cup cream and
Three cakes (three ounces each) cream cheese, or
One and one-half cups cottage cheese.

Cook beets in gently boiling water until tender. Drain. Blanch in cold water and remove skins. Scoop a small hollow in top of each beet. Chill. Mix celery, pepper and chives with cream cheese, which has been softened with cream, or with cottage cheese. Just before serving, place cheese mixture in beets. Top with mayonnaise if desired, and serve on romaine. Approximate yield, six portions.

With these stuffed beets Ah Lau always served sour French rolls prepared in the following manner.

Cutting each roll lengthwise, he toasted them crisp, removed them from the oven and rubbed them lightly with garlic, buttered them heavily and returned them to the oven until garlic and butter penetrated thoroughly.

The dish he invented in honor of Jack and Charmain London when they sailed the Snark from San Francisco to Sydney was chicken in coconut shells. Like all his race, Ah Lau revered persons who made permanent contribution to literature and in his endeavor to honor the great American writer and his wife he outdid himself with another masterpiece which island people still enjoy.

CHICKEN IN COCONUT SHELLS

One (two and one-half pounds) chicken
Four coconuts
Two onions, finely cut
One green pepper, finely chopped
One small clove garlic
One-fourth cup olive oil
One can cream of celery soup
One cup whole corn kernels
One-half teaspoon salt
Two large tomatoes, diced
One-fourth cup heavy cream.

Wash chicken and cut in small pieces. Drain milk from coconuts, saw off tops, and scrape out some of the meat, using a grapefruit knife. Chop coconut meat. Saute onion, green pepper and garlic five minutes in olive oil. Add soup, corn and salt. Heat through. Add chopped coconut. Place chicken in coconut shells. Add sauce. Replace tops. Place shells in pan of hot water and cook in moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) one and one-half hours. (Baste shells occasionally with water, if they look charred). Remove tops, add diced tomato and cream. Serve at once. Approximate yield, four portions.

DESSERT BANANAS

Eight large ripe bananas.
One-fourth cup butter.
One tablespoon honey.
Juice of one-half lemon.
One cup shredded coconut.
Thirty-six marshmallows.
Six portions of plain butter cake.

Peel and cut bananas in half. Fry in butter until brown. Drizzle with honey and lemon juice. Cover with coconut. Top with marshmallows. Cover and cook over low heat 15 minutes or until marshmallows are melted. Serve generously on pieces of cake. Approximate yield: Six portions. With demi-tasse of well made coffee the meal left everyone satisfied and enchanted by the artistry of the old man

A GOURMET of international renown declared that Ah Lau's Pineapple Delight eclipsed any dessert he had even eaten and should have won the wrinkled waestro world-wide fame.

PINEAPPLE DELIGHT

Six canned pineapple rings.
Two tablespoons butter.
Three-fourths cup brown sugar, firmly packed.
Two dozen lady fingers.
One-fourth cup sherry.
Thirty-six marshmallows.
One cup shredded coconut.
One-half cup finely cut maraschino cherries (optional).

Drain pineapple thoroughly. Melt butter. Add sugar. Blend well. Fry pineapple in this mixture 10 minutes. Set aside in warm place. Split or halve lady fingers. Line bottoms of six individual pie pans. Place a pineapple ring in each pan. Drip a little sherry on each. Top with marshmallows. Brown in hot oven (400 degrees F.), until marshmallows melt. Remove from oven. Place on serving dish. Cover rim of pan generously with coconut. Top with maraschino cherries. Serve at once. Approximate yield: Six portions.

To tide over gaps between the arrival of steamers from the mainland, bringing delicacies to the isolated island groups of the Pacific, the old man went to all lengths. Whatever materials were handy he assembled in unique combinations.

Ah Lau considered himself a member of the family and when some important personage, or celebrity, was visiting on the estate he seemed to feel that the honor and success of the occasion rested entirely in his wrinkled, tired old hands. Informed that So-and-So would be coming for a meal or a week-end, the old man would don his battered coolie hat and withdraw to his favorite spot under clicking bamboos growing by the kitchen door. Squatting down he would draw out an oddly shaped pipe with a wee bowl halfway up the stem and thoughtfully finger the six gray hairs of his beard. But when he rose and returned to the kitchen you knew some new dish had been concocted and waited agog with curiosity and impatience to sample it.

People who have visited the Islands and wish to entertain less fortunate friends who have never been to America's most glamourous possession, will find the Sweet Potato dish splendid for the main motif of a Hawaiian supper. Poi, the staple food of the South Seas, made from taro root, outsiders consider a tasteless mess but even strangers enjoy Sweet Potato Poi which is made in the following way.

SWEET POTATO POI

Six large sweet potatoes.
Three-fourths cup of milk and the grated meat from 1 coconut.
Two tablespoons sugar.
1 teaspoon salt.

Wash and peel potatoes. Cook in rapidly boiling salted water until tender. Mash. Add grated coconut to coconut milk. Heat slowly to boiling point. Drain. Add liquor to potato. Beat until fluffy. Add seasonings. Serve in individual dishes. Approximate yield: Six portions.

For salad use Salmon Lomi.

SALMON LOMI

One pound salt or smoked salmon.
Three tomatoes, diced.
Two large, mild onions, diced.
One green pepper, diced.

—o-o—

IF SALT salmon is used, cover with boiling water, let stand 10 minutes and drain. Repeat three times. Shred finely, removing all skin, membrane and bones. Add other ingredients, kneading into a smooth mass. Press into individual molds. Chill thoroughly. Approximate yield: Six portions. Serve at the same time as the rest of the meal.

For a Hawaiian supper or luncheon the table should be covered with ferns or green leaves and dotted with flowers. Lay wreaths of colored paper or fresh flowers at each place for the guests to tuck behind their ears. Wearing flowers behind the ear is a universal Polynesian custom. If a man or woman wears a flower over the right ear it signifies that she wants to find a sweetheart, if the flower is worn over the left ear it means she has one and is not interested in anyone else, and occasionally flowers are worn over both ears, implying that while having a sweetheart a second will be welcome!

A small plate of condiments should be at each plate, consisting of finely chopped walnuts, a few small dried shrimps, tiny green spring onions and a heap of coarse salt. For center decorations pineapples or a watermelon can be used. Pineapple punch, spiked with rum or plain, should be served with the meal. Dessert and coffee is always brought to the guests after they have left the table and found comfortable chairs and couches. A dessert of sherbet, coconut cake, fresh pineapple sliced lengthwise and dusted with powdered sugar and finely chopped mint, or persimmons, which is the fruit that most approximates mangoes in taste and consistency, finishes this Hawaiian supper.

What Is Your Child's Background? x^x^x

By Angelo Patri

HOME background is a tremendous influence upon the lives of the children. It can make for success or doom them to failure. The children take their speech, their manners, their attitudes and behavior from their home. Their social life stems from their home, and again success or failure depends upon the quality of that background.

Most parents want their children to have better opportunities, better jobs, higher scales of living, better social position, than they had. If these ambitions are to be realized the home background has to rise with the parents' ambitions. One cannot expect to rear a child to a higher place in society without a background in keeping. Take the simple matter of table habits.

Table manners are everywhere a recognized measure of social standing. The person who puts both arms on the table and scoops the food from his plate into his mouth which is held at a conveniently close position, won't do for the best table in town.

Spearing bread with a fork, plastering a slice of bread with butter or jam, talking through a mouth bulging with food, eating through the menu without regard to anybody else at the table, will not entitle him to sit with the chosen. Yet that is the seat coveted by good parents for their children. Why not stress dining habits a little in the home? Why not try to keep them up to the standard of the best? It costs no more to be good-mannered than to be bad-mannered, but the children will follow copy.

The best home standards have to become those of the home that aspires to a high place for the children. Good homes have kitchens that are bright, clean, and well-equipped with shining pots and pans. Children like to have kitchen parties where a few of them can gather in the kitchen and make candy or sandwiches and have fun. It may sound strange to ask for a kitchen clean and bright enough for a party, but it will mean a great deal to the children if it is so. It is awful to be ashamed of home, to be ashamed to ask other children to come in. The children that associate with yours in schools are going to be the people they associate with in their later years. If they cannot keep up to them now, cannot meet them on their own level, they won't be able to do it, ever. Make home right today so that it will serve tomorrow.

Children do not worry so much about not having a rich looking home. They want it to be a nice home, and by that they mean the kind of place they can invite the best children to come to. Mother must look nice always. The rooms must have a home-like appearance and be orderly. A bit of color in the hangings, a plant, a few books, a hint of music, an easy chair and a light, a dog or a cat or a bird, make for the right atmosphere. The quiet and security of a home made by people of good taste and intelligence is what is wanted and needed.

We must be willing to learn from the children. Their ways are the only ways for them when it comes to serving, furnishing, welcoming guests and the like. Listen and try to meet the requirements half way or all the way, whenever you can. Home sets its mark on the children and they will have to abide by it all their lives. Make it right.

New Culture Raises Roses In the Shade

Successful Experiment Made by a Webster Groves Rosarian.

By Harriet W. Chandler

JUNE is the month of the rose, the most beloved flower in the world. Besides its beauty and fragrance, its adaptability alone might well recommend it for such popularity. No longer is it necessary to follow the old culture of planting roses only in full sun, for now comes C. B. Fall of Webster Groves, one of our most successful rosarians, showing us that we can grow marvelous roses in the shade. Last year in the extreme heat and drouth, when most roses in the sun gave scant bloom, Fall had roses opening beautifully and holding their flowers in spite of the scorching air. In shade heavy enough that annuals were weak-kneed and sad, his roses flourished and, marvel of marvels, in a place between the walls of two houses along a cement drive a polyantha rose succeeded where even iris refused to show color.

His indeed is a departure from the stereotyped rose culture, but Fall does not advocate that all amateurs dig up their roses and plant them under oak trees, for there are pitfalls in this new method which must be studied out. Mildew and blackspot are ever lurking in the shadow and shallow rooted trees and shrubs must be kept at a distance. Perfect circulation of air is an essential which must be maintained by trimming the trees high.

Roses lend charm to the small garden where many plants can be grouped in a limited space to make a good showing. In the formal garden those of compact habit will conduct themselves with credit while the shrub roses will have a place in the general landscaping of more spacious grounds.

—o-o—

THE HYBRID perpetuals will give the most bloom, but their glory is only for June; after that they do very little. The hybrid teas give scattered bloom throughout the summer and in fall a second burst of flowering may be even more beautiful than the June display. It is with this sort the hybridizers have done the most, giving us roses of new shapes, new colors, new fragrance and some for continuous bloom.

The rose is not hard to grow as many seem to think, but it is as adaptable to different soils as it is to different uses. The prime essential is to give them a good start. Dig the bed deep and enrich the soil generously. Then spray often for bugs and diseases and let nature do the rest.

For roses raised in shade it is necessary to spray with some good fungicide every week or 10 days and between times if it rains. It must be remembered that under our varied climatic conditions a rose struggling through a hot June will hardly be recognized as the same flower when it blooms again under more favorable conditions in fall.

In roses today vogue demands streamlined buds and yellow color which, unfortunately, as yet appear only in varieties lacking vigor.

Passing by the debutantes which have not been out long enough to be tested, the best of the fashionable sorts for St. Louis and vicinity do not make a long list, but will include all the colors.

—o-o—

THE DUPLEX TINTS combine yellow and pink and are generally more vigorous than the few pure yellows. Of these, the President Hoover has shapely buds of reddish pink and yellow opening to a large full flower of lighter yellow with scarlet markings—a truly beautiful rose, sweet scented and a vigorous grower. Bigaret, Autumn and Orange Glory are other handsome roses of the deeper dual colors, while Edith Nellie Perkins and Countess Vandall are lovely deep pink, showing lighter pink on the inside petals. Golden Dawn has the red markings on the buds and outside petals, but opens up into a large straw yellow flower.

The yellow varieties tend to make smaller bushes, which require lots of care to protect the foliage from blackspot, but are worth the effort. Of these, Ville de Paris with urn-shaped buds is beautiful. Other fine yellows are Roslyn, Mrs. Pierre du Pont and Mrs. E. P. Thom, which seems to be better as a tree rose, mildewing badly when grown in the bush form. Golden Ophelia is fine and very hardy, but Eclipse, with its long streamlined buds, has stolen the palm from all of them, having been judged even as far away as Rome, Italy, the most beautiful rose in the world today.

SUPPLIED BY TWO GIANT CANDLES ON A TABLE FOR DINNER ON AN OUTDOOR PORCH AT THE HOME OF ROSE BAMPTON, METROPOLITAN SINGER.

ONE METHOD OF CREATING CHILDREN'S DINING ROOM

IT had been the family breakfast room, but as the children grew out of high chairs, it was decided that the breakfast room should become the children's dining room. Father and mother wanted to make the room attractive yet didn't want to spend too much in the process—another place where ingenuity would have to play the leading role.

The legs of an old wood-top kitchen table were cut down so that the table became a dining table of just the right height for the youngsters. Four small unpainted chairs were bought, three for the family children and an extra chair for company. These and the table were finished in a soft blue. The walls of the breakfast room were already painted a pale yellow so all they needed was a washing down to make them look like new. Father drew a series of scallops on the wall as a border at the top molding and painted them a rich, cocoa brown. The ceiling was also painted brown to make it seem lower.

The one large window was curtained with Dutch type curtains in an amusing chintz, a brown background with saucy, pert faces of kittens as a pattern. These curtains were bound with yellow rick-rack. The same chintz was used to cover chair pads for the small seats and these pads were finished also with the yellow rick-rack.

On one wall of the room a bulletin board, in the form of a black board was put up as a picture with the frame painted brown. Yellow chalk was used to write down daily reminders and suggestions and here the children were allowed, once a week, to plan a meal they would like to have. Brown paper was used for cutting out several cats that were rubber cemented on the wall directly over the board. They looked as if they were sitting on a yellow fence, watching the children eat their suppers. Various pictures of cats, collected and adored by the children, were framed and hung in a low frieze around the room on a line with the window sill, which was eye level for the three little children who used this room.

MABLE F. has asked us to help plan her bedroom. The furniture is burl walnut in rather simple lines. She's been thinking of having silver grey wallpaper and wonders what spreads, draperies, carpet and chair coverings she should use with it, providing we approve of the gray in the first place.

Yes, indeed, we do like silver gray wall paper with walnut, providing it's a sunny room, with a pattern of white flowers and maybe a whisper of yellow in the stamens. Gray woodwork the shade of the paper, a gray carpet, yellow organdy curtains, spreads in yellow flowered chintz, the arm chair in a plain gray linen slip cover with wide cotton fringe dyed yellow to go around the bottom (or the flowered chintz for the chair) there would be our idea for this room.

But here is another suggestion for a room with gray wallpaper. Consider the possibilities of petunia colors with it. Pinks for the glass curtains, a deep lavender for the rug and a figured material lavender (a dress fabric perhaps) for the bedspreads, finished with wide pleated ruffles in pink. Then a pink slip cover for the chair.

But if the room is inclined to be dark, be cautious of gray walls, because they'll tend to be gloomy.

We saw a charming bedroom with walnut furniture that might also suggest an idea. This was a room with an alcove big enough for the bed . . . the main part of the room had walls in palest powder blue, while the alcove walls were done in a powdery plum color. Curtains of shimmering silvery white, closets lined in quilted chartreuse and many mirrors supplied splendiferous accent.

A Woman's New York

NEW YORK, June 5.

UNTIL May 11, in this year of grace, women lawyers of our town were forced to sit well below the salt. They were practising attorneys, and all that, but the legal girls could not become members of the local Bar Association—which is something like toting the Vassar daisy chain.

On May 11, all this was changed. Our Blackstone baby-dolls, at long last, were invited to enter the charmed circle of male wizards of the law—the latest and greatest triumph of our sex in a strictly male world! Thus May 11, in Gotham annals, will rank with July 4 and other such significant dates in history!

No sooner had this classic decree been promulgated (quite naturally) than the cream of our legal crop asked to be let into the sacrosanct Bar Association. Eight of them were among the first applicants, and of these the most interesting, to me, was a Miss Susan Brandeis, whose shingle hangs at 39 Broadway, in the very heart of the financial district.

—o-o—

She happens to be the daughter of Louis D. Brandeis, liberal Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. But never mention that to Miss Susan. She loathes trading on the name and fame of her great father. All she asks is to be the law partner of her husband, Jacob Gilbert, and she does very well. And she is so proud and happy about the Bar Association thing! Which she has every right to be.

● A LOCAL SHOP, one of Fifth Avenue's finest, bursts out with The American Girl Dress—certainly a large order, and somewhat forward, if you ask me! The frock so honored, as I checked it the other day, is a dark, sheer crepe with a fitted, high-waisted bodice. It is to be worn with dark, tailored accessories. . . . And if you don't like the idea, do as you please with your summer clothes.

WE HAD a nice debut at the dear old Metropolitan the other night. The young woman was one Nancy McCord, who was born and grew up on Long Island, and after years of frenzied study, made her party bow at the Met opposite Mario Chamlee in "Marouf". All the neighbors were on hand to cheer the pretty girl from Kew Gardens who finally made the long, stiff grade to Thirty-ninth and Broadway, goal of every girl with magic in her throat!

—o-o—

The most beautiful blonde to trudge our highways in the past fortnight has been Madeleine Carroll of the movies. What a gorgeous girl she is! I saw her one night at a hotel dance, wearing black crepe, and with two red roses in her hair. And did Carroll look lovely! And Myrna Loy was at the same gathering—the freckled beauty from Montana looking her best in a star sapphire blue chiffon evening gown which had countless yards of skirt. Myrna was with her husband, Arthur Hornblow of the movies, and looked very happy indeed, freckles and all.

—o-o—

● WE EVEN have a cooking school, here, believe it or believe it not! It has been going on for 17 years, but most of its pupils have been male, studying to be chefs at our big hotels. And what do you think the diploma is? A rolling pin wrapped in cellophane! Wouldn't it be?

—o-o—

WELL, HINDU PRINTS are in again! Hardly a summer passes but what we have a fashion visitation from the Ganges, and here they are once more! We have a line of beach togs as well as street dresses from that far-flung outpost of the British Empire—and they are both colorful and popular, as they should be. For the Hindu motif in fashion is one of the best, I think.

—o-o—

THERE IS STILL no slacking of the charm bracelet mania, and the little gold gew-gaws are now amazing in their variety. Roy Johnson, at the Waldorf, showed me some honies—detachable dice in a gold frame, a little French phone on which you can dial "I love you," a tiny compact and puff and a placque reading "Do not disturb!"

—o-o—

What has Nebraska got that we haven't? Only the other day we had a cyclone in the suburban town of Greenwich, Conn., something almost unheard of in these parts. True, it was only a baby, but it caused a 10-foot waterspout in the lake of the town park, and made us feel pretty wide-open-spaces. . . .

—o-o—

● A THUNDERSTORM r'ared up while our gold-plated ladies were browsing at the classy Colony Restaurant last week. Through the dining room tore Mrs. Henry Gassaway Davis III. She darted into the checkroom and folded her pup, Hector, in her arms. "When its loud, Hector shakes all over and nearly dies!" Mrs. Davis explained. But Hector was soothed, and when the sun came out he resumed his cheerful chewing of the customers' rubbers. Ah, the troubles of the very rich!

She darted into the checkroom and folded her pup, Hector, in her arms. "When its loud, Hector shakes all over and nearly dies!" Mrs. Davis explained. But Hector was soothed, and when the sun came out he resumed his cheerful chewing of the customers' rubbers. Ah the troubles of the [illegible]!

PAPA GOES on the 5-DAY WEEK

By CARALEE STANARD

ANYONE who belongs to the old school can remember the once-famous ditty about the man of the house who let the rest of the family do the work. The words went something like this:

Everybody works but father
He sits around all day;
Feet in front of the fireplace
Smoking his pipe of clay.
Mother takes in washing,
So does Sister Ann.
Everybody works at our house
But my old man!

When that song was in its heyday—and for years afterward—father didn't dare to pick up the evening paper or to stretch himself on the divan without someone starting to hum the familiar tune. His life wasn't his own, and as for a leisure minute, he had to sneak it when the rest of the family could be coaxed out of town or were sound asleep for the night.

To combat the impression that he was a lazy sort of cuss, father not only took to working 10 hours at the office at least six days a week but he often brought some of the office work home with him. If he had no important looking papers under his arm when he arrived in the evening it was taken for granted that he should fix the kitchen shelf, paint the bathroom or mow the lawn.

As a result the "Old Man" became just that in looks as well as actions and even the President of the United States got to worrying about the length of time father could keep up his deadly pace. Propaganda for papa's leisure became so effective that many business houses decided he should have a five-day week. To cinch the thing for father, President Roosevelt has begun the agitation of maximum hour figures and a congressional committee is now busy working out some definite legislation.

All of which is fine for father and indicates that every day will be Father's day from now on. But where does mother come in? If she gets to hold on to her one special day a year she'll be lucky.

While papa is getting his leisure, mamma will be working overtime—just see if she isn't!

A 30-hour week will mean that father gets at least one extra holiday. Even a 40-hour week assures him the maximum of a half day off any way that legislation or employes can figure it. So instead of rushing him off to catch the morning train, the bus or the service car, mother will be rearranging her hours to coddle the family breadwinner.

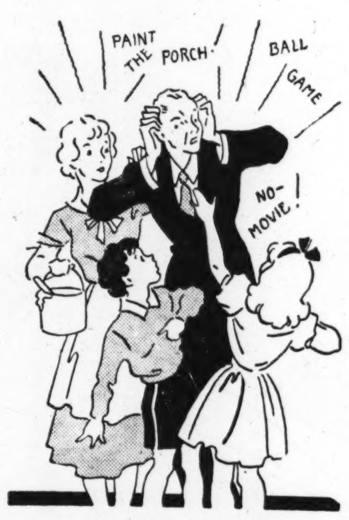
If you don't believe this, ask Mrs. Farris, for example. Her husband has been on a five-day week ever since the NRA started fixing working schedules. She can tell you plenty about the turmoil in the household every Wednesday when the Lord of the Mansion gets his day of rest. Now Mr. Farris is one of those restless souls, and must be busy even though vacationing.

—o-o—

ON his day off he is up at dawn, tinkering with the radio and trying to get some of those far-away stations so difficult to hear at other times of the day. By 8 o'clock he has the lawn mowed, to the disgust of all the neighbors. Then he romps with the dog all over the house, teaching it to hurdle such hazards as the piano and the fireside table. Before 12 o'clock he's in the kitchen, demanding his second helping of ham and eggs. When lunch is over he decides to cut down the choicest maple or elm tree for a bit of exercise and then "rests" in his workshop in the basement. When his hammer and nails penetrate to the roof and his wavering basso echoes through the neighborhood Mrs. Farris knows that a completed dog house or queer-looking chair will soon be on exhibition. By 4 o'clock there's nothing left for father to do but call in his cronies—also leisurites now—and long after the dinner hour they are swapping stories and spilling drinks over the dining-room table.

Meanwhile, what is Mother Farris doing? Being good-natured, she spends the day waiting on father, picking up the tools he has left lying around, straightening the chairs after the romps with the dog, cutting more cheese to go with the beer and hoping the guest will spare the rug if not the table. It takes the rest of the week to repair the holiday damage, and before she can get back on her household schedule, another Wednesday is dawning.

She's a busy person, but wouldn't trade places with the wife of the man who takes his leisure in quite a different manner. On his day off he gets up at 9 o'clock, eats his breakfast and establishes himself for the day in the easiest chair. He surrounds himself with newspapers, magazines and at least one mystery story in addition to a box of cigars. Nothing can budge him from his spot except the pangs of hunger.



The minister can call, fire engines go shrieking by and the wind blow rain in his face. It's his day off and he's sitting still, regardless of floods, fires or tornadoes.

—o-o—

MOTHER has quite a different problem if father is the type who likes to delve into culinary matters. One man I know jumps at the chance to change the menu and do the family marketing. If he has his say he buys frankfurters for lunch and tops them off with a cherry pie from the bakery, while the dinner table, piled with his purchases, looks as though the prodigal son must be returning. As the bills come in at the end of the month, he can't understand how they got that way or why he is 10 pounds heavier. Think what fun there will be in this household when his five-day week starts in earnest.

Pity poor mother, too, if father happens to be a person of thwarted musical ambitions. A five-day week gives him a chance to try out that piccolo he bought at auction or to pick out "My Old Kentucky Home" on the piano.

Likewise, father's hobby, whether it's backyard target practice, building radios or kodak-film developing, is certain to crop out as soon as he has a day off. If he hasn't a hobby there's always the car that needs to be greased or washed, with resultant disaster to towels, clothes and furnishings.

So mother pays for father's leisure by the sweat of her brow, the roughness of her hands and the wear and tear on her disposition. At least, so mother has it figured out.

Ask father for his viewpoint on his new leisure and he'll probably mutter that there's a joker somewhere. Already mother has a schedule of "musts" waiting for him, while son wants him to build a canoe and daughter thinks he should spend every afternoon at the movies.

Perhaps, while the legislators are about it, they'd save a lot of family trouble if they should go a step farther and work out a leisure schedule, thus rescuing the households of the nation.

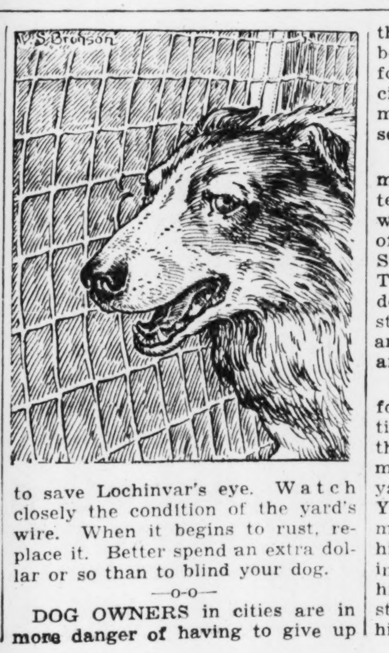
CALLING ALL DOGS -:- -:- -:- By Albert Payson Terhune

I HAVE advised you not to chain your dogs, but to keep them in kennel yards, using cheap chicken wire, if necessary, as a fence around such a yard. The advice was good. A dog that is at partial liberty, even in the confines of a rather small kennel yard, is infinitely better off than moored to a chain. Especially if his kennel house faces the south and is raised a foot or more above the dampness of the earth.

But there is a warning to be added: Keep your eye on the condition of the wire. It will rust. Rusted strands of it will stick out. These spears of wire are of great danger to your dog.

One of my best collies, Sunnybank Lochinvar, lost the sight of his left eye, that way, many years ago. He was dancing around in his yard, to welcome me as I came near, and he was pushing against the wire fence. An outsticking bit of rusted wire pierced his eye, blinding it forever.

That was lesson enough for me, even though I learned it too late to save Lochinvar's eye. Watch closely the condition of the yard's wire. When it begins to rust, replace it. Better spend an extra dollar or so than to blind your dog.



—o-o—

DOG OWNERS in cities are in more danger of having to give up their four-legged chums than ever before. I told you of the crusade for the abolishing of all dogs from cities. But this other phase of the matter seems to me much more serious.

In many cities, the local government has interfered, lately, to protect sidewalks, and to fine or otherwise punish people whose dogs are offenders. Fines have been imposed. Strict warnings have been issued. There seems to be a chance that dogs will be barred wholly from the streets of some big towns. And, I am sorry to say, the dogs' owners are largely to blame.

It is a comparatively easy matter for you to teach your dog the sanctity of the sidewalk, if you go about the task with any patience or commonsense. There are roofs, back yards, gutters, parks, everywhere. Your dog can be taught readily to make use of these, and to behave himself as well on the sidewalk as in the house. I urge you to teach him this. Otherwise you may have stiff fines to pay, or may even lose him. Think it over.

Blueberry Tea Cakes

Ingredients:

One and two-thirds cups cake flour

One and one-half teaspoons baking powder

One-third cup butter

One cup blueberries

One cup sugar

Two eggs, unbeaten

One-half cup milk

One teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, and sift together few times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each. Add flour alternately with milk, beating after each addition until smooth. Add flavoring. Fold in blueberries that have been lightly floured. Pour into greased cupcake pans, filling them two-thirds full. Bake in moderate oven 20 minutes or until done.

Kidney Stew

Ingredients:

One beef kidney.

Two tablespoons fat.

One and one-half cups boiling water.

Two tablespoons flour.

One-half teaspoon salt.

Pepper.

Wash kidney. Split. With sharp knife or scissors remove all white core and tear off outer membrane. Cut in dice or thin circles. Drop into cold salted water. Let stand 15 minutes. Drain. Cover with cold water, and heat slowly to boiling. Drain and repeat. Drain well. Melt fat. Brown kidneys, add water, cover, and cook gently for 20 minutes. Thicken gravy with flour, add salt and pepper to taste. Serve on toast. Approximate yield: four portions.

Banana Butterscotch

Ingredients:
One-half cup dark corn syrup
One-half cup sugar
One-half cup cream
Three tablespoons butter
Three large bananas
Whipping cream

Cook corn syrup, sugar, cream and butter over low heat for five minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour over sliced bananas. Garnish with whipping cream, if desired or serve on sponge cake. The butterscotch sauce is also delicious, served either hot or cold on ice cream. Serves six.

Plum Shortcake

One package vanilla pudding powder.

Two cups milk.

One drop of lemon extract.

One can blue plums, or 1 pint blue plums slightly cooked in sugar syrup.

Six drop biscuit shortcakes.

One-half pint heavy cream.

Make a custard of the pudding powder, milk, and lemon extract. Chill. Remove plums from their juice, take out the seeds, and mix them with the custard. Arrange the mixture between layers and on top of biscuit shortcakes. Then add the swirls of sweetened whipped cream, and serve. Approximate yield: Six portions.

Deficient Diet Brings Disease To Individuals

Survey Shows Children's Illnesses Increased Greatly During Depression.

By
Logan Clendening, M. D.

"AN animal swallows its food; a man eats it, but only a man of intellect knows how to dine," said Brillat-Savarin, the famous epicure and author of "The Physiology of Taste."

As man has become more civilized, his food habits have changed and not always for the better. The original native foods of different people have often been suggested as causes of their national characteristics. "Experimental evidence," says Dr. Lewis R. Wolberg, "is abundant to show that a stock can definitely be improved by betterment of diet."

Such people as those who live in Lower Bengal and Madras live on a very deficient diet, mostly of rice and maize. The diet is poor in protein and deficient in minerals. All sorts of deficiency diseases, such as sore tongue, diarrhea, eye disease, paralysis, leprosy and dropsy are common.

—o-o—

THE FIGHTING RACES of India, such as the Pathans, Punjabis and Sikhs, are strong and well developed physically, brave and warlike. Their diets are well balanced and contain all the essential food substances. Meat, milk, dairy products, eggs, vegetables and fruit are eaten in well balanced proportions.

The best developed, most vigorous and long-lived of the Indian races are said to be the people of Hunza, who live on a very rational diet—fruit, especially apricots and mulberries, milk and vegetables. Meat is a luxury eaten only on special occasions.

In 22 years' residence among them, a certain doctor found that the following diseases are rare or unknown: appendicitis, ulcer of the stomach, acute gall-bladder disease, gall-stones, acute rheumatism, cancer and heart disease. Whether this is due to diet or not is a debatable question.

In a survey of a number of American school children, it was found that those who are in a deficient economic state are definitely more subject to malnutrition than the others. C. E. Palmer studied 5000 families during the depression, and found that the average weights had fallen and that illness had increased tremendously in children of the depression poor.

QUESTION: "Will you please tell me what vegetables contain iodine?" J. A.

Answer: In communities where the soil is rich in iodine, nearly all vegetables contain iodine. Those food substances which are likely to contain the most iodine are seafoods—for instance, Alaska salmon contains 324 parts as compared to rye, which contains 3.5 parts. Goat's milk contains 400 parts. Oats and carrots are good sources of iodine.

Cherry Shortcake

One quart of ripe cherries (preferably large black ones).

One and one-half cups sugar.

Drop biscuit shortcakes.

One quart vanilla ice cream.

Wash and pit the cherries. Place them in two rather shallow pans, sugar them, and allow to simmer for 10 or 15 minutes over a low fire—until the sugar and juices from the cherries are well-blended.

Chill for half a day or longer in refrigerator. Add one-fourth cup of brandy to the cherries, if black ones are used; also a trifle more sugar. Prepare drop biscuit shortcakes. Split and cover with ice cream and top with cherry sauce Approximate yield: Six portions. Serve with hot coffee.

Peach Shortcake

One large drop biscuit shortcake.

One-half pint heavy cream, whipped.

Three cups sliced canned peaches, chilled.

One-half cup blanched almonds.

Bake shortcake dough in seven-inch layer pan in hot oven (450 degrees) 25 minutes or until done. Split shortcake while warm and cover lightly with slightly sweetened whipped cream. Cream should be very cold. Add sliced peaches Top with biscuit and cover with peaches, then with split almonds, and finally with whipped cream. Approximate yield: Six portions. Serve with hot coffee.

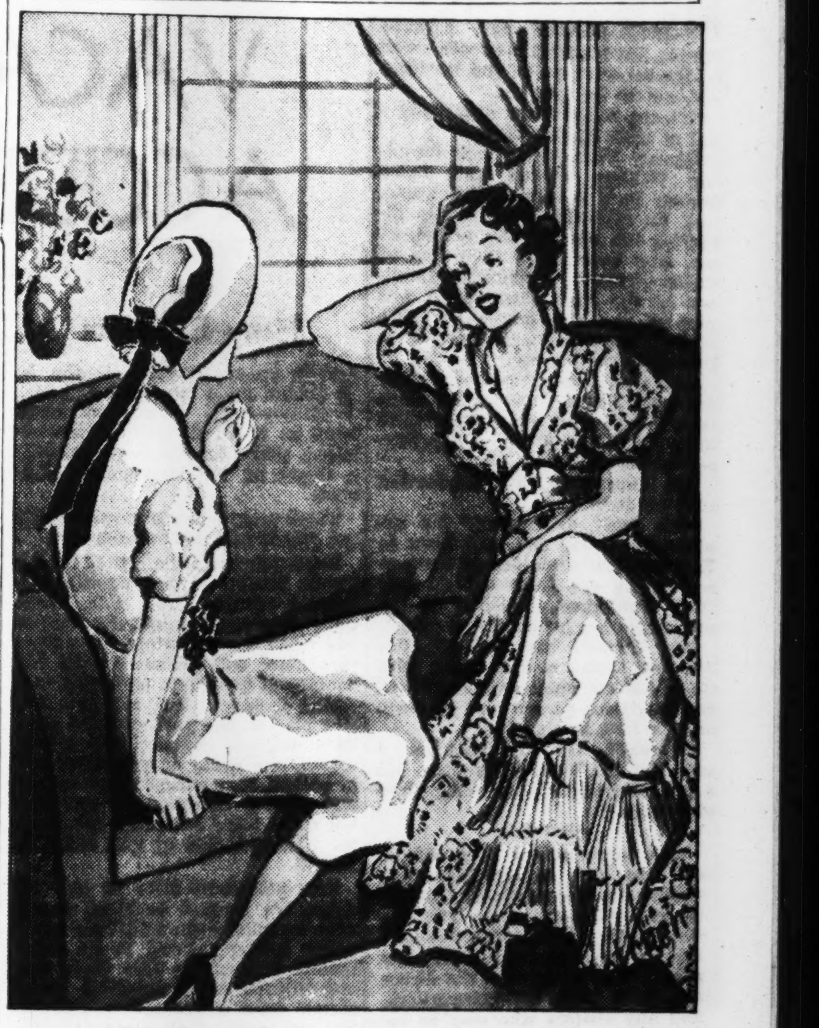
STYLES-SMILES -:- By GRETCHEN



"YOU WERE SIMPLY STUNNING IN THAT NEW DRESS LAST NIGHT—EVEN IF YOUR SLIP WAS SHOWING!"

The rosy glow that's just faded from her guest's mind is all recaptured in her rosy-beige frock with its wine velvet waist-corsage matching the ribbon that scallops and streams from her uncrowned hat. We confess that her hostess is as devastating as her remarks in this printed white taffeta negligee cut in idealized redingote fashion. Firm, but not too much buttoning at the high waistline, for the skirt must part to show this white taffeta slip. The velvet ribbon laced 'round the pleated ruffles is pretty silly—but don't you love it?

WIDE RANGE OF STYLES IN NEW SWIMMING TOGS

JUDGING by the attention paid to beach fashions, St. Louis girls are expected to spend most of their leisure hours in or near the water this summer. What they wear and where they wear it will be for each to decide, because the assortments of swimming togs and accessories never were more varied.

Genuine swimming suits range all the way from practical one-piece garments of knitted wool to synthetic jersey models that have weird fish or gay sea gulls printed on them. The latter type, although dressed up in appearance, adds a form-fitting lining so that the wearer can go in the water. Cotton suits are featured extensively this season, and although they look as though they were designed for lounging, have the trim little lining which promises good service.

More emphasis is placed this year upon novelty printed fabrics, both for swimming and for beach wear. There are brilliantly patterned materials used for matching coats and swim suits as well as for accessories. The Paisleys, the India prints and the Hawaiian flower patterns all are called upon to do their part toward glorifying the bathing beauty. Novelty piques, peasant linens and seersuckers are among the other popular prints so extensively used this season.

—o-o—

IN THE LINE of play suits, one of the most striking to attract the eye in St. Louis store displays consists of abbreviated overalls of natural colored peasant linens to be worn with a brightly colored pique blouse. They have suspenders over the shoulders. Another overall idea developed of regulation blue denim consists of slacks to which are attached a bib top cut away at the back for the wearer to attain a maximum of sun tan.

Since stripes are being exploited for every type of costume from the evening dress to the swimming suit, there are many versions to consider in the choice of a beach wardrobe. One of the most striking two-piece suits introduces zebra stripes of red and white or blue and white. Ocean waves are suggested by another ensemble combining navy and white voile in the creation of full length coat and one-piece play suit. Candy striped shorts, culottes and slacks also are striking additions to the brilliance of beach costumes, most of them developed of seersuckers or mattress ticking cottons.

—o-o—

A COLLECTION of shirts for wear with slacks, shorts or culottes displays a riot of colors and a multitude of designs. Some of these shirts are made of knitted cotton very light of weight and ideally suited to St. Louis climate. They may be pulled on over a bathing suit or worn for active beach sports. Short-sleeved blouses, very tailored and simple of cut, are made of tubbable cottons in deep shades as well as pastels and have so many uses a play wardrobe is not complete without several.

SYLVIA STILES

Two Hats in One

IF YOU aren't certain whether you want a sun-tanned face or a peaches-and-cream complexion, one of those two-in-one hats may help to settle the question. The crown consists of a fishnet cap which covers the hair completely, while the wide brim of straw is detachable. Wear the net alone or with some flower decorations, the designer suggests, or omit the net and wear the brim with no covering for the hair.

Paper towels, now accepted as regulation equipment in the kitchen, have many more uses than drying of hands. They are excellent for draining bacon, wiping pans that have become stained on the bottom, cleaning up spilled liquids and protecting surfaces that are easily marred.

THOSE Sideline Kibitzers

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD, June 5.

MERVYN LeROY was directing an intimate love scene between Gloria Dickson and Edward Norris, but his final instruction was to the set-workers behind the camera, not to the players.

"Please move over, everybody—out of their line of vision."

George Fitzmaurice was directing William Powell and Luise Rainer in a not-so-intimate scene, and he said the same thing, directing his remark, I'm afraid, at me, who was not in their line of vision anyway. I remember thinking at the time Fitzmaurice was just an excitable crank, that Mr. Powell didn't give a hoot about his line of vision anyway.

And I left the set before finding out what Powell thought, but since then I've learned that many actors have trouble with the things they see while emoting.

Ian Hunter, no ham, vouchsafed that he does.

"It's most distracting," he explained, "to lay my soul bare to Kay Francis, when out of the corner of my eye I see a little lady from Kankakee, a visitor on the set, nudge her husband and grin."

Kay Francis had her say, too. She was doing a love scene with George Brent once, and Brent was saying, "Look at me and you will see the love in my eyes."

"I looked. Over his shoulder I saw, not the love in his eyes, but a prop man biting off a big chew of tobacco."

—o-o—

The surroundings of a movie set are not exactly inspiring. People on the sidelines, looking in, see actors at work. The actors, under the camera's eye and looking out, see the camera, the microphone boom man, the director, from 10 to 50 set-workers, and any visitors who may be on hand. Catching the eye of an actor, in the middle of his scene, is one of the sweetest tricks you can play on him.

—o-o—

● AND ESPECIALLY SO during a love scene. In many of these, the screen lovers have just met each other when the romancing starts. Sometimes it is how-do-you-do and give-me-a-kiss for the cameras. Dick Powell had barely met Doris Weston when they had to start making ardent love scenes. Dick takes them in stride by now, but Miss Weston, new to films, found the abruptness disconcerting.

"Everybody knew I was flustered," she said, "and smiled encouragement from the sidelines. I imagined they were smiling at what I was saying and doing."

Humphrey Bogart holds that seeing somebody in the audience engrossed in something else while you're tearing your heart out is irritating no end.

"Once on the stage," he recalled, "I was saying a tearful farewell to the heroine and I was wrapped up in that scene. Holding her close, I suddenly glimpsed a movement in the audience. It was a stout man in the second row, rhythmically sweeping a pocket comb across his hair.

"That was when the heroine said 'Ouch.' In my anger I'd nearly broken the lady's rib!"

—o-o—

● PAUL MUNI CALLS IT "living the character."

Luise Rainer calls it artistic interpretation.

What Garbo calls it I wouldn't know first-hand.

But Akim Tamiroff, of all the "artistic" artists of the screen, is the first one to call it "poison."

"You cannot act," he assures you, "unless you become literally poisoned by your role. It must get into your mind, your blood, your stomach. It must make your days intolerable and your sleep a nightmare until you get it out of your system."

—o-o—

Tamiroff, short and on the plumpish side, is still Russian in Hollywood. He looks Latin rather than Slavic, which makes him suitable for a greater variety of roles. With make-up he can do a passing fair Chinese, too. His dawn-dying general was runner-up, remember, for an academy award. Lately he's been running to Italians.

—o-o—

● IT IS WHEN TALKING about acting that Tamiroff becomes Russian and intense. His entire career has been characterized by a sort of slavery to his work.

"I am a creature of bits," he declares.

"At the Moscow Art Theater where I began," he says, "it was bits and bits for years until, with the Russian stars, I came to America in 1923 doing roles in 'The Cherry Orchard,' 'Three Sisters' and 'At the Bottom.'

"Success! Ah! But then, it was bits again in the movies. Bits in 30 pictures, phoo! So I said to myself it is time something were done about this. So—"

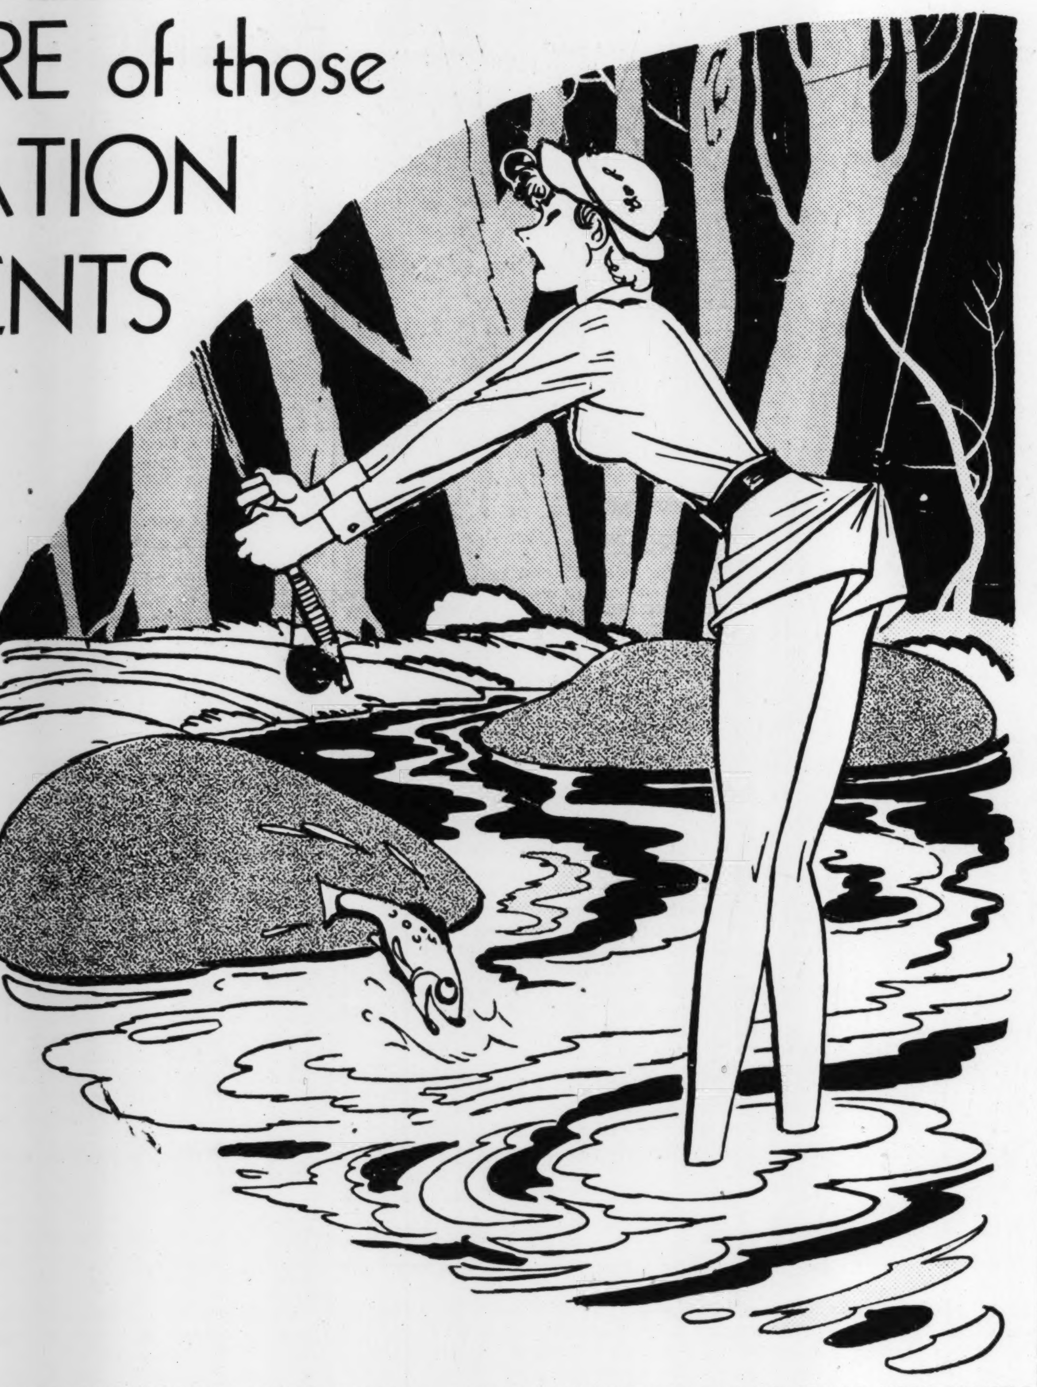
He decided to make each bit of dialog given him as complete a work of art as possible.

"I took the lines and died about them. I made them poison me. I perspired. I had the furies and—well, pretty soon they began giving me two lines, three lines."

Hollywood really noticed Tamiroff for the first time when he let his bit in "Queen Christina" work its "poison" on him. After that, he began getting more calls to bits, and to parts, and to featured roles, and finally to a contract.

BEWARE of those VACATION ACCIDENTS

By
Harry Barsantee



FISHHOOKS CAUSE MANY PAINFUL INJURIES. IT ISN'T UNUSUAL FOR THE NOVICE TO HOOK HIMSELF —OR HERSELF—IN THE SEAT OF THE PANTS.

THE joyous vacation season is almost upon us and Old Mr. Killjoy begs permission once more to butt into your otherwise happy plans long enough to wag a finger of warning under your nose.

Those pesky vacation hazards will get you if you don't watch out.

Some years ago the United States Public Health Service published a booklet entitled "The Safe Vacation." Leafing through its pages one finds the following: "The wise vacationer will include among his equipment two gauze bandages, two cotton bandages, one roll of adhesive plaster, one yard of plain sterile gauze, one ounce of tincture of iodine, one dram of permanganate of potash, four ounces of castor oil, one clinical thermometer and one hot water bag." Not much room left for fishing tackle or golf clubs, is there?

The paid-claim files of one of America's largest accident insurance companies show that for every policy holder injured in an automobile accident in 1936 there was one injured while enjoying some simple form of recreation. Twenty-two per cent of all accidents during the last five years were suffered by people who were at play.

Even more discouraging, recreational accidents have increased more than 70 per cent within the last 20 years. Of course, that means that we are indulging in sports to a greater extent, but it also indicates that we aren't learning very rapidly how to have our fun without frequent recourse to the iodine bottle and the sterile gauze.

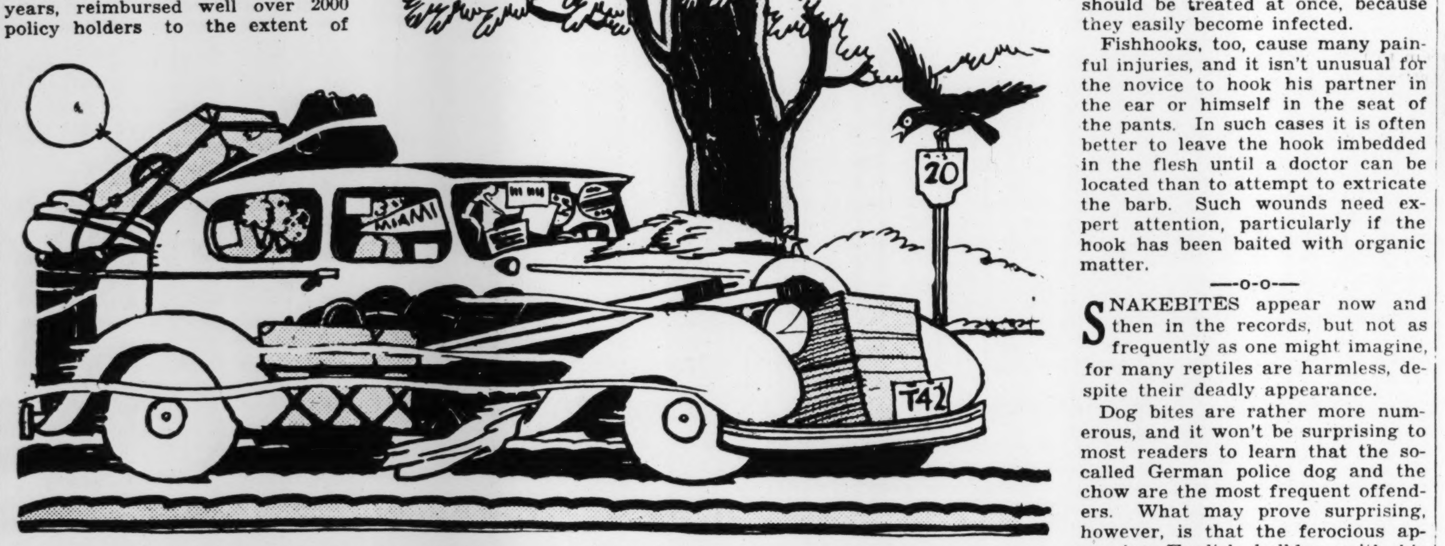
You probably are thinking that most of these accidents occur in so-called dangerous and specialized sports such as football, boxing and polo. And that's where you are wrong. Those who engage in the more strenuous sports apparently know how to take care of themselves, for accidents in those fields are surprisingly low.

It is the dub who spends the majority of his time in the office or factory and who then tries to cram a whole year's recreation into a few week-end outings and a two-weeks' vacation who most frequently gets into trouble.

—o-o—

AS a matter of fact, for every person injured while playing football, two are injured while fishing. For everyone injured while boxing, 14 meet some kind of injury while boating and canoeing. For everyone injured while playing hockey or polo, 28 are injured while playing tennis or squash.

And that gentle game of golf! Well, next to the national game of baseball, golf causes more accidents than any form of sport on the recreational calendar. This one company has, within the past five years, reimbursed well over 2000 policy holders to the extent of nearly a quarter of a million dollars for personal injuries suffered on the nation's golf courses.



ONE DANGEROUS HABIT IS TO PLASTER WINDOWS AND WINDSHIELD WITH STICKERS AND PILE UP LUGGAGE SO HIGH AS TO OBSCURE THE DRIVER'S VISION.

The bulk of these accidents are just the common, everyday variety. Many persons are struck by flying balls or by inexpertly wielded clubs. Sprained and broken ankles are numerous and strained backs are not at all unusual. But it is the unusual accident that attracts attention and the files reveal many of these.

One golfer was whittling a ball to learn what was inside when the pellet exploded, emitting a powerful acid which all but destroyed the sight of one eye. Another was struck by a fellow player's club, which knocked his bridgework down his throat.

A Hartford housewife, angry because she missed an easy putt, tossed her club into the air. It landed in a tree. Her tantrum over, there was nothing for her to do but shinny up to retrieve the club. In descending, she slipped and cut her leg badly. Still another player, while trying some practice shots with a pipe in his mouth, hit himself with the club handle and knocked the briar back into his throat.

The modern vacation, of course, usually begins and ends on wheels —even though it sometimes begins in a four-wheeled car and ends in a two-wheeled chair.

The idea seems to be to pick out a destination, be it in the country, the mountains or the seashore; then throw a heterogeneous mass of duffle into or onto the family flivver and get to that destination with as little delay as possible. The vacationist is so often lost in day-dreams of the fishing, camping and swimming he is going to enjoy when he gets there that he fails to prepare for the nightmares that may beset him on the road.

So much has been written about the usual hazards of the road that they may be omitted here. Two hazards peculiar to vacationists, however, are worth mentioning after a study of last year's accidents.

One is the bad habit which many tourists have of plastering stickers all over the windshield and rear window, thus effectively blocking the driver's vision. Even worse, perhaps, is the practice of piling duffle so high on the front and rear fenders that the driver all but needs a periscope to see over it.

Well, let's be optimistic and assume that you arrive at your destination safely. You're not going to spoil your precious two weeks' vacation by rushing heedlessly into your favorite sports. Maybe you did run the mile for dear old Piffle Academy and then, with only a few minutes' rest, take part in the relay. But that doesn't mean you can dash out on the first day and play 36 holes of golf, then plunge into the lake and swim across it, without paying for your folly with aching muscles on the morrow.

Swimming and diving, of course, stand high on the list of accident causes. Drownings most frequently result from sheer carelessness, and the expert or near-expert is quite as likely to be a victim as the tyro. Confident in his ability, the accomplished swimmer runs to the end of the pier and dives in, not realizing that his graceful aerial glide may end suddenly and painfully with his head buried in the mud and his feet sticking out of too-shallow water.

Or, wishing to show off, he starts to swim across the lake only to find when he gets beyond aid that long winter days behind an office desk have softened his muscles and shortened his wind. Cramps are often induced by venturing into the water too soon after a meal, and by plunging into the water after a strenuous game of golf on a hot day without first waiting to cool off.

Among the foolish stunts recorded last year which might have had a tragic ending was one perpetrated by Capt. John C. Benson, 73, who arranged an underwater wedding off a Seattle beach. A jammed air-pump nearly caused him to suffocate and a leaking suit almost drowned the minister, but the captain finally managed to take Mrs. Elizabeth Pardee to wife.

Incidentally, if Junior comes around with a home-made diving outfit and wants you to help him try it out, take it away from him instead. There has been something of a craze among the youngsters for these makeshift affairs and several deaths have resulted.

Knowledge of the prone pressure method of resuscitation should be in every vacationist's mental equipment. Referring again to the Government's booklet, you will read the advice that, in cases of apparent drowning, "artificial respiration should be performed until it is certain that the individual is dead, and then continued for an hour and a half."

Actually, this is sage advice. In hundreds of cases drowning victims have been literally brought back to life after they had been pronounced dead simply because someone knew how to apply prone pressure and had sense enough to keep on applying it even when it seemed useless.

Victims in boating accidents are usually amateurs who do not realize the dangers of moving about or overloading and who scoff at those whose common sense makes them appreciate the hazards involved. Those who cannot resist the temptation to "rock the boat" should be left ashore, and sometimes it may be advisable to reason with them by means of a pickhandle or a small piece of wide board, according to their ages.

The hazards of fishing are many. Experienced anglers know that a landed bass or bluefish may still have plenty of fight left in him to inflict a severe and painful bite and they handle him accordingly, but numbers of the uninitiated have to learn it by sharp experience each summer. Wounds of this kind should be treated at once, because they easily become infected.

Fishhooks, too, cause many painful injuries, and it isn't unusual for the novice to hook his partner in the ear or himself in the seat of the pants. In such cases it is often better to leave the hook imbedded in the flesh until a doctor can be located than to attempt to extricate the barb. Such wounds need expert attention, particularly if the hook has been baited with organic matter.

—o-o—

SNAKEBITES appear now and then in the records, but not as frequently as one might imagine, for many reptiles are harmless, despite their deadly appearance.

Dog bites are rather more numerous, and it won't be surprising to most readers to learn that the so-called German police dog and the chow are the most frequent offenders. What may prove surprising, however, is that the ferocious appearing English bulldog, with his bowed legs, heavy jaw and protruding teeth is practically whitewashed by the records.

Aside from snakes and dogs, one must be on the lookout for poisonous insects. The black widow spider has received a great deal of publicity in recent years and it would seem that her depredations may be on the increase.

Poison sumac, poison ivy and poison oak cause many severe irritations each summer. The best remedy is the immediate application of laundry soap and hot water.

Many other hazards could be pointed out and many safety suggestions offered, but maybe you've reached the right conclusion by now that a safe and enjoyable vacation depends upon employing plain common sense and moderation.

Or maybe you're just going to sit home and sew, thereby making certain Old Man Accident won't get you. Don't be too sure. A housewife at Greenwich, Mich., was wounded last year by a needle. In making her report she wrote: "I sat on my fancy work."

Strengthening Facial Muscles In Middle Age

This Can Be Done by Vigorous and Regular Treatment.

By Helen Jameson

TWO major beauty ills come to many women of middle age: The silhouette that has lost youthful outline and depleted facial tissues. Gray hair is as nothing compared to these two beauty defects, indeed grey hair often is not a grief but a beauty asset. Though women who have it seldom think so.

To combat wrinkles, a double chin, drooping jaw tissues you have to catch 'em young. They give warning of their coming. If you have the seeing eyes you will know that they are on the way. What has happened? Maybe the digestive machine has been slipping so that the tissues have become depleted. Loss of sleep is sometimes responsible. Being unhappy and worrying will bring along a wrecking crew of beauty ills.

Should it happen that you are along in your fifties and note that the woman in the mirror isn't getting any better looking, check up your daily habits. Find out what's wrong. Something is. Because, if a woman is following the laws of health, she shouldn't have a line before 60, if then. Most of the facial gullies one sees are self-inflicted.

—o-o—

PERHAPS you haven't been friendly with your face. You went your way and let it go hang. That's bad. It's the only face you've got. You should treat it with respect.

A course of facial treatments by a specialist who knows her beauty catechism is well worth the money, not only for the good results but because of the ideas one catches for home work.

Get a jar of heavy massage cream and use it. If it stands on the shelf it won't help a bit. Every night after bathing your face with soap and warm water, spread on the emollient.

Begin far down on the neck. Rub up and down with flattened palm. Palm from chin tip to the ears, from chin to temples. Never pull down the flesh. Give it an upping.

—o-o—

FOR TREATMENT of crow's-feet place the finger on the eyelid, sweep outward to the temple, come back underneath to starting point. Smooth frowns and forehead lines crosswise.

If there are parenthesis lines running from nostrils to lip ends, start nipping at the lower line, working upward.

Finish with a brisk five finger exercise, using the fingers as if they were little hammers. Avoid rotary movements which almost every woman gives herself when she applies a cream. Invariably they push the flesh up under the eyes, form creases.

Then a quick slapping with flattened fingers, not forgetting the neck, and friction with an ice cube which will send the blood streams about their business and harden the tissues.

Sports for All Is Hollywood's Way of Living

Whether in Croquet or Polo, Racing or Cruising, Every Actor Has His Recreation.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HOLLYWOOD, June 5.

JUST as soon as you become a movie star you simply have to become a sportsman or a sportswoman. We don't know exactly why, but it is one of the rules. The less athletically-inclined go in for croquet—with gold-plated hoops, ebony balls ringed with silver, and jewel-studded mallets—and work on up to tennis and badminton. The hardier boys and girls make polo their life work outside the studios while the real money set, the $5000 a week and uppers, take their exercise by way of yachting and racing stables. But to Bing Crosby probably goes the allround sporting record, for on July 3 the crooner will open his own racetrack. Already interested in many other sporting affairs—he staged a golf championship event this season, owns a half interest in a fighter named Freddie Steel who, we are assured by Bing's press agent, is the middleweight champion of the world, has a racing stable of 25 horses and is proprietor of a softball league—Crosby is building a sumptuous track with grandstands, clubhouse and everything at Del Mar, 100 miles south of Hollywood. Its opening early next month is going to be the big event of the movie year.

Bing's tremendous horse ranch is down in the same district. So far he has raised mostly losers, but he hopes, if his voice holds out, to have a Kentucky Derby winner before long. Barbara Stanwyck and Mrs. Zeppo Marx, with their Marwyck ranch closer to Hollywood, have their eyes pointed in the same general direction and now Bob Taylor, who is beginning to feel his oats, so to speak, is talking of the same thing and has gotten as far as buying a stock farm of his own. Clark Gable has retired from racing, finding it too expensive, even for income tax reduction purposes and his main hope, Beverly Hills, is now munching alfalfa at Marwyck and will probably spend the rest of his days there.

Crosby's closest rival in the movie racing game is Joe E. Brown. The comedian has a big stable, too, although his chief interest is in baseball. Joe owns part of the Kansas City team which has won a good many more games than his horses have races. Since, at this writing, Kansas City stood last in the American Association race, you can get some sort of a rough idea as to how well his four-legged hayburners are doing.

BUT it is the yachtsmen who really cut the dash out here. You see a man with a yacht can wear a uniform with gold buttons and things, which is not without appeal to movie folk. And right now is the beginning of the new boating season with the really topnotchers of Hollywood getting their yachts out of mothballs, caulking their seams and polishing up the brass buttons. Allan Jones, who learned all about navigation on Horseshoe Lake in Forest Park when he was singing in Municipal Opera—Allan's movie salary is now $2500 a week—got into the game last year, sold his 45-foot schooner last fall and is now in the market for a craft a little more pretentious, maybe a liner or something.

One of the most enthusiastic sailors in the movie set is Lewis Stone. Not very showy about it, either. He's been at it a long time, too, but is more or less reducing speed for he has just sold his big yacht and purchased a smaller one.

Antedating Mr. Stone's very genuine love of sailing is the interest, with its attending publicity, shown by Cecil B. DeMille. Mr. DeMille is looked upon as the Grand—everything he does is grand, you know—Commodore of the Pacific Movie Fleet. Commodore DeMille, however, combines business with pleasure and even now is having his 160-foot Gloucester schooner, Seaward, re-rigged for a debut in the films. Originally built in 1920 at Boothby, Me., for South Sea trading, it made one trip in that business and DeMille bought it when it came back to California a year later with a load of copra. DeMille will use it in his next picture, "The Buccaneer," and DeMille, Fredric March and the rest of the cast will live aboard for a month while the cameras are grinding.

Mae West is another skipper who is oiling up her sextant in preparation for her first cruise of the season. Possessed of a gait which easily adjusts itself to a rolling sea, Mae has a part interest in the 48-foot cruiser originally purchased by Boris Petroff, long an associate of hers in stage ventures. It was Mae herself who broke a bottle over its bow and officially christened it "Mae West."

The boat has lines which even the star herself envies and was built to weather the heaviest going. Its roomy interior sleeps 10 persons and Mae is now figuring on some day shipping with Petroff and her manager, James Timony, and a few other friends, for her first trip around the world.

GAYETY OF 'THE GREAT WALTZ'

ROSEMARY DEERING AND MEMBERS OF THE ENSEMBLE WHO APPEAR IN A FIRST ACT BALLET OF THE VIENNESE LIGHT OPERA AT THE MUNICIPAL THEATER.

Katharine Cornell Sends Agent to Map World Tour

SOME time this month an emissary of Katharine Cornell will sail from California on a hurried trip around the world to discover, if possible, a practical route for a company of actors who would carry the American theater to every corner of the globe. By boat, airplane, rail and pack horse he will seek theaters and audiences for the most ambitious project an American actress yet has conceived in the matter of touring.

It was when Miss Cornell was ending her first season in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" in San Francisco six years ago that the idea of taking a repertory company around the world first was suggested. No native player of importance has undertaken so comprehensive a jaunt of this kind.

At the beginning of the century Nance O'Neill traveled to Australia and proceeded to London, touching some Eastern cities on her way. T. Daniel Frawley, a California producer and player, at one time regularly visited the Orient. Other than these there is no record that approches the plan Miss Cornell has outlined for herself. Bernhardt played in the Far East. Marie Tempest circled the globe during the later years of the war, but she had a half dozen players and some one-set comedies. Miss Cornell would take five or six plays and 30 or 35 players.

The estimated cost of traveling and living accommodations runs over $250,000, and this does not take into account salaries or expenses attached to the performance of the plays. That there may be profitable audiences in Australia and New Zealand and England is evident, but to reach the cities of China, Japan, the Philippines, Java, the Malay Straits, India, Egypt, Palestine, Turkey and Greece means many months traveling when no performances may or can be given and even the cities in these countries where the actors may set up their scenes and don their costumes are comparatively few.

Until Miss Cornell's representative returns late in January from his preliminary tour of investigation the actress manager will make no definite plans. She has booked the National Theater in Washington the week of March 7, 1938, as the possible starting place for circling the globe. She means to produce a new American play for the tour, possibly Gustav Eckstein's "The Ivory Fan." She hopes to have at least another native drama to include with Shakepeare's "Romeo and Juliet" and one of his comedies, Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan" and "Candida" and Rudolf Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" in her world repertory.

Producer Says "Finds" Are Work of One Man

Insisting that star-finding is a "one-man job," B. P. Schulberg, producer who has many discoveries to his credit, observes: "A group of men simply cannot agree as to the merits of a star prospect, any more than six men can agree upon whose girl is best-looking." Schulberg's latest "find," John Trent, is featured with Akim Tamiroff in "The Great Gambini." Until a few months ago Trent was the pilot of a transcontinental plane.

Bureau of New Plays Announces Second Contest

THE second play competition of the Bureau of New Plays for college students and recent graduates was announced yesterday by Theresa Helburn, director. Terms and requirements were decided after a series of preliminary meetings between Miss Helburn, the advisory council—Walter Prichard Eaton of Yale, chairman; Frederick H. Koch of the University of North Carolina, and Kenneth Rowe of the University of Michigan — and the representatives of the seven major motion picture companies sponsoring the Bureau of New Plays.

Awards of $500 will again be made to the authors of the six best plays submitted in the competition. At the discretion of the Bureau of New Plays, and on the basis of future promise and financial need, these awards may be increased to scholarship awards of $1250 or to fellowship awards of from $1500 to $2500.

Any undergraduate or graduate student now attending any American or Canadian university or college, or who has attended such an institution at any time since Sept. 1, 1931, whether or not the work for a degree was completed, is eligible to compete. The contest opens Oct. 1 and closes Dec. 15.

Plays must be full length, original, unpublished and unproduced by any professional theater, and must have written recommendation by the head of the English or drama department, or his authorized representative, of the college or university attended by the author. The bureau's offices are at 1270 Sixth avenue, New York City.

Illustrators in Film

Six of America's most famous illustrators and humorous artists recently made their motion picture debuts when they went before the cameras in "Artists and Models." Sharing the sequence with them was the English beauty, Sandra Storm, who, a casual visitor in Los Angeles, was "discovered" by them when, as guests at a Cocoanut Grove dinner given by Producer Lewis Gensler, they saw her dancing with her escort. The artist-actors are Peter Arno, McClelland Barclay, Arthur William Brown, Rube Goldberg, Russell Patterson and John LaGatta.

Clark Gable as Hibernian Hero

"Parnell", at Loew's, Revives a Statesman's Romance

By Colvin McPherson

THE life of Charles Stewart Parnell, Irish patriot, who, for the love of Katie O'Shea, gave up his claim as "Uncrowned King of Ireland," needs very little rewriting by the dramatists. And very little has been given it by John Van Druten, S. N. Behrman and the late Elsie T. Schauffler, to provide the picture, "Parnell," which brings Clark Gable and Myrna Loy again to Loew's Theater this week.

"Parnell" is a pretty fair approximation of things as they were, with heavier accent, of course, on the forbidden romance of the parliamentary leader and Capt. O'Shea's wife, as well as those things which Clark Gable and Myrna Loy are best qualified to do for the public entertainment.

In actual life, Parnell may have been more like Brian Aherne in "Beloved Enemy" than Clark Gable in "Parnell," but Gable does not let the role suffer for his efforts. He fights Ireland's cause with vigor and treats the lovely Myrna Loy O'Shea with a gallantry of which any of Erin's sons might be proud. Only in his death scene does he seem to be speaking an out-and-out pretty speech.

Miss Loy, too, only slightly more Irish than Charlie Chan, goes after the role of Katie O'Shea with the devotion of a fine trouper, with the result, counting Gable in, that their romance is a very moving one and the kind we like.

The background is almost without blemish. Enough fine British and Irish actors have been rounded up to give authenticity to the atmosphere, the director, John M. Stahl, has wisely not forced any bogus brogue on anybody, and the pace of the 1880s has been kept throughout the film. One slight boner may be noticed by a few persons early in the running, where a newspaper refers to the divorce case of "O'Shea vs. O'Shea and Parnell" long before matters have come to that stage.

"Parnell" opens with the Irish patriot's visit to America, home of his mother, shows the misery and bitterness in Ireland, carries him through the Pigott forgeries connecting him with the Phoenix Park murders and their exposure, and on the day on which he wrests a promise of Home Rule from Gladstone, files the divorce suit which names him as co-respondent. His choice of standing by Katie, admitting his love for her, or denying it to keep leadership of his party, is the climax of the drama. And he decides as any gentleman would.

Assisting Gable and Miss Loy are Donald Crisp as Parnell's lieutenant, Edmund Gwenn as his secretary, Alan Marshall as the never-home husband of Katie, Edna May Oliver and Billie Burke as comic characters to chaperon Katie and Parnell. George Zucco makes a brilliant defense attorney at the Pigott investigation and Montagu Love is impressive as Gladstone.

To round out its program, Loew's has selected one of the best Disney cartoons of the season, "The Country Cousin," which tells, in hilarious fashion, the fable of the visit of the backwoods mouse to the home of his wiseguy relative in the city.

This Is My Affair.

A LITTLE later than "Parnell," but still in the crazy clothes period of history is the Ambassador feature, "This Is My Affair." It goes into Arlington Cemetery to dig up a young naval lieutenant who performed a singular service for President McKinley, in personally ridding the Midwest of a dangerous gang of bank robbers. It also has been told for truth about President Lincoln's administration and that of a New York Governor, but is still a good story and to be enjoyed.

Robert Taylor, who plays brass buttons, gets himself kicked out of the navy and by keeping his ear to bowling alleys, beer gardens and the like, makes his way to the headquarters of the robbers in St. Paul. The active robbers are Victor McLaglen and Brian Donlevy, while Donlevy has a sister, Barbara Stanwyck, for Taylor to become interested in. A gal named Lil, she sings in a cafe and wears McLaglen's diamonds.

For a while it looks as if President McKinley had sent Robert to look for Miss America instead of dangerous criminals, but with Barbara convinced by Robert that she likes him, he starts getting busy on his main assignment. And it brings him to trial with McLaglen, the Federal men having already shot Donlevy to death. Then the President is assassinated and Robert is in a bad situation, with a noose hanging over his head. All of which allows an exciting finish to the picture.

Of unique interest are the characterizations of Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt by Frank Conroy and Sidney Blackmer. Makeup of both actors gives them a startling resemblance to the originals. Conroy's, I think, is the better, since he may take his time at creating McKinley, and Blackmer, in a few speeches, has to use all of Teddy's favorite expressions, mannerisms and viewpoints.

Robert McWade looks very, very much like the portraits of Admiral Dewey, adding a third to the historic group.

The Ambassador's program picture is a Jones Family comedy, "Big Business." The active and highly human household of the Jones series gets involved in an oil well get-rich-quick scheme, but manages to come out with no more money than it started with and an undamaged reputation for future films. The amount of clean fun in this fifth edition makes it very nearly the best of the lot.

Kid Galahad.

LIKE a lot of other things in the course of movie history, "Kid Galahad," at the Fox, is no event. It sets Edward G. Robinson and Humphrey Bogart at odds in the prize fighting game, and both are altogether bad boys, who would just as soon kill you as invite you to a three-day gin party in celebration of the latest double-cross. Bette Davis is the somewhat unexplained associate of Robinson, Jane Bryan his kid sister and Wayne Morris the bellhop who, in good time, wins the heavyweight championship of New York or Chicago.

The plot starts thickening in Miami, moves to New York and to upstate New York Robinson, having discovered Morris down South, is out to make him a champion, but when Morris and the little sister begin to be affectionate, develops a bitter hatred for the young fighter. When the big match comes, therefore, it has some unusual angles.

Morris—Kid Galahad, that is—thinks everything is on the level and is following Robinson's instructions to the letter. But Robinson is out to have the lad battered to pieces, and is, in fact, betting on Bogart's fighter, which Bogart knows. Miss Davis, who has discovered her hopeless love for Morris and left Robinson, is the only other of the first-string actors who realizes what Robinson's up to. And if Morris wins, it means that Bogart kills Robinson. So it is, then, that Robinson and Bogart shoot it out at the finish. The fight game's a lot cleaner for all of it, the lovers are free to love, and Miss Davis walks away in a fog, as has become her habit in late films.

Second place at the Fox goes to "Charlie Chan at the Olympics." Theft of a radio control device, a hot chase from Honolulu to Berlin, kidnaping of Charlie's son and a surprise revelation of the guilty man follow in order. The Fox, like Loew's, has an amusing color cartoon about mice and their havoc in a pantry.

The Hit Parade.

The Missouri Theater, for the last times today, is playing the holdover film revue, "Hit Parade," which was at the Fox last week, and its companion melodrama, "Behind the Headlines," having to do with a money truck robbery of the type which was done so well in "You Only Live Once." Frances Langford and Phil Regan are in the first show, Lee Tracy in the second.

Tomorrow the Missouri presents a new bill, "Wings Over Honolulu," featuring Ray Milland and Wendy Barrie, and "Night Key," featuring Boris Karloff. These late comers to the current movie week will be reviewed on Tuesday's movie page.

Tallulah Bankhead in 'Antony and Cleopatra'

Tallulah Bankhead, who played at the American Theater in April in George Kelly's comedy, "Reflected Glory," has signed contracts with Rowland Stebbins, New York producer, to play in a revival of Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra," and since a 10 weeks' road tour is announced before she goes into New York, appears to be planning a return to St. Louis in the fall. Another Shakespearean possibility is the "King Richard II" of the British actor, Maurice Evans, which had an eventful run on Broadway this spring.

Rivalry of the Strausses A Major Feud of Music

Municipal Opera's "Great Waltz" Based on Famous Competition That Gave Vienna Two Composer Kings At Once—Works of Both in Present Score.

"THE GREAT WALTZ," which, through the coming week, will continue to fill the Municipal Theater with Strauss melodies and to relate dramatic incidents of the rivalry between the two waltz kings of Vienna, Johann Sr. and Johann Jr., tells a fair part of the story of that family strife, but by no means all of it.

What Moss Hart, recent Pulitzer Prize co-winner, and five librettists who preceded him, have done with the facts in the case has been to fortify the romance in the early life of Johann Jr., and to place his most famous composition, "The Blue Danube Waltz," in a dramatic setting equal to its fame. Actually, "The Blue Danube" did not appear until 25 years after the son's debut and long after his father's death.

Although Johann Strauss the younger became the more celebrated of the two composers, it was the father who was the waltz king of his day, who really brought popular dance music to eminence in Vienna and identified it with that city, who was the favorite at the courts of Europe and who, even in the year of his death, made a visit to London and received a trimphal escort of boats down the Thames on his departure.

This Johann Strauss, born in 1804, made his debut as an orchestra conductor at the Cafe of the Two Doves in Vienna in 1826, when Johann Jr. was only a year old. His fame was instantaneous and he deposed, in popular favor, his one-time friend, Joseph Lanner, whose assistant conductor he had been. Soon his friends were arranging international tours for him and he became the idol everywhere.

But his home life was not agreeable, and eventually he left his wife, Anna, their three sons, Johann, Josef and Eduard, and daughter. He had always forbidden Johann to study music, and had punished him when he found the child with his violin. But Anna Strauss was ambitious for her children and it was she who bought young Johann his own instrument, and arranged for him to study secretly with his father's own first violinist.

Eighteen years after the debut of the elder Strauss, the son made his eventful appearance conducting his own ensemble, at Dommayer's Casino in Heitzing. There was not the trickery connected with it that "The Great Waltz" relates, or not the same kind, at least. Dommayer had never been able to hire the father, so when he heard the son was organizing an orchestra, he thought to obtain some of the reflected glory for his cafe by engaging the youth.

The son's acceptance by the public was even more sensational and for the next five years, the two waltz kings shared the limelight in Vienna. The boy was a great admirer of his father, and would have worked toward a reconciliation except for his mother, who had made him promise not to do that thing. Finally, there was a reunion of father and son at the elder Strauss' deathbed, and the son, uniting the orchestras of both, went on to greater fame.

Although Johann the younger had introduced some of his own compositions at his first public concert, his greatest work was done over the period of 50 years following. He composed some 500 waltzes and many operettas, two of which, "Die Fledermaus" and "The Gypsy Baron," have been done by Municipal Opera.

Greatly admired by other famous musicians, including Brahms, Offenbach and Wagner, whom he presented to Vienna, the younger Johann lived to obscure the name of his father. Under his guidance, his brothers, Josef and Eduard, also became noted orchestra leaders and composers. One of the greatest triumphs of the composer of "The Blue Danube Waltz" came in this country in 1872, when, in Boston, he conducted an orchestra of 1000 and chorus of 1000 in a rendition of "The Blue Danube," before an attendance estimated at 100,000.

The composition ranks as the most played of any ever written, and would be famous if only for its place in "The Great Waltz," for the operetta, before coming to Forest Park, has played in Vienna, in London, and for three seasons in this country. Its estimated attendance, at the big Center Theater in New York City and on tour, is 3,000,000 persons. The score of the operetta, however, does honors to both father and son, including compositions of each.

"THE GREAT WALTZ" closes in Forest Park next Sunday night, to be followed by Victor Herbert's "The Fortune Teller," last presented at the Municipal Theater in 1924. With rehearsals beginning tomorrow, the cast will be headed by John Gurney, Metropolitan Opera basso, and Eddie Foy Jr., making first appearances at the Forest Park theater; Bernice Claire, Joseph Macauley, Eric Mattson, Robert Pitkin, Ruth Urban and Lew Parker. "The Fortune Teller" is generally regarded as one of Herbert's most tuneful operettas. From it comes the familiar serenade, "Slumber On, My Little Gypsy Sweetheart."

The schedule for the remainder of the season includes revivals of "Music in the Air," "The Mikado," "The Prince of Pilsen," "The Pink Lady," Robin Hood" and "Babes in Toyland"; a new American operetta, "Salute to Spring," which will have its world premiere July 12; "Louie the 14th," Ziegfeld show which is new to the park; "Wild Violets," London operetta which is to have its American premiere the final week of the season, and "The Bartered Bride," Smetana's comic opera, new to St. Louis, in which Gurney and three other Metropolitan Opera stars, Joseph Bentonelli, Susanne Fisher and George Rasely, will be heard the week of July 26.

At the opening of its season, Municipal Opera appears to be without competition in light opera presentations, or even among outdoor entertainments on a major scale. The Shuberts' season at Jones Beach, New York, is not yet under way, and operettas for Toledo, Detroit and Memphis are at the discussion stage or have been abandoned.

Down Texas way, Dallas and Fort Worth are renewing their last summer's entertainment rivalry. The Dallas fair, known as the Pan-American Exposition this time, opens its big restaurant-theater next Saturday, and will offer in time such celebrities as Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone, Rudy Vallee, Benny Goodman, Ted Fio-Rito, Lanny Ross and Phil Harris as stars of its revue.

Billy Rose's Fort Worth Frontier Fiesta opens June 26, with the Casa Manana featuring Paul Whiteman, Everett Marshall and Harriet Hoctor, dance star from the 1936 Municipal Opera season, as three of the headliners.

Various dramatic festivals are available to the touring theatergoer. The Ann Arbor (Mich.) festival goes into its final week tomorrow night with the Broadway hit, "Tovarich." The Pasadena Community Playhouse at Pasadena, Cal., has selected a repertory of Western plays for its third annual festival, from June 28 to July 3. These include Gerhart Hauptmann's "Montezuma," Maxwell Anderson's "Night Over Taos," Franz Werfel's "Juarez and Maximilian," David Belasco's "Girl of the Golden West" and "Rose of the Rancho" by Belasco and Tully. An adaptation of Ibsen's "A Doll's House" by Thornton Wilder is announced for the Central City (Colo.) festival July 17 to Aug. 7.

Two Eclipse Broadcasts on Chains Tuesday

One From Canton Island at 1 O'Clock—Another at 4 P. M. From Peru.

THERE will be two descriptions of the total eclipse of the sun, the longest in 1200 years, Tuesday afternoon. The first, at 1 o'clock, will come over the WJZ network from Canton Island, 1800 miles southeast of Hawaii, a tiny atoll which is the base for the eclipse expedition of the National Geographic Society, the NBC and the United States Navy. The second, at 4 o'clock on the CBS network, will come from a spot high in the mountains of Peru where the CBS, the Hayden Planetarium and the American Museum of Natural History have established a base.

The eclipse itself will last only three and one-half minutes. The fact that it will be described at 1 and 4 o'clock is due to the difference in time between Canton Island and Peru.

A report by scientists on observations of the eclipse will be broadcast at 8:45 o'clock Tuesday night on the WEAF network.

The NBC announcers and engineers traveled 7000 miles to establish their observation base, taking four tons of transmitters and other broadcasting apparatus. They went to Enderbury Island first, but it was found that the anchorage for the navy vessel accompanying the expedition was dangerous, so the expedition moved to Canton Island.

The CBS network base is in the Andes, at an elevation of three miles above the sea, 150 miles from Lima.

Here and There on the Air

W1XAL, Boston, Leading Way in Cultural Broadcasting—Jack Haley May Go on KSD'S Show Boat—Claudette Colbert, Tyrone Powers, Alice Faye Get Radio Contracts—Studio Gossip.

By J. L. S.

A WEEKLY program of addresses by Latin-American ambassadors, consuls and other officials, and music by an orchestra led by Vincent Sorey, who spent much of his life in South America, will be broadcast by W2XE, the CBS net's short wave station. These broadcasts, which will be additions to the CBS schedule for reception in Latin America, will go on the air at 3 p. m. Sundays, beginning June 20.

It was failure of Max Schmeling and NBC officials to agree on what should be in his script that kept the fighter from broadcasting as scheduled the night when he was supposed to give listeners his viewpoint on the fight that he didn't have with Jimmy Braddock. It also cost him the $1500 that the NBC had agreed to pay him for the 15-minute talk. When program time approached, Schmeling insisted that the script, containing his proposed remarks, go as it was. NBC officials said that they sought to have him change references to what they described as "legal aspects of the case," particularly the court proceedings. When Schmeling refused to yield, the broadcast was canceled.

OF broadcasts designed primarily for cultural and informative value, those on W1XAL, the Boston short-wave station, are probably the most carefully prepared and the most consistently held to high standards. W1XAL was established some years ago by Walter Lennon, a New England business man, who enlisted the co-operation of the colleges of the region, the New England Conservatory of Music and men and women recognized as leaders of their communities. Lennon fixed a policy, never deviated from, that W1XAL should carry no advertising whatsoever. The support of the Rockefeller Foundation was obtained, and the program making for the station was turned over to a committee of educators and musicians of note.

Among W1XAL's programs are broadcasts direct from the lecture rooms of Harvard University. It is hoped that eventually W1XAL will have wires from the lecture rooms of other leading colleges of the country, and that the station will become the nucleus of an intercollegiate network in this country with affiliations with the educational institutions of Europe and Latin America.

FAILURE of the networks to broadcast the wedding of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Simpson direct was due to the fact that the French Government refused permission to set up radio equipment at Monts. So the chains had to rely on the regular news associations.

Alice Faye, of the movies, and Frank Parker, the tenor, have been engaged as soloists on Andre Kostelanetz's Wednesday and Friday night programs. Parker will replace Lily Pons Wednesdays, and Miss Faye will take the place of Kay Thompson and her Rhythm Singers Fridays. The change will go into effect June 30.

The final Land We Live In program on KMOX for the season was that of last Sunday. This series is to be resumed in the fall.

Jesse Crawford, the organist, his wife and their orchestra are scheduled for five nights a week on the WEAF and WJZ chains—at 11:45 Friday and 10 o'clock Saturday, on KSD.

VIVIAN DELLA CHIESA, the soprano of Frank Black's Monday night concerts on KSD, has signed a contract for her second season with the Chicago City Opera Company. Last year she sang the roles of "Mimi" in "La Boheme," the Princess in "La Juive" and "Adina" in "Elixir of Love" . . . Jack Haley, the stage and movie comedian, and Virginia Verrill, are expected to join KSD's Show Boat cast July 8 and in October to be co-starred in another series.

Reports are that the Monday night Radio Theater will go off the air for two months this summer, so Cecil de Mille and his associates can take a radio vacation, and that the program will return to the CBS net in September . . . KSD's Saturday night Show Village Sketches will be concluded June 26, but will be broadcast again in the fall . . . The singing Vass Family will be a fixture on Ben Bernie's program . . . Charles Winninger, who is to replace Lanny Ross this summer on the Show Boat, will be Jack Benny's guest Sunday, June 20 . . . In July Robert L. Ripley will shift his Believe It or Not program to the 7 p. m. spot Fridays on the same stations as now. He will conclude his Sunday series June 27, take two weeks' vacation and then make the change.

Pietro Yon, regarded as the greatest of organists, will sail June 13 for Europe. The NBC may arrange for Yon to broadcast in the Sunday noon program on KWK several recitals on organs in the Vatican and cathedrals of Europe. He is organist and music director of St. Patrick's Church, New York.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT, the movie actress, has signed a contract to star in a dramatic radio series to be broadcast from Hollywood in the fall. . . . Nadine Connor, the soprano, has been definitely engaged for KSD's Show Boat when the Thursday night program shifts to the Pacific Coast and Charles Winninger, the original "Cap'n Henry," replaces Lanny Ross as master of ceremonies. . . . Trudy Wood, the young California singer, who has been singing on Fred Astaire's program and has been promoted to featured vocalist with Johnny Green's orchestra in this KSD period, was born in San Francisco, Sept. 23, 1916. While a student in the Bevery Hills high school, she won a vocal contest and a contract to sing in a night club in the film colony. This was followed by a two-year tour with dance orchestra. She returned to Hollywood last summer, and then got her radio chance with Astaire. . . .

Cancellation of the broadcast of the wedding of the Sehr Triplets, of Croghan, N. Y., last Sunday was due to a change in the time of the ceremony. . . . Don Wilson, announcer for Jack Benny's programs, has been given a three-year contract by the sponsor. . . .

Tyrone Power's radio job is expected to be as star of the series now featuring Shep Fields' orchestra, Bob Hope and Frank Parker, which probably will be shifted to Hollywood before fall. . . .

NBC engineers are surveying the possibilities of more or less regular network broadcasts from the liner Normandie and are instructing the ship radio operators in broadcasting technique. . . .

Elaborate arrangements are being made by the NBC to broadcast the America's Cup yacht races off Nantucket, R. I., beginning July 31. Announcers and engineers will work from airplanes, launches and sailing craft carrying short wave transmitters. The NBC also will broadcast the races by short wave for world-wide reception and rebroadcasting in England.

Plans for Commander Donald B. MacMillan's sixteenth Arctic expedition, which will attempt to solve the mystery of Baffin Land's two great ice caps, will be the subject of a broadcast from the fishing schooner, Gertrude L. Thebaud, just before it casts off from a Boston wharf Saturday, June 19, to take the party north. The broadcast is set for 1:45 p. m. on the WJZ net.

"Red-Head Baker," a new play by Albert Maltz dealing with problems involved in successful treatment of juvenile delinquency, will be the Columbia Workshop bill next Sunday.

The winner of the national public speaking contest of the American Institute of Banking will deliver his prize-winning address in a broadcast from St. Paul, Minn., at 5:45 p. m. Tuesday on the WJZ net.

"Doc" Rockwell, the comedian, will be among Rudy Vallee's guests Thursday night.

Constance Bennett on KSD With W. C. Fields This Evening

Kathryn Turney Garten to Begin Muny Opera Reviews Today—Clavichord Recital by Corinne Frederick.

JACK BENNY expects to continue his "Snuzzlewun Murder Case" investigation on KSD this afternoon.

Johnny Green has engaged two novelty singers, Jane Rhodes and Billy Wilson, a "scat singer," in addition to Trudy Wood and Jimmy Blair, for his show on KSD at 7:30 Tuesday night that will replace Fred Astaire and Charles Butterworth. Wilson sang with Ben Bernie for four years. Miss Rhodes, who will make her network debut Tuesday, has been signed by RKO Pictures for a singing role in "Stage Door."

Andy Hayes, an Irish tenor, will be among Fred Allen's entertainers Wednesday night. Allen, Portland Hoffa and the Mighty Allen Art Players will do a skit called "What So Rare as a Day in June."

Tonight on KSD.

CONSTANCE BENNETT, of the movies, will play opposite Don Ameche in a sketch on KSD's program from 6 to 7 o'clock this evening. W. C. Fields will banter again with Edgar Bergen and "Charlie," and Ray Middleton, the baritone, and Dorothy Lamour will be the singers. Werner Jannsen plans to feature Nathaniel Shilkrat's "Negro Spirituals—a Paraphrase" for the orchestra.

Cornelia Otis Skinner is billed by James Melton for KSD's Sunday Night Party, from 8 to 9 o'clock tonight. Melton will sing "Mother Machree" and "The Little Irish Girl"; Jane Pickens, "You and Me That Used to Be," and Donald Dickson, "On and On and On." Tom Howard and George Shelton, the comedians, and Robert Emet Dolan's orchestra also will be on the program.

Kathryn Garten on KSD.

KATHRYN TURNEY GARTEN will begin her Sunday reviews of the Municipal Opera productions at 1:30 this afternoon on KSD with Johann Strauss' "The Great Waltz." Her guests on the program will be Bernice Claire and Guy Robertson, principals of "The Great Waltz" cast, both of whom will sing songs from the operetta. The piano accompaniments will be played by Russ David.

Mrs. Garten is well known to KSD listeners, and is regarded as one of the leading book reviewers of the country. Last year, she gave musical biographies of the composers, Mozart, Beethoven, Brahms and Bach, in a KSD series. Later, she broadcast a Mark Twain program and a review with music of "Frederick Chopin" by William Murdock. Her last KSD program was on May 9 when she reviewed "The Late George Appley" by John Marquand.

Heywood Broun on KSD.

HEYWOOD BROUN, the columnist and writer, who is president of the American Newspaper Guild, will discuss labor issues and industry in an address during KSD's Community Forum broadcast at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

ON KSD TODAY

KATHRYN TURNEY GARTEN, WHO WILL BEGIN SUNDAY REVIEWS OF THE MUNY OPERA ATTRACTIONS AT 1:30 THIS AFTERNOON ON KSD.

Clavichord Recital.

A RECITAL on the clavichord, which was the favorite instrument of composers such as Bach, will be played by Corinne Frederick, the pianist, from 8:45 to 9 o'clock Wednesday night. The clavichord which Miss Frederick will play is a reconstruction of the simple piano-like instrument of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. A touch on one of its keys causes a small metal hammer, at the other end of the key, to strike a string. The sounds produced by a clavichord are delicate as compared with those produced by a piano.

Miss Frederick will play Bach's "Little Prelude"; a sonata by Scarlatti, Bach's Prelude in E-flat Minor, "Polonaise" and Prelude in B-flat and Pergolese's "Aria."

Bert Block's orchestra, playing locally, is scheduled on KSD at 11:30 Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights and also at 12:45 noon Saturdays.

Red Nichols and his orchestra are billed on KSD at 10:30 tonight, 11 o'clock tomorrow night and 9:45 and 11 p. m. Tuesday through Friday and 8:35 and 11 o'clock Saturday night.

Beginning this week, the KSD transcription series by Rubinoff and his orchestra will be replaced by one featuring Gus Haenschen and his orchestra, at 9:30 Tuesday and Thursday nights. The Song Smiths Quartet and guest stars will continue on these programs.

BOY SAID TO ADMIT KILLING SISTER FOR TEASING HIM

Wisconsin Sheriff Quotes Lad as Stating He Shot Her Over Jests About Girl.

By the Associated Press.

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis., June 5.—Sheriff Oliver White announced today Harold Best, 15 years old, admitted killing his sister, Mildred, 11, explaining, "we were always quarreling."

White said the boy told him Mildred had been teasing him about a girl at the rural school they attended. Mr. and Mrs. Orla Shaw, with whom the children lived, left them alone last night. The Sheriff said the boy told him he shot the girl in the head with a rifle after she retired.

White said the boy later repudiated his statement and refused to sign a confession.

Omaha Judge Bars "Ecstasy."

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., June 5. — Judge John Rine ruled today the motion picture, "Ecstasy," could not be shown here on the ground it violated the decency statutes of Nebraska. He dissolved a temporary restraining order obtained by Samuel Cummins, New York City, owner of the film, to prevent Mayor Dan Butler from interfering with a showing.

FALSE TEETH AND REMOVABLE BRIDGES CLEANED AND PURIFIED!
NO BRUSHING... new way is best
Just try this and you will be amazed. Simply put your plate in half a glass of water—then add a little Polident powder. You can see the plate being cleaned like magic in 5 to 15 minutes. Even the worst stains and tartar are removed. Ends that false color—teeth become live and natural looking. Actually sterilizes. Guaranteed harmless. Approved by famous Good Housekeeping Bureau. Get a big can of Polident at any drug store for only 30 cents. Money back without question if not delighted.

SIMPSON SLANDER SUIT LISTED

Expected to Start June 11 or Soon Thereafter.

LONDON, June 5.—The slander suit of Ernest A. Simpson, former husband of the Duchess of Windsor, against Mrs. Joan Sutherland, was No. 23 today in the list made public for special June jury action in the King's Bench division. Solicitors are prepared to proceed with the case June 11 or shortly thereafter.

Attorneys indicated the suit was based on a remark Simpson said the wife of Lieutenant-Colonel A. H. C. Sutherland made at a luncheon after Edward VIII abdicated.

SALVAGING OF CANE TOPS FOR FUEL ALCOHOL URGED

Louisiana Annually Wastes Millions of Gallons, Baton Rouge Bacteriologist Says.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 4.—Possibility of salvaging cane tops as a source of raw material for motor fuel alcohol has caused Louisiana cane sugar producers to test potential value of waste organic matter, Dr. W. L. Owen, Baton Rouge consulting bacteriologist, told the farm chemurgic council here.

Louisiana alone, Dr. Owen said, is producing and annually destroying approximately 1,000,000 tons of cane tops, containing approximately 6,000,000 tons of available juice and 40,000 tons of fermentable sugars.

"The volume of motor fuel that this waste represents," Dr. Owen said, "in its potentialities, brings us to 5,820,000 gallons. With a 10 per cent blend of alcohol as a motor fuel this amount of alcohol would suffice for two and a half months' supply for every Louisiana motorist."

E. F. Johnson, St. Louis, a member of the soybean committee of the Farm Chemurgic Council, submitted a reported showing that processors of soybeans now have facilities to handle almost twice the volume of beans grown last year.

W. E. Richardson Sued for Divorce.

By the Associated Press.

U. S. JUDGE REFUSES TO EVICT HOSIERY MILL SIT-DOWNERS

Declines to Accept Jurisdiction, Overruling Company's Plea of Restraint of Trade.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5. — United States District Judge George A. Welsh refused today to order 250 sit-down strikers from the Apex Hosiery Mill on a charge by the company that the strike was in restraint of interstate commerce. The sit-downers took possession of the plant May 6.

The company asked that the court order the hosiery workers from the plant because, it contended, the strike violated the Sherman Anti-Trust and Clayton Acts. Judge Welsh dismissed the action "for want of jurisdiction."

"There must be an intent to control prices and monopolize production or transportation of an article, or unduly or unreasonably restrain commerce," he said.

Termites CAN BE EXTERMINATED!
DO THE JOB YOURSELF! SIMPLY SPRAY CRE-O-TOX! ANYONE CAN DO IT!
TERMITES, present in every state in the union, cause $50,000,000 damage to property owners every year. They are present in almost every community, and in many cases give no outward signs of the extent of infestation until floors begin to settle and porches and foundations sag. Rid your property of these destructive pests and avoid future damage and expense by simply spraying CRE-O-TOX on foundation walls, sills, ends of joists, cellar stairs and other connections between sub-floor and ground. Cre-O-Tox waterproofs and protects lumber from rot and decay. Also kills roaches, ants and other insects. This method is very economical, simple and easy to do, and is dependable and permanent.

FORMER MUSIC CRITIC ENDS LIFE WITH PISTOL

William J. Henderson, 82, Kills Self in New York Hotel Suite.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—William J. Henderson, 82 years old, for years music critic on the New York Sun, shot and killed himself in his hotel suite today.

Mrs. Henderson and Edward Duzet, a nurse, were in a room adjoining Henderson's when they heard a shot. A .38-caliber revolver was clasped in his hand when his wife rushed to his side.

Henderson was born in Newark, N. J., Dec. 4, 1855, the son of William and Ettie Henderson. His father was a theatrical manager. He started reporting, in his spare time, for the Monmouth (N. J.) Democrat when he was 15. He was graduated from Princeton in 1876, and a little later joined the staff of the New York Tribune.

He went to the Times to do general assignments and became music critic in 1887, remaining in that position until 1896. Henderson got a job then with the Morning Journal, now the American, and eventually was put in charge of the editorial page. Six months later he returned to the Times as music critic. In 1902 he went to the Sun.

Henderson outlived his great contemporaries, James Gibbon Huneker, Henry Edward Krebhiel, Henry T. Finck and Philip Hale, with whom he had fought strenously for recognition of Wagner, Brahms, Richard Strauss and other composers whose works are now accepted as classics.

He was regarded as a first-rate reporter. Among his big assignments was covering the Johnstown flood.

On May 9, 1904, he married Miss Julia Wall. Besides his widow, he is survived by a brother, Frank E. Henderson, of Interlaken, N. J.

OIL STRIKE TIES UP MEXICAN ARMY'S AVIATION FORCES

President Cardenas Suggests One Refinery Remain Open to Supply Gasoline.

MEXICO, D. F., June 5.—Lack of gasoline grounded the aviation arm of the Mexican army yesterday as continuation of the nine-days'-old strike of oil workers made the nation-wide shortage of motor fuel more acute.

Gen. Samuel Rojas, Chief of Military Aviation, told President Lazaro Cardenas of this situation shortly after a secret session in the palace in which representatives of the President, the strikers and employers discussed means of obtaining fuel for public services.

It was understood the President was seeking an agreement which would permit one foreign-controlled refinery with a capacity of 25,000 barrels daily to operate.

HARRY C. SCHWEIKERT FUNERAL WEDNESDAY

Body of Central High Instructor to Be Buried in Reading, Pa.

The body of Harry C. Schweikert, instructor in English literature at Central High School since 1903 and author of numerous text and reference books for schools, who died yesterday morning, will lie in state until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at an undertaking establishment at 3840 Lindell boulevard, after which it will be sent to Reading, Pa., where funeral services will be held Wednesday.

Mr. Schweikert, who was 60 years old, had been on leave for several months because of ill health, and died of heart disease after he had been a patient for a month at Barnes Hospital. He is survived by four sisters, two residing in Reading and two in Philadelphia. His wife died several years ago.

Mr. Schweikert was a graduate of Princeton University, from which he held an A. B. and a M. A. degree, and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Mr. Schweikert was born in Bernville, Pa., Feb. 24, 1877, and came to St. Louis in 1903 to join the Central High School faculty. He continued to take advanced work in literature, however, and subsequently studied at the University of Chicago, and in Paris and Seville. Much of his study, as well as considerable travel in this country and in Europe, was to co-ordinate ideas for his textbooks, which are widely used throughout the country. He compiled anthologies of French and of Russian short stories for use in teaching, and made an extensive survey to ascertain the five Shakespearean plays most used in class work, compiling them into a single volume. He was a student of Chaucer and a member of the Shakespeare Association of America.

In addition to teaching at Central High, Mr. Schweikert taught English literature at Benton College of Law, of which he was principal for several years. He lived at 415 Belt avenue.

TELEGRAPH ROAD EXTENSION WILL BE DEDICATED TODAY

Parade and Speeches; Champagne Bottle to Be Broken on Meramec Bridge.

The recently opened $385,000 State extension of Telegraph road from St. Louis County to a point in Jefferson County near Beck on United States Highway No. 61 will be dedicated with a parade and speechmaking today.

Forming at Telegraph and Becker roads, south of Oakville, at 1:30 p. m., the parade will include a unit of the Sixth Infantry, war veterans groups, fraternal and patriotic societies, Boy Scouts and the public. Addresses will be delivered at a new bridge over the Meramec River by Congressman C. Arthur Anderson, a resident of the neighborhood; Presiding Judge N. W. Brickey of Jefferson County Court, Speaker John G. Christy of the State House of Representatives and United States Attorney Harry C. Blanton.

A champagne bottle will be broken on the bridge and a ribbon cut by Miss Audrey M. Hilgert of Kimmswick and Miss Mary Joan McNamee of Oakville, whose fathers were active in the road movement. The highway, marked Route VV and offering a new route across the Meramec, is a short cut between downtown St. Louis and the South, by way of Broadway and Telegraph road. It is paved in St. Louis County and graveled in Jefferson County.

OFFICIAL LETS BREWERIES GIVE BEER TO ARCTIC EXPEDITION

No-Donation Rule Off in New Jersey in Interest of Science.

NEWARK, N. J., June 5.—Contributions of beer "in the cause of science" may be made to an Arctic expedition, the State Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control ruled today, but the explorers must not drink the beer until they reach the far north.

The problem was placed before Commissioner D. Frederick Burnett by C. J. MacGregor, who is heading an expedition leaving late this month on the three-masted schooner General A. W. Greely.

Local brewers had offered 500 cases of beer, but the law says breweries may not make gifts to consumers. MacGregor said the donation would be welcome because "considerable beer is used there (the far north) in place of water, due to the fact that water is extremely soft."

Burnett decided the no-gift rule did not apply in this case.

PHOTOGRAPHS ON DISPLAY

National Collection Exhibited at City Art Museum.

A collection of 100 pictures from the annual salon of the Photographic Society of America has been placed on view at City Art Museum in Forest Park. It will be shown in the downstairs galleries throughout this month.

The collection of flower paintings from the seventeenth century to the present also will remain on view this month.

Prince Bernhard's Brother Weds.

BERLIN, June 5.—Prince Ernst zu Lippe-Detmold, a cousin of Prince Bernhard, consort of Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, was married today at the Schooeneberg Town Hall to Fraulein Hertha Weiland, 25 years old, manager of a fashion shop. His previous marriage to an actress ended in divorce in 1935. At the marriage today he wore a Nazi party badge on his lapel.

J. DON PURTEET DISBARRED BY SUPREME COURT

Former Assistant Attorney-General, Now in Federal Penitentiary, Deprived of Law License.

RUSSELL D. FARRIS ALSO PENALIZED

Richmond, Mo., Attorney Loses His Permit for Year Because of Unprofessional Conduct.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—Former Assistant Attorney-General James Don Purteet of Jefferson City, serving a two-year term in Leavenworth Penitentiary for embezzlement, was disbarred by the Missouri Supreme Court today. He had offered to surrender his license.

Russell D. Farris of Richmond, Mo., also an attorney, was suspended for one year for unprofessional conduct. Both disciplinary actions were in proceedings by the court's bar committees which supervise enforcement of the court's rules regulating law practice in Missouri.

Purteet, until recently chairman of the Cole County Republican Committee, voluntarily appeared before Federal officials in Kansas City several weeks ago and disclosed that he had embezzled about $15,000 from the estate of an insane world war veteran for whom he was guardian. Most of the funds involved were payments by the Federal Government to Purteet's ward. Purteet pleaded guilty of embezzlement and was sentenced to prison last May 7.

The motion for his disbarment, based on the prison sentence and Purteet's offer to surrender his license, was filed with the court this week by the court's bar advisory committee.

The charges against Farris were filed by the court's bar committee for the Eleventh Judicial Circuit.

One of the charges sustained by the court was that Farris had informed a client he was defending i na felony case that his fee would be necessary to divide the money among the Circuit Judge, Prosecuting Attorney and Sheriff of Ray County.

Other charges sustained were that Farris told a client he would have to put up $300 to be paid to the Ray County Sheriff before the client could be released from the county jail on bond, in a criminal case; that he attempted to bribe the Prosecuting Attorney of Carroll County to dismiss a criminal charge pending against one of Farris' clients, and that he instigated the execution of a fraudulent deed of trust for $2000, with intent to deceive persons with claims against a client represented by Farris.

The opinion in the Farris case was written by Judge Ernest S. Gantt.

HORNER VETOES SIX BILLS, FOUR INVOLVE JUDGES

Illinois Governor Says Attorney-General Advised Him They Were Unconstitutional.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 5. — Vetoing six bills, Gov. Horner today increased to 13 the number of measures passed by the sixtieth General Assembly that he has refused to approve.

Four of the vetoes involved the Stuttle-Dixon series to authorize Judge to sit in other circuits and draw expense money. The Governor said Attorney-General Otto Kerner advised him they were unconstitutional.

The Adamowski bill to authorize the Court of Claims to consider claims for injuries or death of persons because of the negligence of State employes also was vetoed.

On the ground that it would return distribution of the State's common school fund from a monthly to a quarterly basis, Horner vetoed a Scott-Crowley-Gorman companion bill to the measure abolishing the Peoria teachers' pension fund. The Scott-Crowley-Gorman bill abolishing the fund was signed.

Horner also approved the Andy O'Neill bill creating the office of superintendent of women's and children's employment in the Labor Department.

Also signed was the Rennick bill providing that notice by newspaper publication in the sale of personal property under the administration act should be for three instead of four consecutive weeks.

NAMED TO BAR COMMITTEE

Platt Hubbell Appointed by State Supreme Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—The Missouri Supreme Court today appointed Platt Hubbell, an attorney, of Trenton, as a member of the court's Bar Committee for the Third Judicial Circuit. He succeeds Rex H. Moore of Trenton, who resigned because he recently was appointed by Gov. Stark as Circuit Judge in that circuit.

The appointment of Hubbell to the Bar Committee was for the remainder of Moore's term, expiring Jan. 1, 1940.

How Shaw's Garden Nursed and Multiplied the White and Double Redbuds at Its Gray Summit Arboretum.

AN EXTRAORDINARY service to the gardens of the world, performed by Shaw's Garden not with some rare exotic but with a tree of the common essence of Missouri spring, is recorded in color today by the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine from photos made at Gray Summit.

On the Missouri hills spring comes with mists and woodsmoke, a white drift of dogwood through the trees, the poet's wild plum and his father's beloved shadbush, spicewood budding in yellow flames at the foot of the bluffs, redbud smouldering at the crest.

The redbud awakens twice for April; first in the bud, a smoky red partaking in its very color of the haze of spring, and afresh in the flowers, a lighter, clearer, gayer pink. At every turn of the road or bend of the river, every new summit has its redbud crown. But not redbuds like these. These happened only once, perhaps twice in nature, rare achievements of a fleeting mood, seized upon by man and perpetuated at Shaw's Garden.

Now the only double redbuds known, like that pictured at the right of this page, are in the 1600-acre Shaw's Garden Arboretum at Gray Summit. Once the only white redbud in the world, like that pictured above, was dying at the garden in town. For years, to habitues who revisited it at least each April, it was a symbol of courage, a knightly gesture, a beauty gay and debonair in the face of death.

Originating spontaneously in the long since abandoned nursery of John Teas and Son at Carthage, Southwest Missouri, it was obtained in 1903 and planted south of the garden entrance. For years it thrived, and then it began to suffer from the sooty, acid city atmosphere. Bereft of one branch and then another, each April it put forth its snowy flowers like a tattered banner. Even in 1929, when one poor, twisted branch was left, that one branch bloomed.

That seemed the last of it and probably of its kind. The seed produced all colors but white. Buds had been grafted on the pink parent species, and there was nothing to do but wait to see if they came white and "true."

Meantime, in 1932, the blackened stump of that indomitable first tree began to put forth again. Although one should, perhaps, abstain from disillusioning its fans — they were legion — the flowers came back sadly pink. But budding had saved the day, and now its scions in true white, multiplied by the thousand, are available to home gardeners on the market.

In the year it died, or seemed to die, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Gratz of St. Louis sent cuttings of a double redbud to Shaw's Garden. They had watched it for ten years, found that only one other had ever been recorded, at Kew Gardens in 1894, and believed it to be in immediate jeopardy, since it stood on a caving bank over the Mississippi.

After repeated failures, the garden established it by budding in 1933. The blossoms came true double, in a luxuriance like the Oriental flowering shrubs. Meantime Sir Arthur Hill of the Royal Botanic Gardens informed Director George T. Moore that the tree at Kew died 40 years ago. Shaw's Garden had the only double redbud known to horticulture. And it has today, though it hopes in a few years to make them available, like the white, to home gardeners everywhere.

HORROR PAINTINGS by a 14-YEAR-OLD GIRL

The Phenomenal Case of Roswitha Bitterlich Who Though Like Any Other Child on the Surface Draws Strange and Macabre Fantasies From Her Mind.

Roswitha Bitterlich.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

INNSBRUCK, Austria.

WITH pig tails flying and voice ringing with childish glee as she and her playmates romp, 14-year-old Roswitha Bitterlich is indistinguishable outwardly from any other sturdy young daughter of middle-class parents. She goes to school, begs pennies for candy, is quite fond of her two younger brothers, is shy, but displays temper when crossed, and generally conforms to childhood ways. But when she takes up pencil or brush, it seems that the simple personality of an average child has been replaced by that of some sardonic imp who guides her hand as she executes paintings and drawings of astounding technical ability and so frightful or depressing that they immediately are stamped as those of a mind wherein the macabre predominates. Her weird work is always that of a fully developed adult artist.

Even Professor Carl Jung, the great Swiss psychologist, is unable to determine how Roswitha has developed this artistic medium that might come from the mind of an Edgar Allan Poe. Admitting that he is baffled by the fantastic facts, Jung can only suggest that the girl is the casket of many remembered episodes in the lives of ancestors long since passed and forgotten. He says that when she paints with that frenzy of creative impulse that is, perhaps, the hall mark of genius, she is performing the function of a gramophone that plays old and forgotten records. That is as far as anyone has been able to get toward solving the mystery of child personality that has made Roswitha an object of scientific curiosity and wonder.

ROSWITHA'S mother says that when her daughter was only 17 months old she sat up in her crib and began to draw. Next, when Roswitha was 6 years old, she began to take great interest in the canvases that her father, a retired petty official, was painting. Her mother explained how the little brushes and the little tin tubes of paint were used on the stretched canvas. A few days later and Roswitha had done her little brother in oil.

She would listen to stories, then sit down and draw a scene from one of them. It soon was apparent that within her there was that which caused her to react with the utmost intensity to every external stimulus. If a Chinese tale was read, she would take up her paints and soon there was a Chinese scene. An expert would look at it in astonishment and exclaim, "Why this child hasn't been in China, has she?" No, Roswitha has not been even so far as Vienna. And Roswitha cannot tell how she has such knowledge of the Chinese scene.

It was not long until she began to ask questions that were far ahead of her age.

"Mother, when they speak of 'lost souls' what do they mean?"

"They mean, I suppose, those who are put into prison; all those poor people whose lives are gone amiss."

"I see, I see."

And, indeed, she had seen. But not the childish image of the sufferer, simple, gentle, pitiful; but something infinitely fierce, as Hogarth saw the vice of his age, its squalor and its misery.

Consider the lost soul that illustrates this page. The prisoner fiddles upon the halter that is about his neck. How came a little girl, whose knowledge of the world comes from a little corner of Tyrol, to do that?

A psychologist went to see the child in her own surroundings—a privilege few have had, for Roswitha runs at the sound of a strange voice. She wrote of her: "She seems to be a harmonious child, yet under the quiet surface of that face are abysses of which the child herself has no knowledge. If she were impeded in her uprush of creation, Roswitha would go mad."

At 12 years of age this amazing child painted a picture and entitled it "Dance of the Dawn," which must be classed as gross and horrible. It shows a repulsive man who holds in his arms the supine figure of an exhausted girl.

It is an odd circumstance that Roswitha has made but little progress with oils. She likes best to paint in black-and-white, and the medium seems to suit her strange talent. How she can manipulate these materials is shown very dramatically in the picturn, "The Strangler," an incredibly sinister and terrible piece of work, yet one with such rhythm and sense of mystery that only the incontestable evidence of many people proves that it is the work of this reserved and gentle-looking little Tyrolese child.

ALTHOUGH they have revealed no painting abilities, the two younger brothers of Roswitha are exceedingly musical. Both play the violin and one was placed at once in the masters' class at school as being a boy of outstanding musical ability.

For these two Roswitha plays the pianoforte accompaniments. She does not play very well. There are other things she can't do very well.

"Why are you always working at your arithmetic?" her mother once asked her.

"It is because I have so much difficulty with it," was the reply. Roswitha likes what is difficult and her arithmetic gives her many laborious hours.

ONE day a famous English psychologist came to see Roswitha. He was shown into the neat little apartment. Frau Bitterlich called. Roswitha must not be silly. She must come and be introduced to the Herr Professor. The professor waited. Frau Bitterlich disappeared. There came the sound of raised voices. Of knocking on a fastened door. It was all in vain. Roswitha had locked herself in the closet. So, the last hope gone, the professor departed. He would, he promised himself, see this phenomenal child later in Vienna, when her exhibition opened.

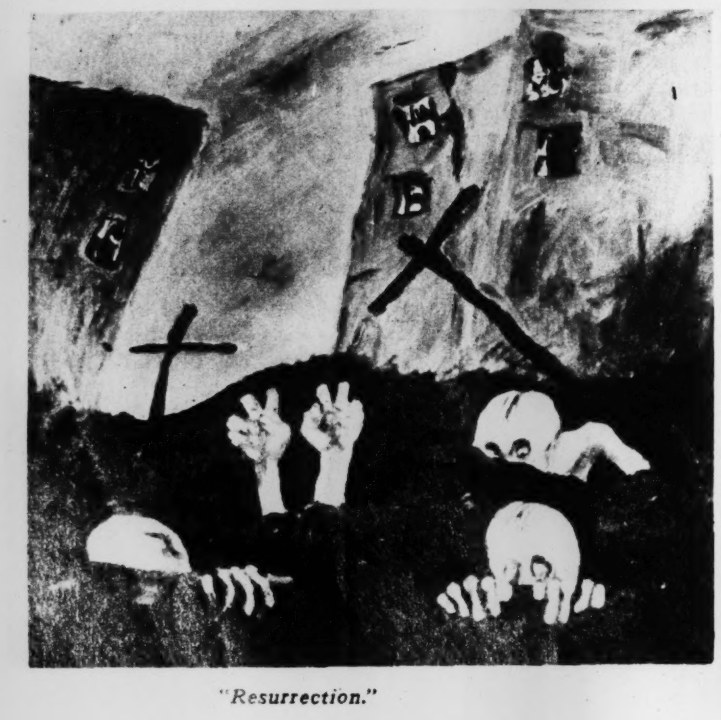
But he was disappointed. Roswitha had her exhibition, but she did not attend it.

"But, Roswitha, you must accompany me," cried the distracted Frau Bitterlich, "What will the people say? You disgrace us all."

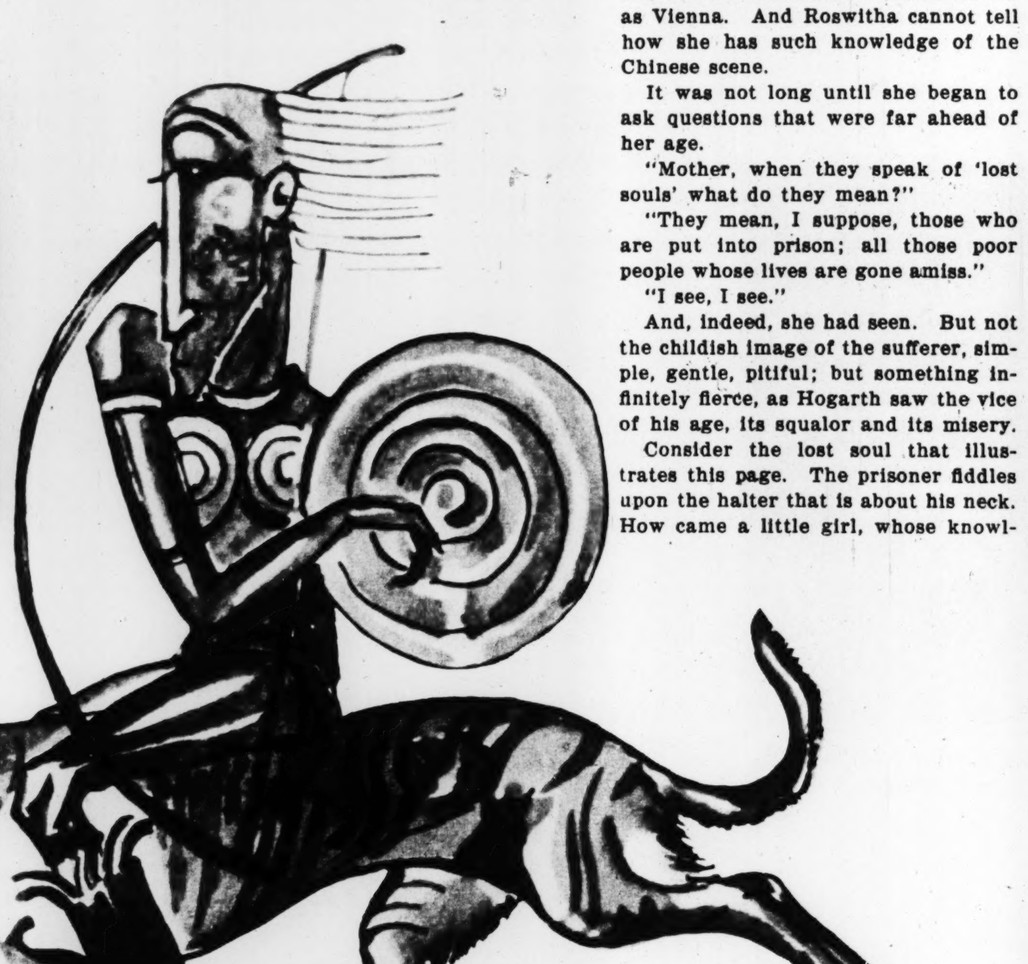
"If you make me come, I shall jump out of the train."

And so, as is usual with her, Roswitha won. She won, too, at school where they set before her cubes, and cylinders and said: "Draw that, Roswitha." Roswitha could not, would not.

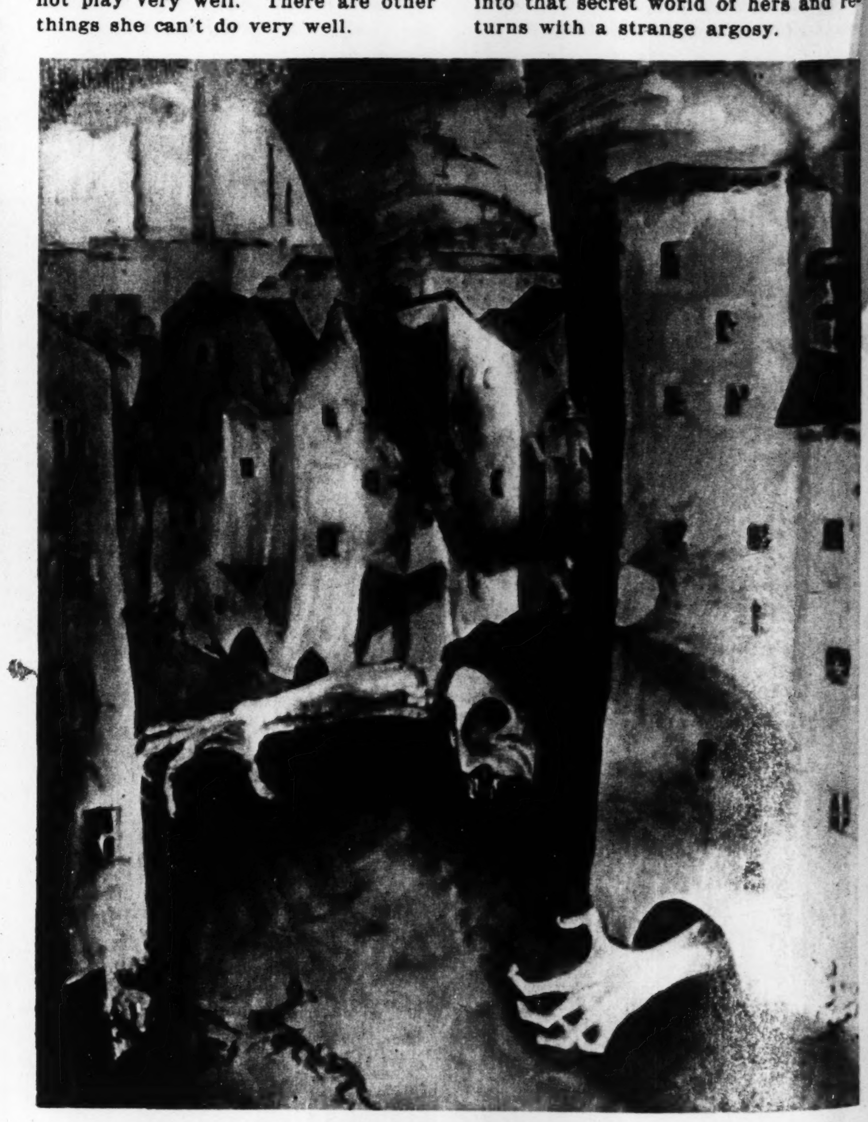
Roswitha again won. So now, while all the others labor to copy the geometric forms, little Roswitha plunges into that secret world of hers and returns with a strange argosy.



"Resurrection."



"Mars."



"The Strangler."

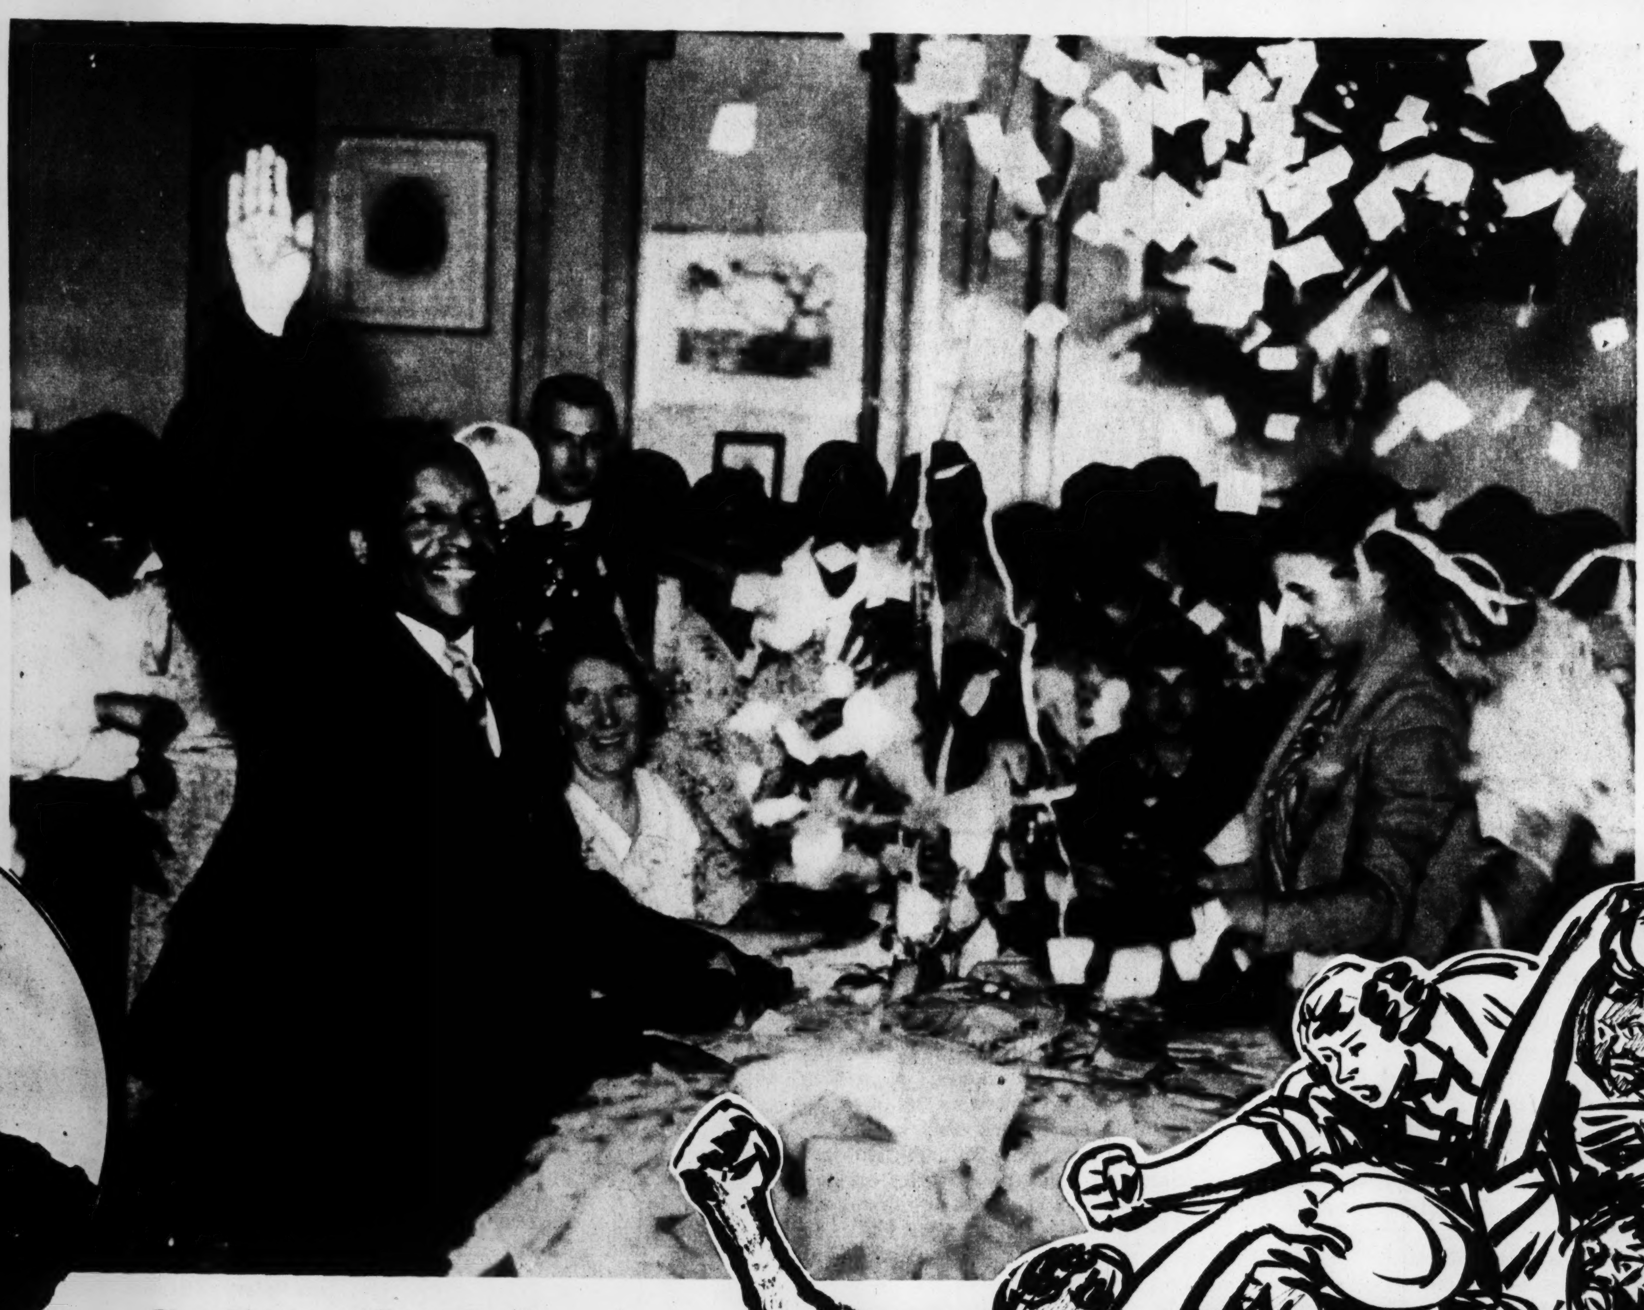
FATHER DIVINE Again Reigns SUPREME In His HARLEM KINGDOM

How the Revolt of the Angels That Followed a Cutting Scrape at "Heaven No. 1" Has Been Scotched and Why Faithful Mary Is in Exile.



The celebration at "Heaven No. 1" after Father Divine was released from custody.

Faithful Mary.

By ROBERT SELL

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

THE shiny red Rolls-Royce snakes through the teeming black belt of Harlem to the jubilant accompaniment of "He's Wonderful" . . . "Oh, Father, We Thank Thee" . . . "Peace . . . Peace . . . Peace." And on the soft back seat a little Negro smiles at his white secretary and smooths his snappy fitting gray suit. All's well in Harlem again; Heaven is lined with pork chops and "God" has consigned his rebellious angels to the outer darkness as the All-Powerful alone can do.

That little man on the back seat is Father M. J. Divine, omnipotent leader of a cult constantly growing in power—it has from 5000 to 50,000,000 white and Negro disciples according to whose estimates one accepts. Fifteen years ago he was an odd-job man in Baltimore under the name of George Baker with nothing to distinguish him but a gift for fluent oratory. Now he directs through his "angels" scores of rooming houses, hotels, farms, laundries, restaurants, etc. He drives large automobiles, flys about in a plane—and professes to know nothing of the $10,000 or more a week calculated as his cult's income.

Only a few short days ago these little kingdoms on earth tottered and almost crashed; rapacious archangels and angels stood by slavering for a chance to pick up the pieces and set up their own mundane heavens. But the luck that has dogged the bald little Negro stuck close to him again and when the smoke of the celestial battle had cleared he was once more on top the golden throne in "Heaven No. 1" in Harlem.

At High Falls, New York, a fat, impassive, Negro woman of uncertain age mumbles "that Divine ain't no God; he's nothing but a damned man" and wishes she were young enough to sluice her throat with some gin and beer, mixed. For that was the potent liquid Faithful Mary used to drink in quantity in the days when—as she has told many revival meetings—she was steeped in sin and on her way to Hell until detoured by Father Divine. She used to sit at God's right hand and bask in the title of "his so-called wife."

Now she sits virtually alone in a hotel of many empty rooms vowing that she will go to California to spread the gospel there. For the benefit of Faithful Mary, banished from the groaning board and hysterical prayer meetings of the Divine cult, she can save the fare; the little evangelist has already gained a foothold on the West Coast and any day now lumber trucks will speed along the California roads with the emblazoned admonition:

"PEACE."

Faithful Mary was the leader of the small cluster of angels who sought the downfall of Father Divine and thought they had the lever for prying him loose in a strange affray that spilled blood in "Heaven No. 1." It was the first time since he came out of Sayville, Long Island, four or five years ago that there was any real threat to the remarkable organization Father Divine has spread over most of the East and into the Middle West. And it came about thus:

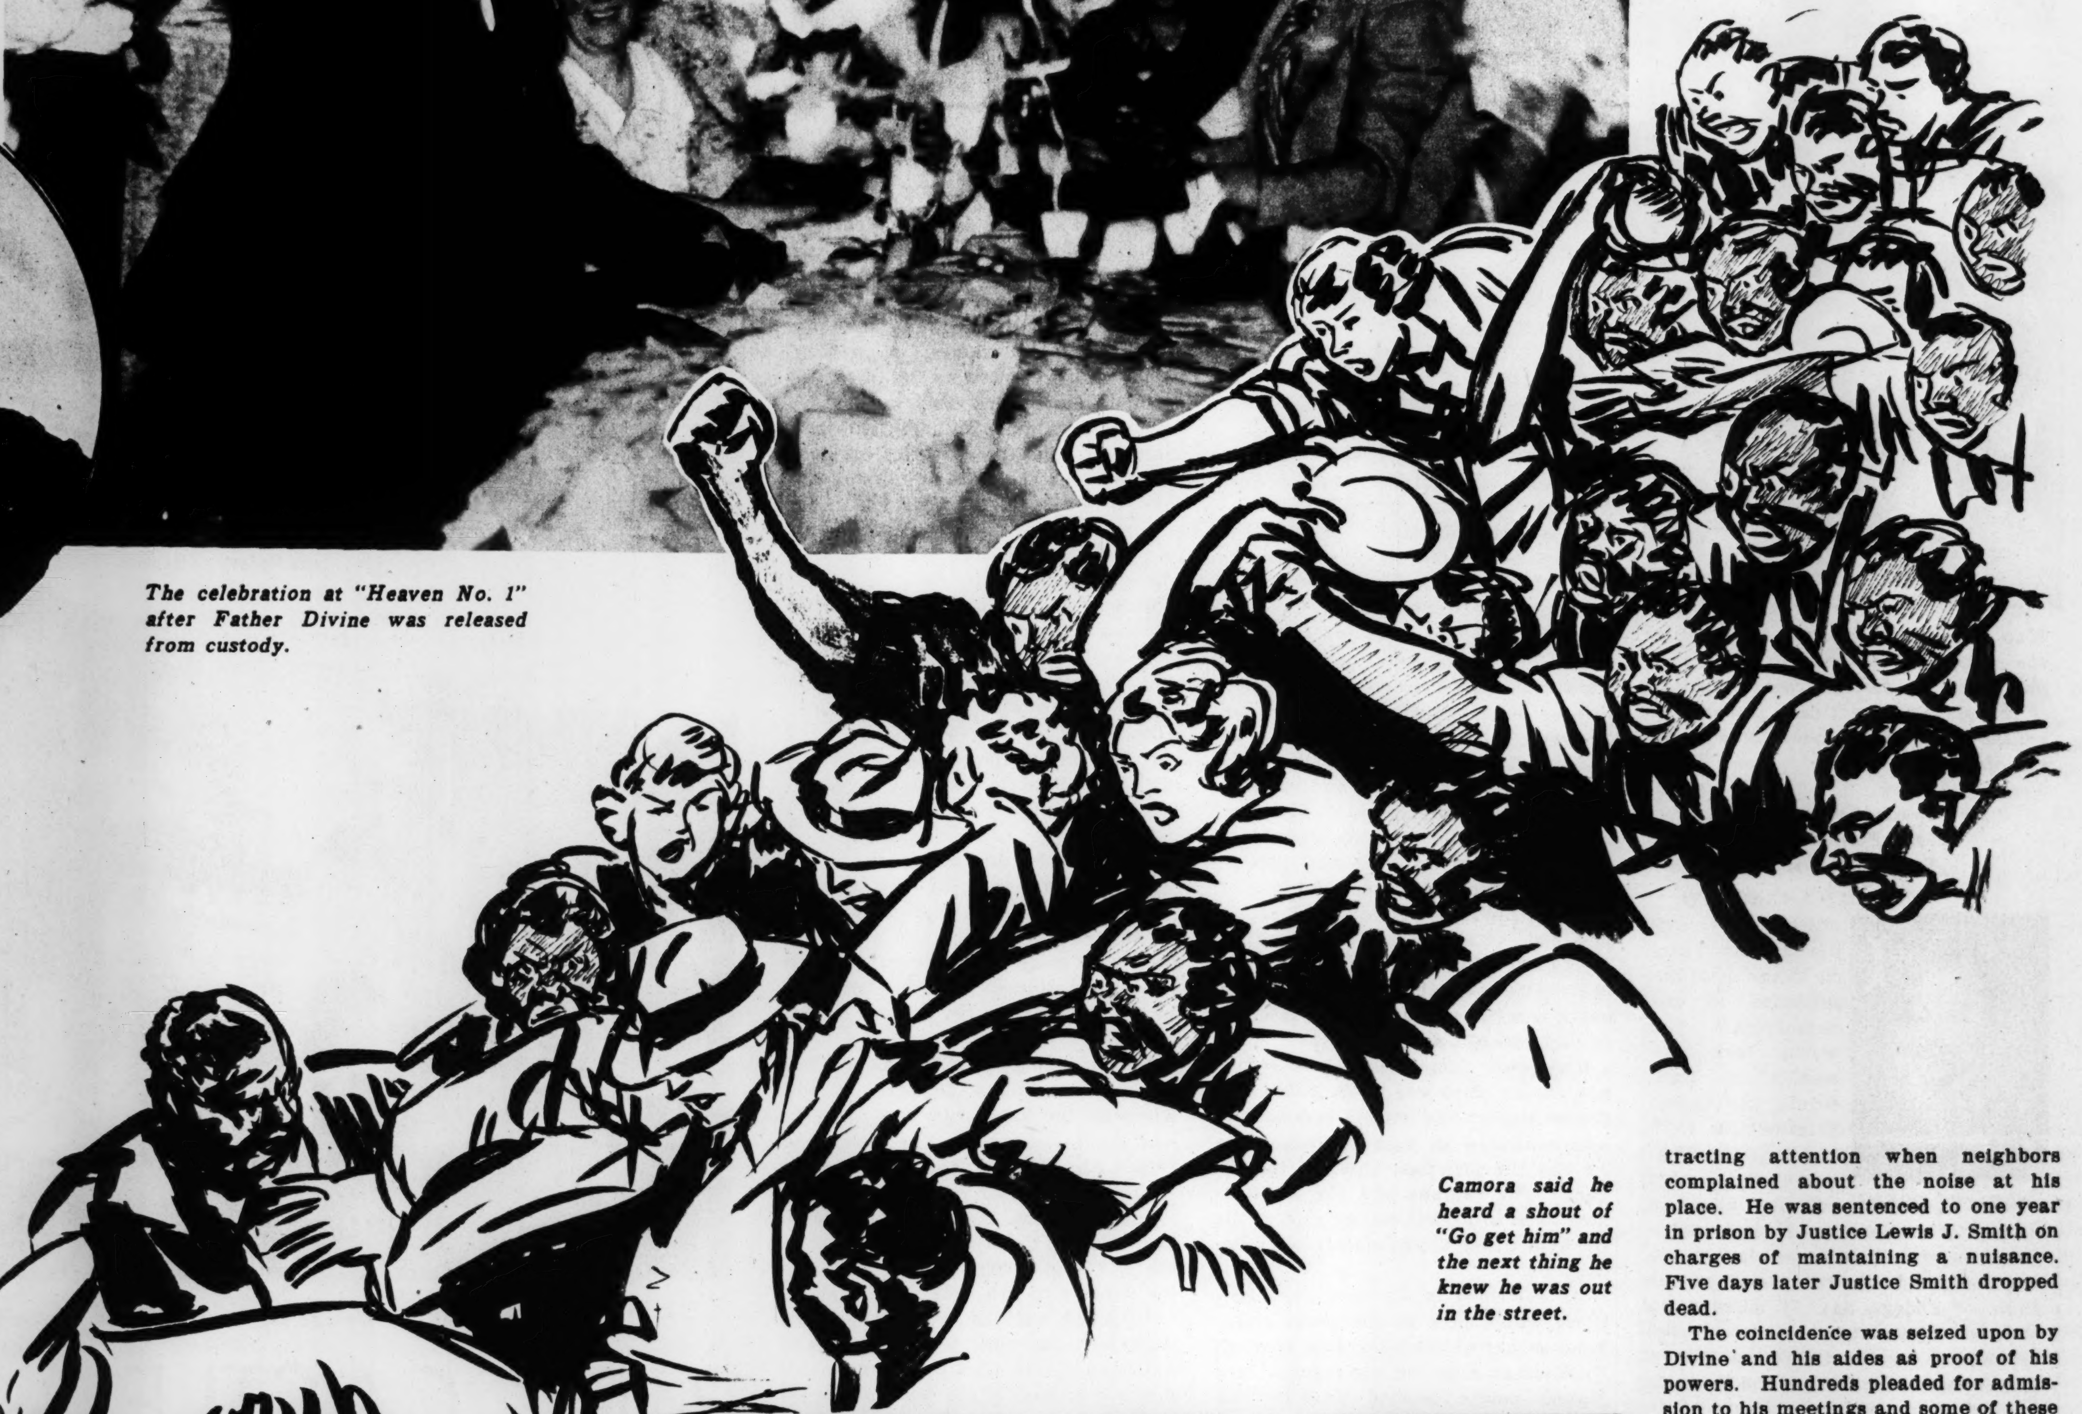
HARRY GREEN, a white contractor of Weehawken, New Jersey, had heard much about the supposed miraculous powers of Father Divine and when a process-server friend mentioned that he was going to serve a paper in the midst of a prayer-meeting Green went along. All he heard at first was the sound of champing jaws for it's wonderful the way members of the Divine cult can eat. "Heaven No. 1" encompasses a large table whose two by four beams sag with the weight of many meat courses. "Angels" and "children"—there's a distinction—dig in side by side and stoke up at a great rate for the eternal fight against the Devil.

Green noted all this with absorbing interest. Then Father Divine mopped his lips with a napkin and got up to preach. He spoke rapidly and earnestly, sometimes throwing in marvelous polysyllables that no lexicographer would ever recognize. The feeders lifted their heads and fixed trusting eyes on their God, swaying with the timbre of his voice. At this crucial moment the intrepid process-server, Paul Camora, strode up with his paper.

What happened then is concealed in the confusion of the moment. Nevertheless Camora said he heard a shout of "Go get him" emanate apparently from Divine and the next thing he knew he was out in the street, bruised and sore. He got to his feet and staggered off, but Green could not follow him. He had a gash in his abdomen and multiple bruises.

It must have looked at first as though he were fatally injured. So when police arrived Father Divine was nowhere in evidence. At the moment he was in a secret apartment upstairs arguing frantically with Faithful Mary that he would cast her out of Heaven unless she signed over the rich property registered in her name. Father Divine, on the premise that he is not mortal, has never signed a single contract or had any of his property assigned to himself. Various angels are the nominal owners and Faithful Mary, as angel-in-chief, had naturally the largest number of establishments.

But Faithful Mary was saying "no" and meant it. For a long time she had coveted the cult leadership and her close association with Father Divine had enabled her to ascertain that idol of some many thousands had plenty of clay in his feet. Here was the glorious opportunity; with Father Divine in flight she could tear down the carefully nurtured myth of his immortality and take over in his stead. It was a heady prospect. Dejected, Father Divine and his close aids slipped out a side door.



Camora said he heard a shout of "Go get him" and the next thing he knew he was out in the street.

THE evangelist went to Connecticut; he called it a routine visit, but police found him hiding in the cellar of one of his branch heavens. Meanwhile Faithful Mary at High Falls was promising largesse to those who came over to her side. She got one prominent angel, John Victory, who said he too felt his former leader's private life was not above reproach.

Divine's court appearance created a scene never before equaled in the metropolis. The crowd that waited for him outside of police headquarters was well over 1000 and all night they sang the songs of the cult or waved handkerchiefs and screamed undying belief in his innocence. When he went to court for trial there were 5000 of his followers on hand—a record number—and more reporters than at any time in the memory of the oldest attache. Even Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the Lindbergh baby slayer, failed to draw so many.

Divine was defended by a battery of high priced and extremely competent white and Negro attorneys. The State produced Camora and Green and one other witness, but all three admitted they could not swear Father Divine or the three angels arrested with him had actually committed the assault charged. On the motion of the defense the case was then thrown out of court because of insufficient evidence.

The decision was a fatal blow to Faithful Mary's aspirations. Some of those who had rallied to her banner went back to civilian life, some begged forgiveness and were demoted.

The entire incident served to spotlight the Divine cult once more. The idea for a group headed by a supreme being who would provide food and sleep for his followers came to George Baker in Baltimore. He went to Sayville, Long Island, and was slowly attracting attention when neighbors complained about the noise at his place. He was sentenced to one year in prison by Justice Lewis J. Smith on charges of maintaining a nuisance. Five days later Justice Smith dropped dead.

The coincidence was seized upon by Divine and his aides as proof of his powers. Hundreds pleaded for admission to his meetings and some of these he permitted to become "angels" provided they turned all their earthly possessions over to the cult.

"Father will take care of you," they were told.

The money and property amassed in this way must have been tremendous for one of the angels, Verinda Brown—her angelic name is Rebecca Grace—is suing for $4476. Her suit disclosed that those who pay room and board are called "children" and do not reach the "state of perfection" attained by the angels who gave their all.

Three studies of the Harlem "Messiah."

ABOUT four years ago Divine invaded Harlem and now that district is dotted with stores such as the "Peace-It's-Wonderful Bakery" or the "Peace Market." He has a coal company, too, and the Attorney-General's office has been trying to find out whether bootleg coal is imported. In the main storekeepers like to deal with Divine disciples because they are taught that debts must be paid and that under no circumstances must violence ever be used.

The income earned by his workers goes into the cult coffers. What this sum amounts to is a matter for conjecture, but there are many willing to wager that it is an impressive bank roll.

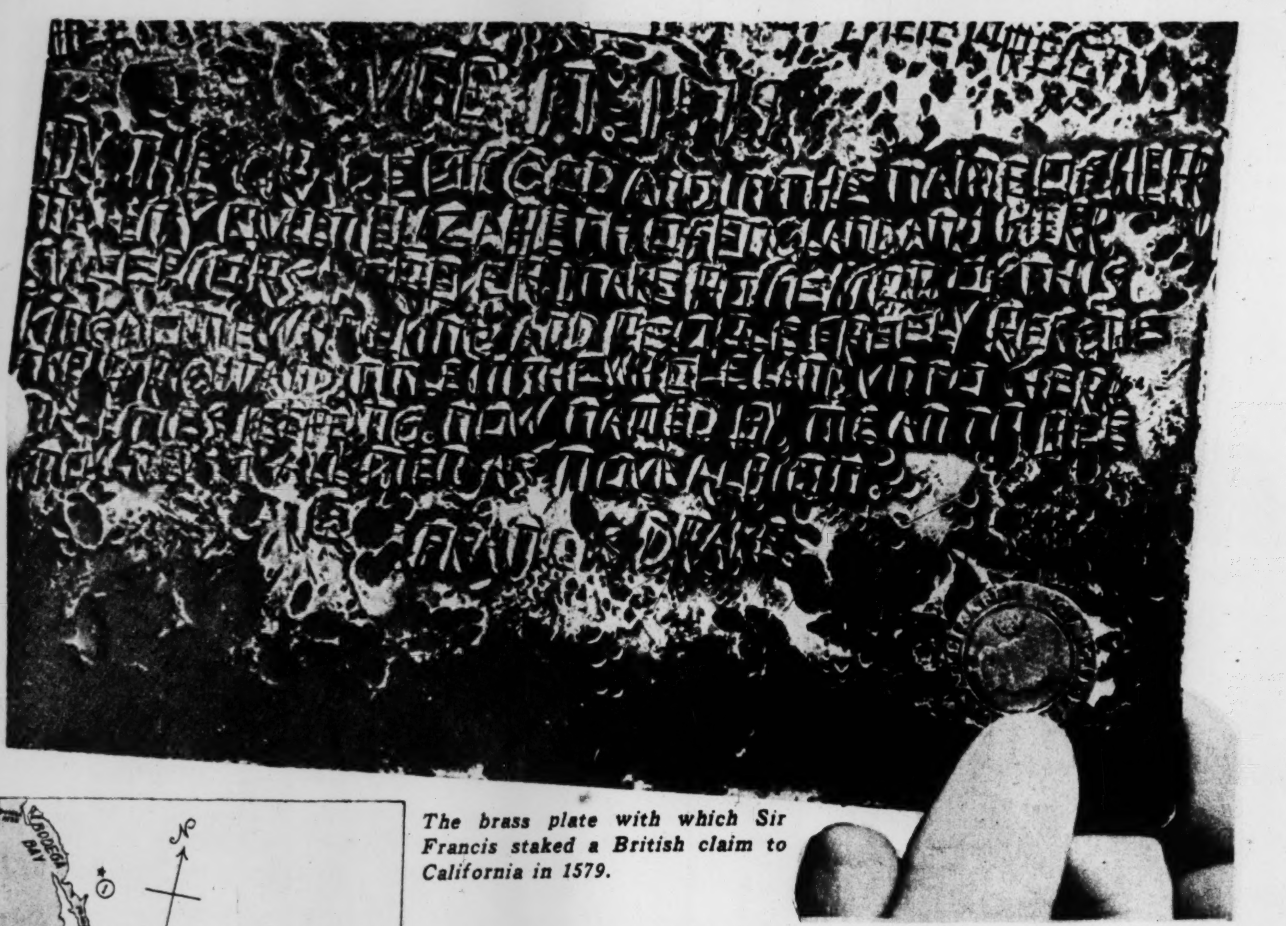
Some observers profess to see a likeness in the Divine group and another cult which flourished in Harlem some years ago. The earlier group also was forbidden marital relations—except the leader who went to jail for Mann Act charges. Father Divine holds that only the spirit must be considered in this life. This he frequently stresses in his newspaper whose date line reads "A. D. F. D."—after death Father Divine."

The most pressing danger to Divine's exalted position at present is the recently revealed critical illness of his real wife, Mother Divine. His own precept is that death is the ultimate sin and there are those who believe that should Mother Divine die it would be too severe a blow at his principles for Father Divine to survive. But in the meantime Father Divine, his dissenting angels exiled, can truly say:

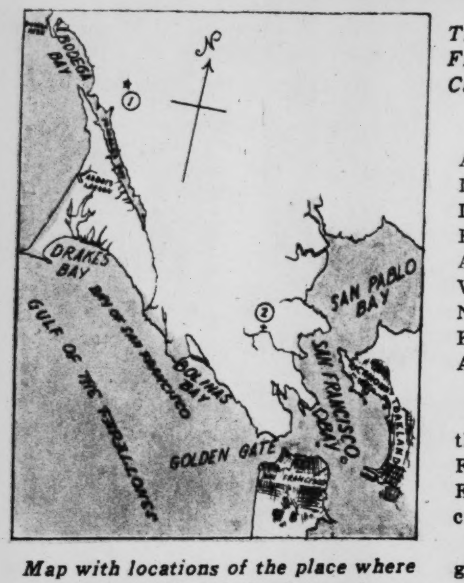
"Peace, It's Wonderful."

Californian Finds BRASS PLATE Left by SIR FRANCIS DRAKE

Visit of the British Admiral to the Western Coast of America Established After 358 Years.



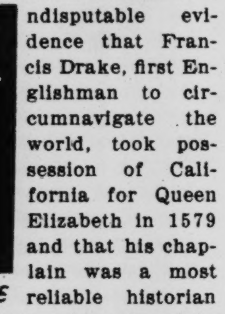
The brass plate with which Sir Francis staked a British claim to California in 1579.



Map with locations of the place where the plate was found the first and second times, the first indicated by a star is the place where Drake landed, the second is the place where Shinn found the plate.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SAN FRANCISCO.



FRANCIS DRAKE

Indisputable evidence that Francis Drake, first Englishman to circumnavigate the world, took possession of California for Queen Elizabeth in 1579 and that his chaplain was a most reliable historian instead of a knave has been found in the form of a little brass plate which the hardy old admiral posted on the shore of Bodega Bay, 30 miles north of here. The plate has been accepted as genuine by the California Historical Society and by one of the foremost authorities on California history—Professor Herbert E. Bolton, head of the American History Department of the University of California. The historical significance of the find has been developed by Dr. Bolton and the society in a book "Drake's Plate of Brass," just published.

The discovery of this evidence last July was mere luck. A puncture caused Beryle Shinn, one of several picnickers, to stop his automobile and repair a tire on a road about 15 miles north of here, close to San Francisco Bay. Climbing the bank at the roadside, Shinn and his companions ate their lunch and then spent a few minutes throwing rocks. As Shinn bent to pick up a rock, he saw the plate, nine inches wide and eight long, lying partly under another rock. Thinking that it would be the right size to repair a hole in the floor of his automobile, he decided to take it home and use it for that purpose at his leisure. For months the black piece of metal lay around in his back yard until he found time to start the repair job. While handling the plate, he noticed that it had some kind of inscription on it.

He succeeded in cleaning it slightly with soap and water. There were English letters on the plate, but he couldn't tell what words they formed. He showed it to his friends from time to time during the next few weeks and finally one of them deciphered the word "Drake." Then it was suggested that the plate be shown to Professor Bolton.

The historian, as soon as Shinn telephoned the description, realized that here was either a rank hoax or something that all historians had been wanting for years—concrete evidence of Drake's activities in California. He arranged to meet Shinn at once. On cleaning the plate completely, Bolton found it wasn't hard to read if one remembered that in the sixteenth century "I" was used in place of "J" and "V" in place of "U." The message, which no white man is known to have seen for 358 years, was:

BEE IT KNOWNE VNTO ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS IVNE 17 1579 BY THE GRACE OF GOD AND IN THE NAME OF HERR MAIESTY QVEEN ELIZABETH OF ENGLAND AND HERR SVCCESSORS FOREVER I TAKE POSSESSION OF THIS KINGDOME WHOSE KING AND PEOPLE FREELY RESIGNE THEIR RIGHT AND TITLE IN THE WHOLE LAND VNTO HERR MAIESTIES KEEPEING NOW NAMED BY ME AN TO BEE KNOWNE VNTO ALL MEN AS NOVA ALBION.

FRANCIS DRAKE

The plate conformed exactly with the description that Drake's chaplain, Francis Fletcher, gave in "The World Encompassed," his story of the circumnavigation. As Fletcher recorded:

"Before we went from thence, our generall caused to be set vp, a monument of our being there; as also of her maiesties, and successors right and title to that kingdome, namely, a plate of brasse, fast nailed to a great and firme post; whereon is engrauen her graces name, and the day and yeare of our arriuall there, and of the free giuing vp, of the prouince and kingdome, both by the king and people, into her maiesties hands: together with her highnesse picture, and armes in a piece of sixpence currant English monie, shewing it selfe by a hole made of purpose through the plate: underneath was likewise engrauen the name of our generall &c."

The king mentioned by Fletcher and on the plate was Hioh, a "man of goodly stature and comely personage," who indicated in sign language that he was the principal chief of the region. The Indians and the Englishmen lived in perfect accord during the six weeks that Drake remained at Bodega Bay.

As described in the early chronicle, there was a hole in the lower right-hand corner of the plate and when an Elizabethan sixpence was inserted, the jagged points seemed provided especially to hold the coin. The lettering and spelling were those of the period. The metal bore a marked resemblance to the brass work that was used so freely on sixteenth century ships. Experts decided that it might have been cut out of the brass track of a gun carriage since one of the edges was curved slightly. The square notches for the two spikes with which it was affixed to the post were regarded as particularly significant since nails and spikes of those days were square.

Since Chaplain Fletcher's account and the plate are so in harmony, it would seem that Drake was rather unjust when he made disparaging remarks about the parson's honesty. There was more than one of the persons in the group who studied the plate that recalled how Drake once had made the chaplain wear a placard reading, "Francis Fletcher, ye falsest knave that liveth."

Last April, after long and careful consideration of all the evidence in the case, the historical society announced that the long lost Drake's plate had been found and given to the University of California at Berkeley. A purse of $3500 was presented to Shinn, a department store clerk, as a reward.

A few days later, William Caldera, a chauffeur, told the historical society that he found the plate in 1933 on the shore of Bodega Bay, carried it in his automobile for a few weeks, and finally threw it away at the very spot where Shinn found it.

Bodega Bay, about 45 miles farther northwest from the spot where Shinn picked up the plate, was one of the six bays each advanced by rival groups as the one in which Drake anchored from June 17 to July 26, 1579. Drake had left England in December, 1577, with five ships, intending to prey on Spanish shipping.

TWO of the ships were so storm-wracked at the end of eight months that they were abandoned near the Straits of Magellan. Two more lost their way, turned round and limped back to England. Drake, in his famous Golden Hinde, went on to the Pacific.

By the time he reached Bodega Bay he had a fabulous fortune in loot. Knowing the Spaniards were lying in wait for him to return, he decided to repair his ship so that he could return to England by way of the Pacific.

In conclusion, Douglas S. Watson, chairman of the Publication Committee of the historical society, stated in his chapter of the book on the plate:

"Drake's position in the history of America today rests upon a firm foundation, and now that we have the evidence to support it, he can truly be regarded as the first English-speaking settler in the Western hemisphere."

Built a CASTLE by Himself from Materials Found in JUNK HEAP

George Daynor's Unusual Dwelling Which He Says Was "Designed by an Angel."

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

VINELAND, New Jersey.

THE guest book in George Daynor's house is prepared for a bumper crop of signatures this summer now that, with jobs and money more plentiful, practically everybody in the United States is traveling around in an automobile. Increased traffic in his neighborhood is bound to mean more visitors. For anyone who sights George Daynor's house stares, possibly gasps and inevitably wonders. Many have yielded to their curiosity and stopped to talk with the owner—and to inspect his dwelling in detail and sign his guest book. More than 150,000 names have been written in the book since Daynor formally "dedicated" his home on Christmas day of 1932.

With its spike-topped towers and variegated materials Daynor's house is an arresting sight, truly a show place. And Daynor likes to show it—and explain how he built it himself out of the junk of an automobile "bone yard."

The owner, designer and builder of the edifice is something of a sight himself, in a picturesque way. The upper part of his face is completely surrounded by hair. Dark, luxuriant locks sweep straight back from his forehead and fall to his shoulders, meeting a splendid array of sweeping mustache and bushy beard.

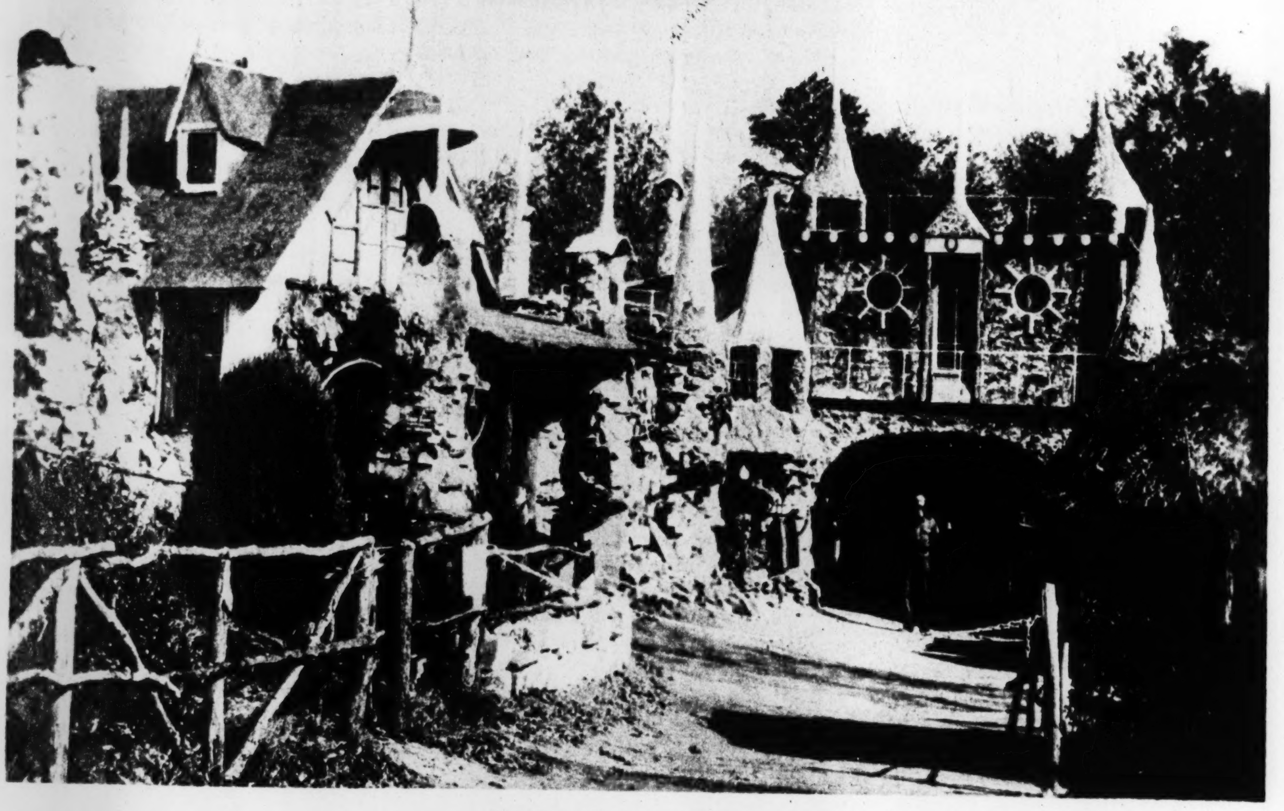
Daynor used to live in the State of Washington. He went up to Alaska to prospect for gold and spent several years there. Then he returned to the States, found the depression pretty formidable and took to wandering in search of work. What he describes as a vision—wherein an angel directed him to come to New Jersey and "build a place where he could rest"—sent his steps this way. In Vineland he had a narrow escape from being struck by an automobile, as a result of which he and the motorist got to talking. He learned that the driver owned some swamp land which was used only as a dumping place for discarded automobiles and was willing to sell it for a dollar an acre. Daynor found work on a nearby farm, and with his earnings bought the land.

He dug ditches to drain his property, then set to work to build his house—the kind of house he had seen in his "vision." Money was very scarce; he managed to get enough to eat by fishing and killing frogs and rabbits.

HE WAS rather shy on house-building skill, not being a carpenter. But he had the advantage of possessing a large supply of building material, of a sort—the battered remains of abandoned motor cars and other odds and ends of rubbish that had been dumped on his property. Of such he made his house. It took him three years.

Much of the walls he made of oil cans and clay colored with brick dust. Automobile bumpers were used in constructing gateways, fenders for the arched doorways. Out of old automobile seats he fashioned a bed and chairs. Pieces of petrified wood, unearthed when the ditches were dug, furnished the material for door knobs and latches.

When the house was finished, Daynor, having in mind the lean years during which he labored on it and his utilization of discarded stuff, appropriately named it "Palace Depression." He thinks enough of it to have sought copyright on some of its architectural features.



Another view of the castle.

Through purchase of holding company securities, an elderly glass manufacturer from the Middle West, putting up about $2,000,000, gained control of a group of railroads with a book value of more than three billions. The deal did not receive much general attention at the time, but last winter a Senate Committee investigating railroad finance looked into it, took notice of its spectacular aspects and made the country aware of how George A. IN SEPTEMBER of 1935 an astonishing financial transaction took place. Through purchase of holding company securities, an elderly glass manufacturer from the Middle West, putting up about $2,000,000, gained control of a group of railroads with a book value of more than three billions. The deal did not receive much general attention at the time, but last winter a Senate Committee investigating railroad finance looked into it, took notice of its spectacular aspects and made the country aware of how George A. Ball of Muncie, Indiana, through an expenditure which was only a small fraction of the total investments represented by the property, held in his hands the destiny of some 23,000 miles of railroad.

The committee, sweating its brains over the complexity of the financial operation, apparently was interested in trying to show that there was something wrong with the system—the holding company system—under which such a deal could be made. The public became interested in the mild, unspectacular man who had made it.

Subsequent events did little to lessen this interest. Ball sold his railroad control at a profit and gave the profit to a charitable foundation. About the same time, Harcourt Brace and Company published "Middletown in Transition," by Robert S. and Helen Merrell Lynd, a sequel to the "Middletown" of 10 years ago, both social studies of a small Midwestern city. It has become generally known by this time that the "Middletown" studied by the Lynds is Muncie. And the X family to which a chapter is devoted in the latest book as the dominating financial influence in the town has been identified as the family to which George A. Ball belongs—a family whose fortunes for many years have been very closely associated with the commercial and cultural interests of the community.

It is impossible to consider George Ball without considering also the Ball family, for a singular solidarity has characterized this group. George joined three of his brothers in business when he was 21 — they were manufacturing oil cans in Buffalo, New York, then—and the four continued in business together after they established a factory for making Mason fruit jars in Muncie in 1888. A fifth brother was a practicing physician. Working together, the brothers became wealthy, and even in individual enterprises outside their joint businesses they took counsel together. And when they began to make large contributions for charitable purposes it was as the Ball brothers that they gave. Only Frank C. and George survive, but the second generation has come into the business and the family still works together.

George is the youngest of the five Ball brothers. He is 74, but his age is betrayed only by his white hair and mustache. Of medium height and rather slender, he moves with a quick, light step, his brown eyes are alert, and he works with a seemingly tireless energy. He is rather spruce in his appearance without any suggestion of dapperness; he wears starched white collars, higher than common, black-rimmed eyeglasses and a wrist watch; he can pull a hat quite badly out of shape in putting it on.

His corner office in the general office of the Ball Brothers Company, of which he is vice-president, has on the door merely the numeral 2. The windows on one side look out on a grocery and a barber shop, across the street, and on the other, command a view of a small frame cottage.

To this office comes a stream of callers each day when Ball is in Muncie—people on all sorts of business, the variety of their missions reflecting the variety of his interests. He is relatively easy of access, a fact probably attributable in part to a personal trait which even those who may not like him or the accumulation of wealth he represents must concede he possesses—lack of pretentiousnesss.

Ball may be considered an eminent product of the economic pattern which it is fashionable now to deride as "rugged individualism." Beginning life on his father's Ohio farm, he started his business career in the small town in New York State to which his family had moved. He began when 16 years old as a bookkeeper in a dry goods store at $2 a week. He wasn't thinking about a career when he took the job, he was thinking about the $2 a week; he needed it. After a time he took on extra work, keeping the books for another establishment at night. Presently he joined his brothers in business and did his part in the development and expansion that followed. He worked hard, lived simply, did without things he wanted, dealt shrewdly, exercised foresight, ventured somewhat, found opportunities when he was able to take advantage of them, became wealthy. He thinks others can do likewise.

After he had all the money he and his family needed he continued making money. But he gave some of the excess away. He never set a goal and said, "When I have that much I'll quit." Quitting, he indicates, is not so simple. It involves breaking an established habit, a way of life. And by the time a man has accumulated a fortune he is usually involved in financial situations which he can't just drop and run away from.

It is consistent with both a prevailing interest in his life and his socio-economic attitude that a good many of his private investments have consisted of backing inventions. He has always been interested in the application of scientific discoveries to industry and the devising of improved methods of doing things. And, he says, "I like to encourage industry and ingenuity." In such matters he is influenced by his judgment of the man who wants his help as well as his opinion of the possibilities of the invention. When such enterprises are successful a considerable part of his gratification comes from this proof that his judgment was right.

ONE of his few extravagances—if a multimillionaire's expenditures can be so classified — is traceable to the fascination things mechanical have for him. He has had a long succession of automobiles, buying many of them because of some mechanical innovation they embodied—cars of all sizes and shapes, from the midget Austin to a Cunningham almost as big as a locomotive. At present he has a coupe and a sedan of one of the best American makes. He drives his car pretty fast. That, he explains, is not because he craves speed for its own sake, but because he likes to get from one place to another as quickly as possible. On his frequent business trips he usually travels by train, but on European tours he likes to use an automobile as better suited for observation of country and people.

Ball has a wife and an unmarried daughter, the latter an art enthusiast. Mrs. Ball, although a pleasant and pleasant looking woman, has refused for years to pose for a photograph. Asked how he managed to reconcile his family to the fact his business required him to spend much time away from home, the capitalist succinctly answered, "I don't."

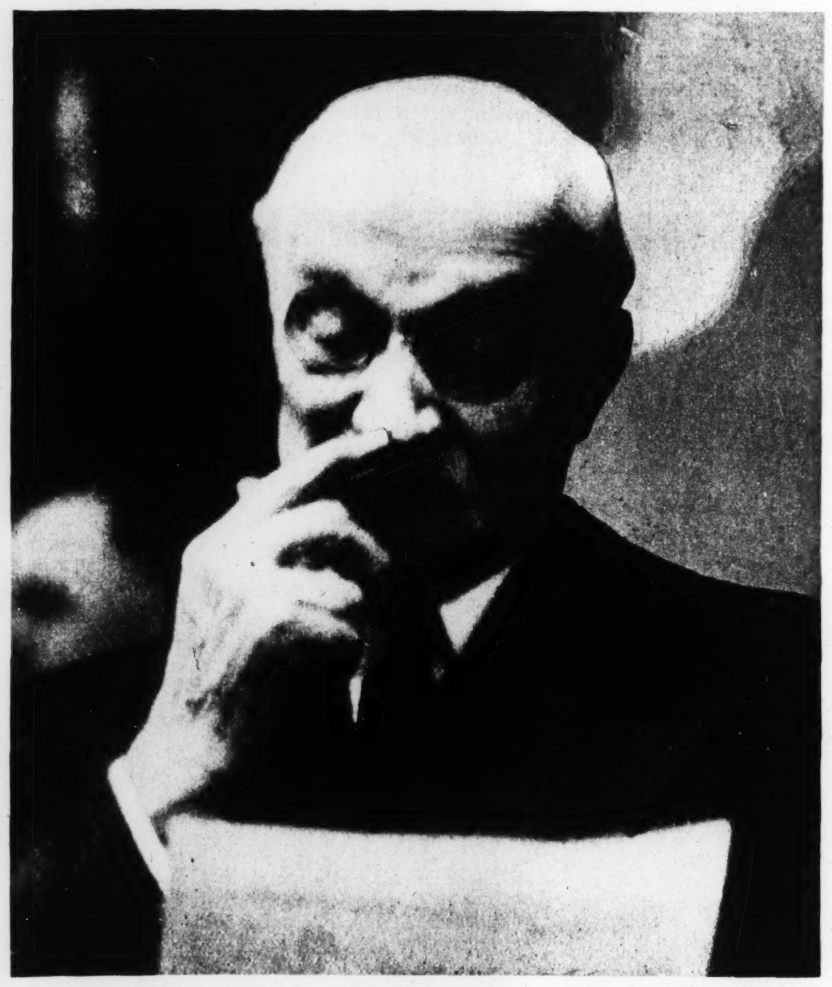
His vacations he usually spends in travel. For relaxation, he reads, but doesn't find as much time for that as he used to; he is fond of biography. He used to ride horseback a good deal, but finally gave it up because of the scarcity of unpaved roads and the fact that he had to be away from home so much his horses didn't get proper exercise. He is a moderate eater, doesn't drink because he doesn't like liquor, and smokes little; he can't smoke and work at the same time, and that leaves him little time for smoking. He's Republican National Committeeman for Indiana, but almost never makes a speech. He is a Presbyterian and used to be an advocate of prohibition. He dislikes onions and indolence.

G. A. doesn't seem to waste much thought on economic theories or philosophical abstractions. He gives the impression, at least on short acquaintance, of being fairly completely immersed in the practical problems of business and—in lesser degree—politics.

Not that the big man of Muncie is incapable of lighter moments. On a drizzly Sunday evening at the Muncie Country Club he took part in an impromptu game of charades. When his turn came to present a puzzle, he got up on a chair and posed impressively. The answer to his charade, which no one guessed, was: "A Ball-bearing chair." At a public dinner, while still in control of the Van Sweringen railroad system, he had to leave before the program was over to keep an appointment. Asking to be excused, he explained he had just learned that when the railroads checked up their rolling stock that night, they were one caboose short and he had to go and hunt for it.

With the coming of wealth, Ball has not drawn aloof from Muncie and its people. He and his family take part in its social and cultural life, and he, of course, is an active influence in its business life. George A. Ball probably is more sensitive about criticism of Muncie than criticism of himself.

"Middletown in Transition" has some things to say about the "X family's" influence in Muncie. While it speaks of the two surviving brothers as "capable, democratic, Christian gentlemen" and of their "modesty and personal rectitude," it also speaks of the increasing pervasiveness of the power of this wealthy family. . . ." In addition to the Ball Brothers Company, employing about 1800 persons, the family owns the largest department store in town, has heavy interest in the two banks, and interests in various other businesses in the town. Its influence also is felt through the Ball State Teachers College, to which the family has given about $1,200,000; the Ball Memorial Hospital, a gift of the Ball brothers; the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., several churches and the Community Fund, all of which have received contributions from the Balls. In this connection, it might be mentioned that among other philanthropic contributions by the family were gifts totaling $1,000,000 to Indiana University and a donation of $500,000 to the Riley Memorial Children's Hospital in Indianapolis.



Mr. Ball cogitates.

George A. Ball has not read "Middletown in Transition," but from what he has read and heard about it he is not impressed with its value as a scientific document. Another business man of this city of 50,000 said: "Muncie's attitude toward the book is that it is a remarkable collection of half truths and cockeyed deductions." Ball doesn't like pointed contrasting of poverty and wealth.

The Lynd book speaks of low wages in the Ball factory. Ball says: "We pay wages on a par with others for the same quality of labor." As to organization of workers, he says the factory neither encouraged nor discouraged unionization of employes, adding, "It's out of our hands, anyway, now"—a reference to the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

What prompted George Ball to go into the Van Sweringen deal—to bid in the assorted securities held as collateral for a loan of $39,500,000 to M. J. and O. P. Van Sweringen by J. P. Morgan and Company and associated bankers when the banking syndicate offered them at auction — may never be known. It is the assumption of friends that there was a combination of motives: Desire, as a big shipper and as owner of some of the railroad stock involved, to keep the system intact and in charge of the Van Sweringens in the interest of shipping service; desire to be of help to G. A. Tomlinson, a shipping man of Cleveland and a business associate, who appealed to him on behalf of the Van Sweringens; and the thought that he might make some money out of the thing.

Anyway, Ball and Tomlinson organized the Midamerica Corporation, having 15,000 shares of common stock and 20,000 shares of preferred. Ball subscribed for 10,000 shares of the common at $1 a share, and 13,333 preferred at $100 a share, thus putting in $1,343,300 of the paid-in capital of $2,015,000. Tomlinson subscribed for the rest. Later Ball bought most of Tomlinson's Midamerica holdings, so that he had 14,050 common and 18,733 preferred. Midamerica bought the Van Sweringen collateral, a collection of various kinds of securities, for $3,121,000, borrowing from a bank the difference between this amount and Midamerica's paid-in capital. The purchased securities included 2,064,494 shares of common stock of Alleghany Corporation, top holding company of the Van Sweringen pyramid of more than 240 companies. These 2,064,494 shares constituted approximately 47 per cent of the voting stock of Alleghany, and their ownership, therefore, gave working control over the Van Sweringen railroad group to Midamerica, whose principal owner was Ball. The Van Sweringens were put in charge of the roads.

An option (subject to certain conditions) was given to the Van Sweringens to buy back within 10 years control of the railroad system through purchase of 8250 shares of Midamerica common at the original subscription price, $1 a share. This would have given them a majority of the common stock and, ordinarily, voting control; but a special condition of the option allowed the holder of a majority of the preferred stock (Ball) to name half the board of directors. M. J. Van Sweringen died, and then O. P. Van Sweringen died, and the option lapsed.

At one point in the proceedings, a worried associate said to "G. A.": "How can you be so calm about this? If you have an ace up your sleeve, for heaven's sake tell me." Ball presently replied, "Oh, we'll try to keep the trains running, and maybe someone will show up who wants to buy." Ball was not entirely unfamiliar with the business of transportation, incidentally; he had owned the Washburn, Bayfield & Iron River in Wisconsin about 20 years before, and the Ball brothers had once owned a large traction system in Indiana. Also, incidentally, this was not the largest transaction George Ball had engaged in with respect to money exchanged.

But he decided to get the Van Sweringen railroad group off his hands. He set up the George and Frances (his wife) Ball Foundation, a charitable trust, and donated to it his 14,050 common shares of Midamerica, retaining his preferred shares. The Foundation then made a deal with three young Easterners, Robert R. Young, Frank F. Kolbe and Allan P. Kirby. First, the Alleghany securities and certain other items in the Midamerica portfolio, notably 18,000 shares of Cleveland Railway and $1,500,000 of department store debentures, together with all the common stock of that company, were liquidated out. The three purchasers bought the Foundation's share of the Alleghany securities so liquidated for $6,375,000. The Foundation kept the Cleveland Railway stock and the $1,500,000 in debentures. The bank loan was paid off by selling some of the retained securities, and the preferred stock of Midamerica was retired, which gave Ball back what he had paid for it. The Foundation, it is estimated, has between five and six millions with which to carry on its benefactions. What the nature of these benefactions will be Ball said the other day he was not yet ready to announce.

MUNCIE, which welcomed the Balls in the '80s with an offer of a site for their glass factory, free gas for fuel and a cash bonus, is preparing now to make formal and lasting acknowledgement of their philanthropies. The movement was started when a group of business men contributed $32,000 for a bronze statue, which was executed by the late Daniel Chester French. The project was held in abeyance during the depression. Now the Chamber of Commerce is asking for contributions of $28,000 to complete the monument with a stone terrace bordered by a semicircle of five pillars, emblematic of the five Ball brothers. The memorial will be placed on the campus of Ball State Teachers College. The statue, a winged figure of a woman with one arm holding a box of jewels, the other outstretched in a gesture of bestowal, is titled "Beneficence."

George Ball says he doesn't know how much money he is worth—not because it is so much, but because his interests are extremely diversified and it would take a lot of checking of debits and credits to establish the value of each holding.

He thinks most fortunes are overestimated.

While his philanthropies as well as his financial interests are diverse—he has given, for instance, to movements for preserving places of natural beauty—they strongly incline toward educational institutions—toward helping people to help themselves.

He says he makes such gifts because it pleases him to do it, not because he feels it is his duty.

He says he thinks that when a man earns money it is his to do with as he sees fit.

The FIRST PENTHOUSE in LONDON

Interior Architecture of a Fabulous Apartment for Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten—Cousins of the British Royal Family—As Designed by a Former St. Louisan.

THE first penthouse in London, that of Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten, presented a decorating problem which arose from what amounted to an embarrassment of riches. For the Mountbattens—he is a great-grandson of Queen Victoria, and she is reputed to be the wealthiest woman in England—have a great array of art treasures, including paintings, furniture and gold and silver plate, and they wanted to keep these collections in their home. They wanted their penthouse, however, huge though it is—an indication of the size is afforded by the fact that it contains 22 servants' rooms—to be a home and not a museum. The problem was, then, essentially, to design the interiors so that the apartment would be modern and livable and at the same time provide a suitable setting for the lovely and exceedingly valuable objects of art, some of which are of great antiquity.

To a former St. Louisan, Victor Proetz, architect, fell the task. As a representative of the New York firm of Cosden, Incorporated, which received the commission for the interior designing, he spent six months in London on the work, recently returning to New York. He expects to go back late to London this summer to complete the job.

The Mountbatten apartment is eight stories above the street and is surrounded by a terrace from which one may look out over Regents Park. It rests on top a large apartment building which stands on the Park Lane site of Brook House, one of the great houses of Edwardian Ldon. Lady Louis Mountbatten, formerly Edwina Ashley, inherited Brook House, and when she agreed to sell the land on which it stood as the site for an apartment building it was with the stipulation that the Mountbattens should always have the penthouse rent free. The new apartment was just so much space, with rooms roughly partitioned off, when Proetz began his work. With Lady Louis he first made an inventory of the Mountbatten collections, then, with a knowledge of what art treasures the apartment was to contain, he started designing rooms which would show them to the greatest advantage. Several pieces of furniture also he designed—among them, two cabinets to contain the best of a jade collection, two chests of drawers of ebony and pewter and a pair of sofas. A number of other pieces needed to complete groups of furnishings he bought for his clients; he went to Paris for a pair of molded plaster Louis XIV console tables which cost $15,000, and purchased from a London dealer dining-room chairs which Queen Anne had given the Spanish Ambassador in the eighteenth century. It is hardly necessary to say that expense could be practically disregarded. Some of the effects Proetz achieved are shown in the photographs reproduced on this page.

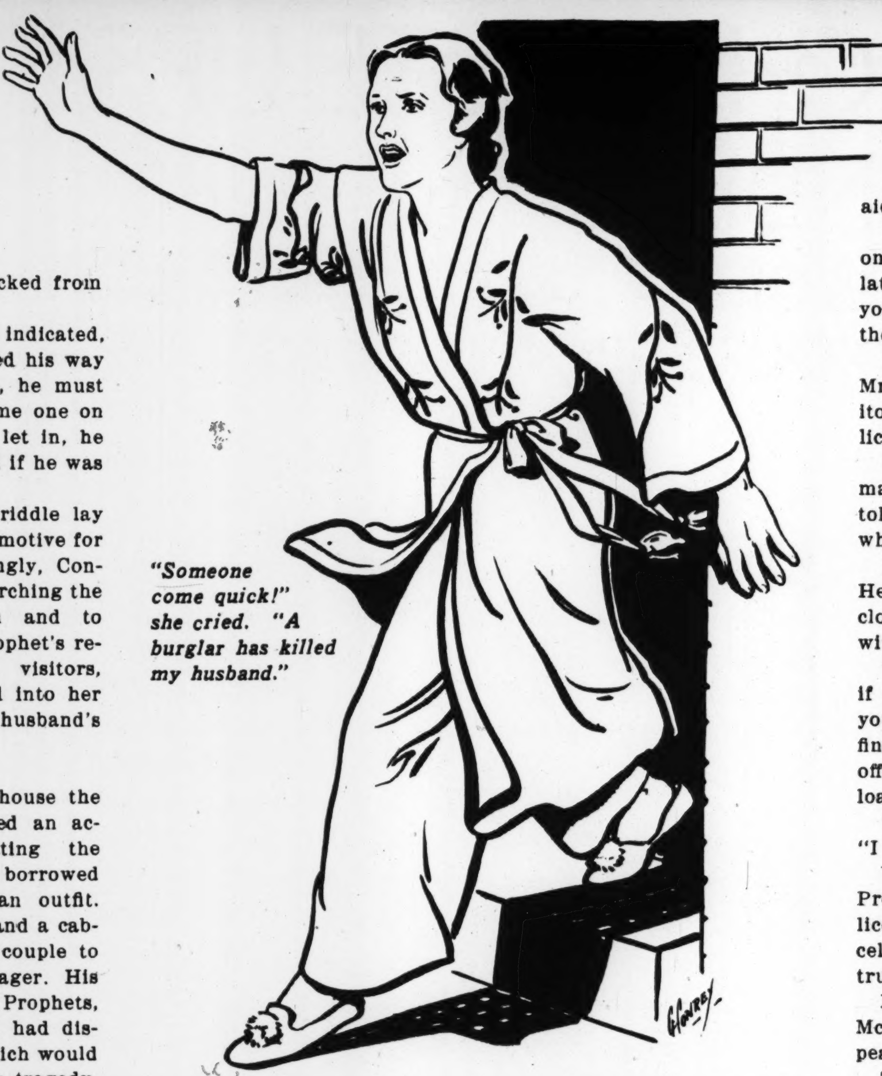
The PROPHET MURDER CASE

The Sixth in a Series of True Life Detective Stories

By C. R. ALEXANDER.



"Someone come quick!" she cried. "A burglar has killed my husband."

SHORTLY before dawn on November 22, 1930, Mrs. Clara Grace Prophet, clad in her night clothing, ran screaming into the street. "Someone come quick!" she cried. "A burglar has killed my husband."

And to Patrolmen Myers and Weller, entering the Prophet home at 5611 North Park avenue, on the run, this seemed indeed so. The handsome $15,000 house had been ransacked from top to bottom.

The body of its owner lay sprawled in a bedroom, bullet-ridden and terribly battered. And leading to the back door, swinging wide open in the chill winter wind, was a veritable trail of overturned furniture and spilled lamps.

Mrs. Prophet, a matronly little woman of 33, well-known for her work as head of a church foreign missions board, described the burglar as "a tall, heavy-set man in a dark coat and soft light hat." Her first knowledge that he was in the house, she said, was when she was awakened at 4 a. m. by a heavy blow and on sitting up in bed she saw her husband struggling with the invader.

"I screamed for help, but no one responded," she said. "Then my husband and the burglar rolled onto the floor.

"I heard my husband cry, 'All right fellow, you got me. You can have my watch and money, only don't hurt the children.' But instead of taking the things and going, the burglar shot him and then ran down the stairs and out the back way."

Sending Mrs. Prophet in to quiet her children—Warren, 7; William, 5; and Ruth, 11—Myers and Weller phoned in a general burglar alarm for broadcast to the radio cars and summoned Inspector William Connelly and Detective-Lieutenant Frank Choplinski, then attached to the city homocide squad, and Patrick J. McKewen, then county detective chief. These officers ordered a search of the neighborhood for traces of the murderous marauder and meanwhile began going over the scene step by step in quest of fingerprints or other clews.

Almost immediately Connelly's attention was attracted to an ash stand on the living-room floor. Although supposedly brushed over by the slayer in his wild dash to escape, the glass top had neither broken nor spilled its contents over the rug. Further investigation disclosed the same to be true of all the overturned furniture. There were nine pieces lying prone on the floor, yet not one of them was scratched — not even the lamps whose parchment shades by all odds should have been marred or split.

McKewen and Myers observed that the doors and windows, downstairs and up, with the exception of the back door, were locked on the inside and showed no marks of having been forced. He saw, in fact, that the screens were still in the windows.

And to top that off, Myers and Weller showed up with the Prophet's milk man, who said that he had tried the back door only a few minutes before the murder and found it locked from the inside.

If, as the evidence indicated, the slayer had not forced his way into the Prophet home, he must have been let in by some one on the inside. If he was let in, he was not a burglar. And if he was not a burglar. . . .

The answer to that riddle lay in discovery of the true motive for the murder. Accordingly, Connelly set his aides to searching the premises for the gun and to checking up on Mrs. Prophet's recent movements and visitors, while he himself delved into her marital life and her husband's financial position.

IN SEARCHING the house the officers had uncovered an account book indicating the Prophets had recently borrowed $200 from a small loan outfit. Connelly now took this and a cabinet photograph of the couple to the loan company's manager. His purpose was to see if the Prophets, in negotiating the loan, had disclosed family matters which would cast light on the night's tragedy. But he was not prepared for the startling clew this maneuver produced.

For the manager, on being shown the photograph to refresh his memory, insisted that the man in the picture was not the one who had represented himself to him as Prophet.

In other words, Mrs. Prophet, in negotiating a $200 loan, had some other man pose as her husband.

Why and for what did she want money? Connelly could not tell. He saw in this amazing revelation a need for further delving into Mrs. Prophet's past.

He sought out Prophet's younger brother and his 68-year-old mother in Bridesburg. He asked them how the Prophets had been getting along financially.

"Pretty well," replied the brother. "Of course William was only making about one-third of the $15,000 a year he got as advertising manager in a former job, but between life insurance, stocks and bonds he had about $25,000 salted away. Then there's the house, you know."

Had they been doing as well in their marital affairs, Connelly asked.

The brother replied that they hadn't; that they had been almost at swords' points for almost four months.

"Why?" asked Connelly.

"My brother found out that Grace had an illegitimate child."

"How did brother get on to it!"

"I don't know for sure. But Will and Grace had a scrap over at her mother's one day, and Will put it to her point blank."

"Did your brother know who the child's father was?"

"He tried to find out, but didn't do so good."

Mrs. Prophet's brother lived on a farm at Warrington, Bucks County.

"Go get him," Connelly told his aids.

McKewen and Choplinski left on the errand, but not 10 minutes later a short, dark, bespectacled young man presented himself at the Prophet home.

"I'm Harold Williams . . . Mrs. Prophet's brother," the visitor said. "I understand the police want to talk to me?"

Connelly sat down with the man, and as gently as possible told him of the circumstances which pointed to his sister.

But Williams refused to talk. He insisted his sister's past was a closed book and had nothing to do with the murder.

"Would you change your mind if I told you that two weeks ago your sister took some man to a finance company and passed him off as Mr. Prophet in getting a loan?"

"Not at all," replied Williams. "I was the man."

Whereupon Connelly drove Mrs. Prophet and her brother to a police station and locked them in cells, determined to "sweat" the truth out of them.

He was about to begin when McKewen and Choplinski appeared breathless.

"Say, Boss," said the latter, "just what, if anything, did Williams tell you?"

"Oh, Williams," replied Connelly, disgustedly. "Nothing, except a cock and bull yarn about him being the phony Mr. Prophet his sister used to get the loan."

"Maybe it's not as phony as you think," replied Choplinski. "Did you know he was not at home last night? Did you know, in fact, that at the time of the murder he was right here in Philadelphia?"

With the inspector in the van, the three officers marched to Williams' cell and accused him point blank of being the murderer. Williams denied it, saying that while he was in Philadelphia at 4 a. m. there was nothing unusual about it—that he frequently traveled in early to peddle vegetables.

From there Connelly marched to Mrs. Prophet's cell. Choplinski intervened.

"Let me try, Chief," he said, then addressed himself to the woman.

"Mrs. Prophet," he said, earnestly, "you are a church woman, aren't you? You believe in the teachings of Christ?"

"Yes," she replied, "I do."

"Then Mrs. Prophet, can you ever hope for forgiveness without repentance? Will you ever be able to have your children grow up and look at you with an awful doubt?"

THE woman made a convulsive dab at her eyes. "No," she said, "I couldn't stand that. I'll tell who killed my husband.

"It was Harold and I."

In the confession she and her brother subsequently signed, the woman revealed the motives for the murder as hate and greed. Prophet had made her life unbearable since he had discovered her to be the mother of an illegitimate child, she said, and Harold had been desperately in need of money. She added that they had originally planned to kill him in October, but as there was a missionary convention she wanted to attend, they put it off until it was over.

Both were sentenced to life imprisonment.

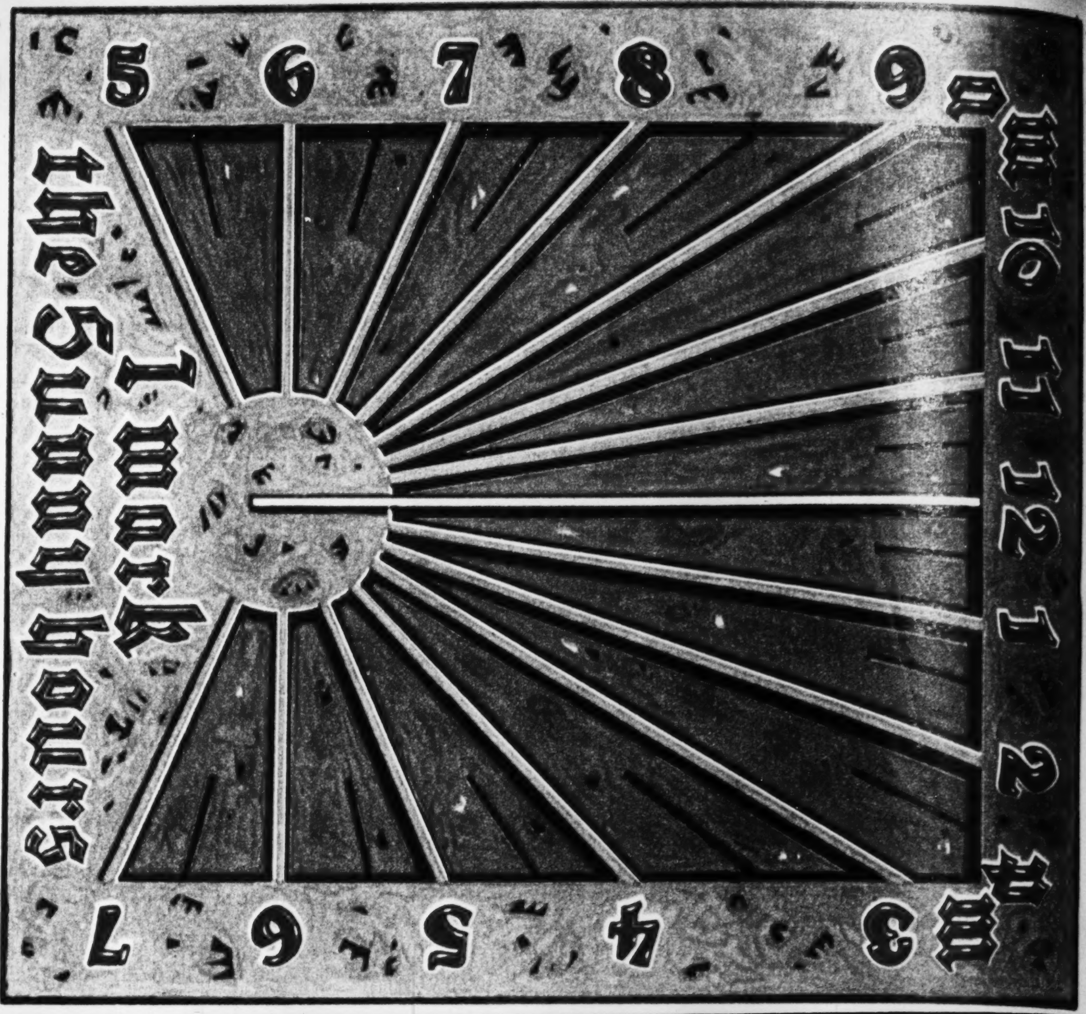
CARDINAL SUNDIAL

By WALTER DAHLGREN

"LET OTHERS TELL OF STORMS AND SHOWERS— I'LL ONLY COUNT YOUR SUNNY HOURS."



Long ago man learned to tell time by observing the position of the shadow cast by an object placed in the sun. As the day advances the shadow changes position and thus gives the hour. The origin of the sundial is obscure, but we know that it was used in ancient Babylonia and mention is made of it in the Bible. The Greeks told time by this method in 400 B. C. and one was set up in Rome in 293 B. C. Today sundials are used mainly for decorative purposes in gardens.

DIRECTIONS ● Mount the two parts upon heavy cardboard and cut out. Be sure to cut out the long white slit on the dial also. Now insert the tabs on the bird part, called the Gnomon, into the long slit—fold tabs and paste to the bottom of dial. That's all; your sundial is completed. If you wish you may mount the dial upon a heavy piece of wood and the Gnomon upon a heavy piece of tin with water-proof cement. Then after it is made up, give the whole sundial a coat of shellac or varnish. This method will make it somewhat weather-proof.

To set up the sundial—the operation of the dial depends upon the shadow cast by the gnomon—choose an open space with a clear south exposure. The dial should be set perfectly level, the 12 o'clock line pointing to the true North. Set the dial so that at high noon no shadow is cast by the gnomon; after that a few corrections (by a watch) will properly locate the dial setting. It can then be secured in place. A sundial gives the true local suntime. This dial is divided into hours and half-hours. The side marked A. M. gives the morning hours—the side marked P. M. gives the afternoon hours.

HICKORY HOLLOW FOLKS

And the Things They Do

By WALTER QUERMANN

TRYING TO RIGHT A WRONG

THE CHARACTERS

BILL BUNNY—A badly worried little rabbit.

MISTER MOLE—A cross old miner.

Had Bill Bunny known the strange little seed that came tumbling down out of the sky would grow into a horrible weed and swallow everything it could find, and that it would frighten everyone away from the Hollow, he never would have planted it. But alas, Bill did plant the seed and the horrible weed did grow, and all the folks have left the Hollow. And now Bill is wondering what to do about it. Of course, he feels that he must destroy that weed. But how? He thinks about this for a long time and finally hits upon a plan. But he will have to get Mr. Mole to help him We see him talking to the ill-tempered miner as

THE PLAY BEGINS

MISTER MOLE—What makes you think I can help you? I don't know anything about weeds.

BILL BUNNY—Well, you know that you have to pull them up by the roots to kill them, don't you? And you can't get close enough to this weed's roots to pull it up. Grumpy tried it and it hit him on the head with the handle of a hoe.

MISTER MOLE—Gosh, I don't want to have anything to do with a weed like that.

BILL BUNNY—But it won't be able to hit us because we'll be underground. You see, my plan is to tunnel underground to the roots, and then dig them up. You are the only one I know who can do that. Just think of what it means to the folks living in the Hollow to have that weed destroyed. Why, you'll be a hero.

(And Bill talks and talks and Mister Mole listens. At last he decides to help Bill, and they start for the Hollow armed with pick and shovel. And soon strange sounds are coming from under the ground near the roots of this awful weed—sounds as if someone were digging. Three of the weed's dragon-like flowers stare at the spot the noises are coming from and listen.)

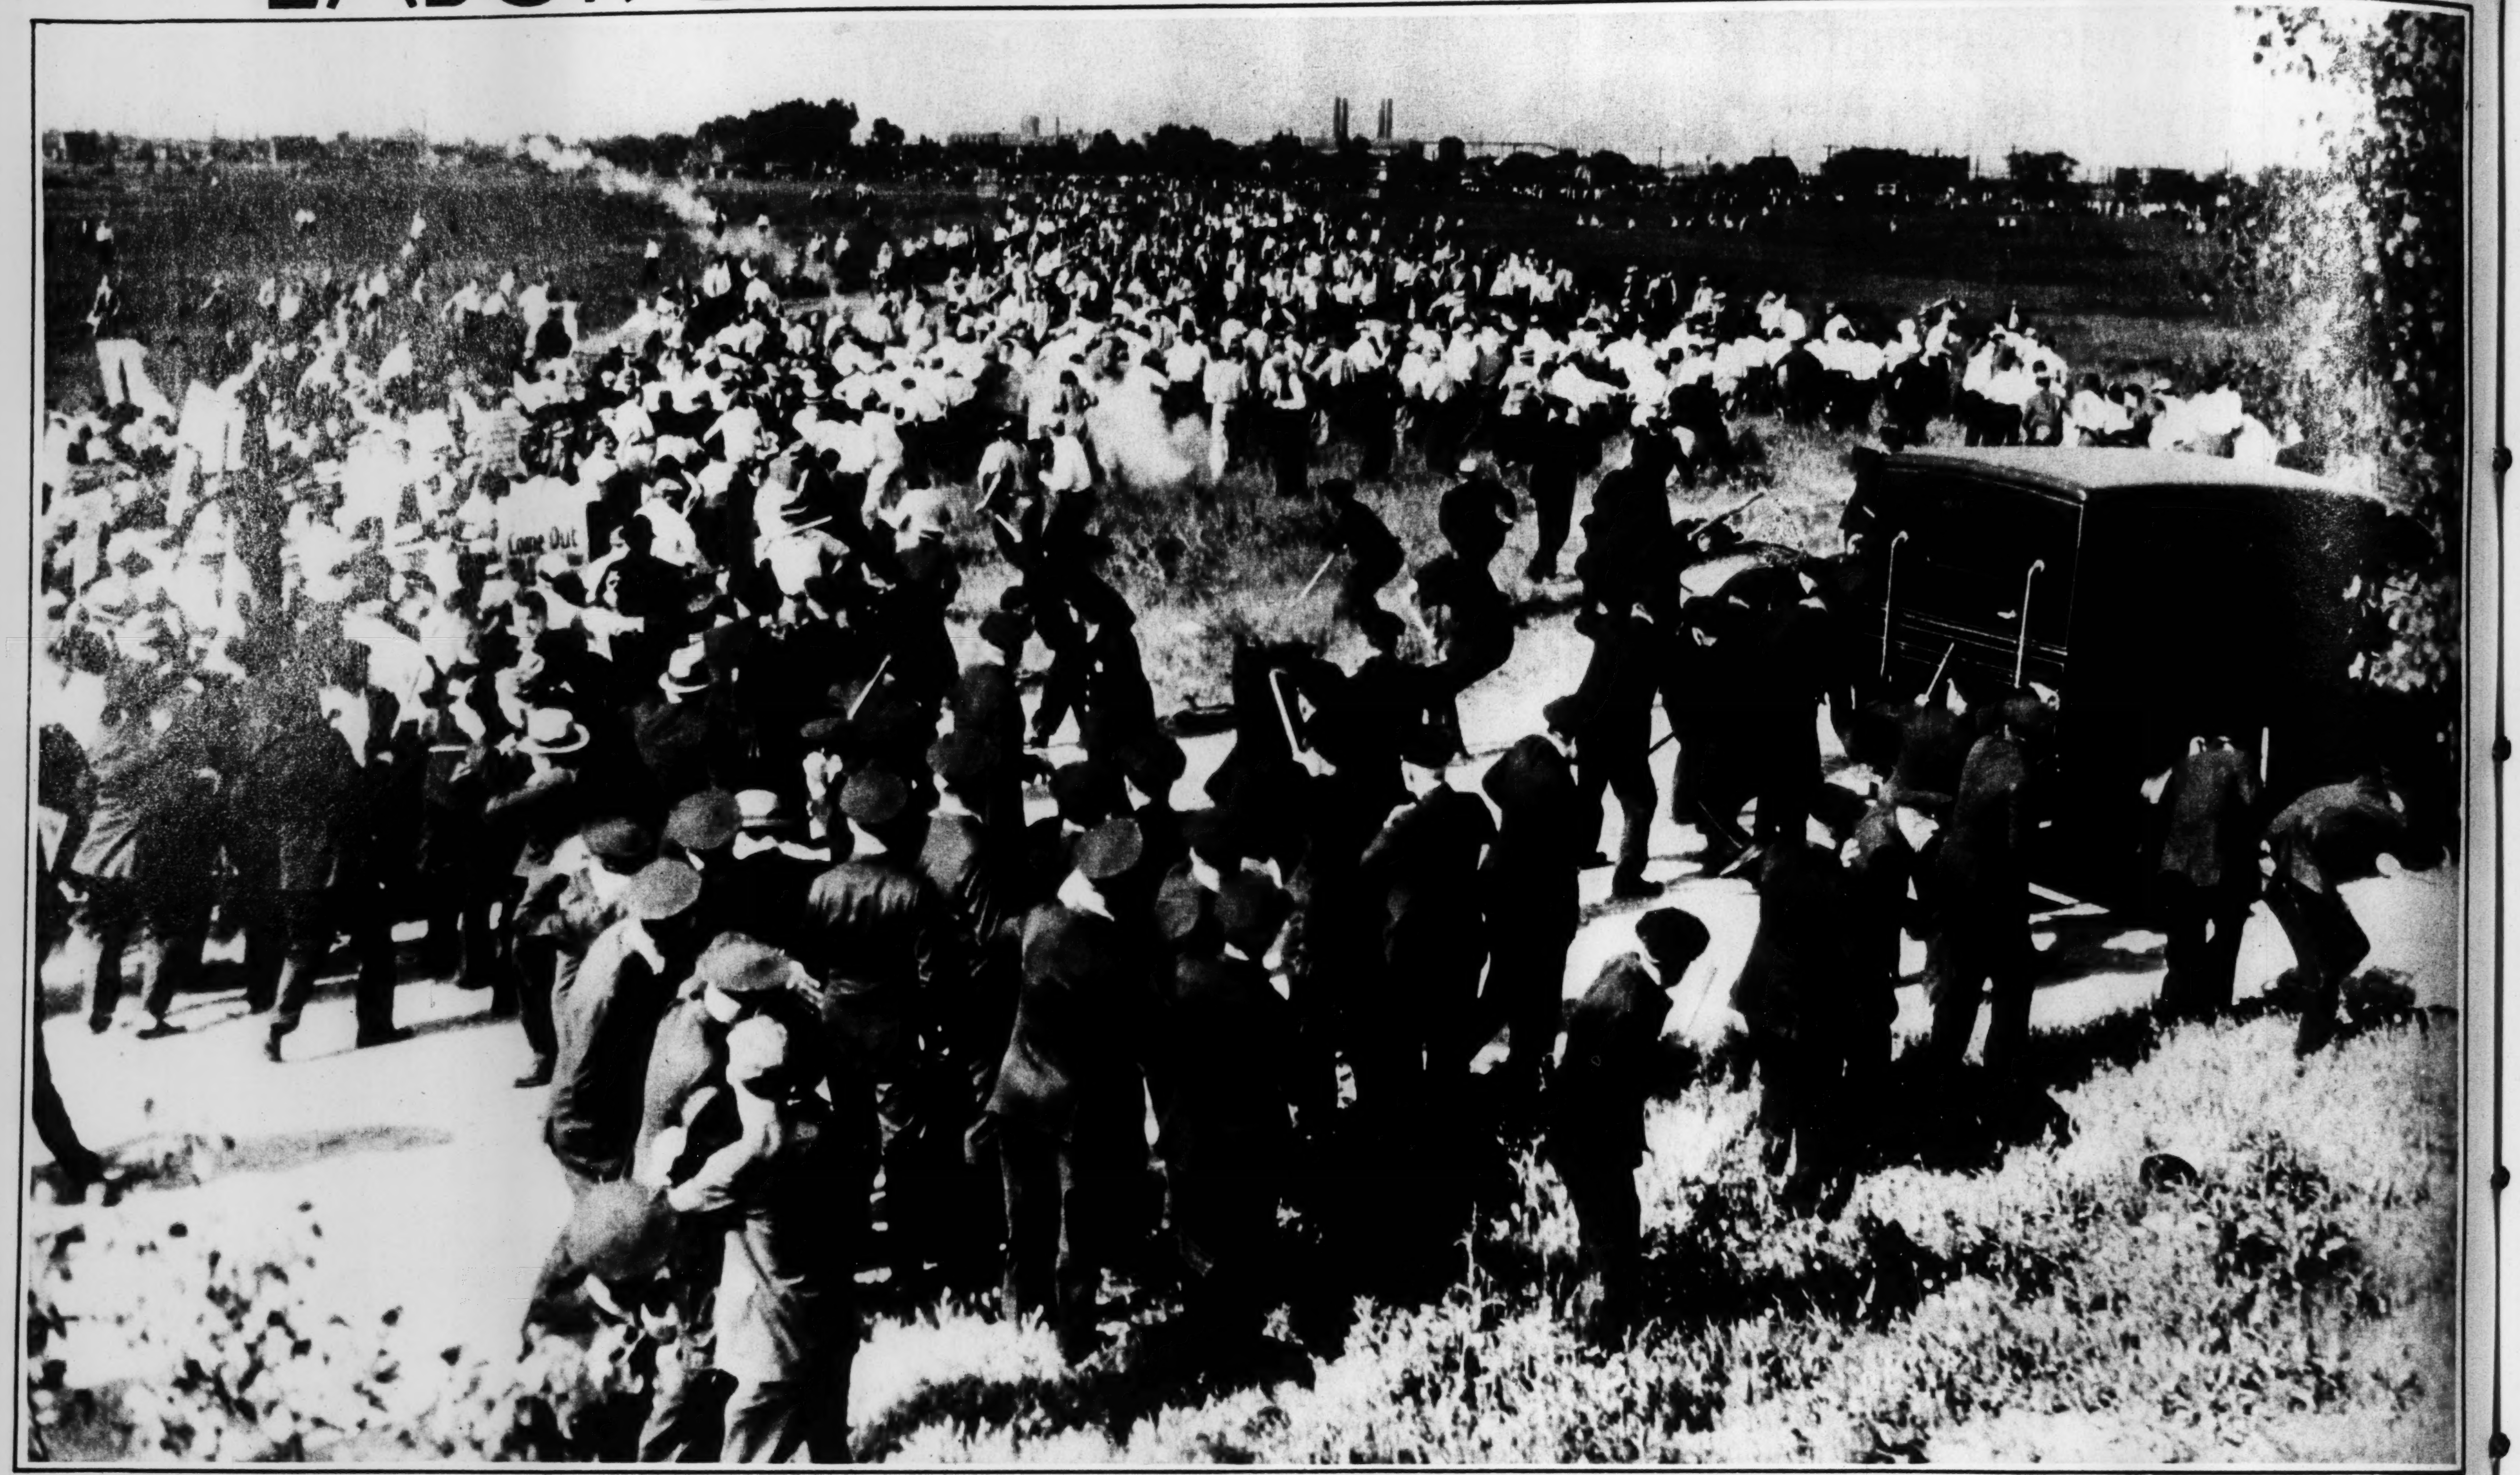
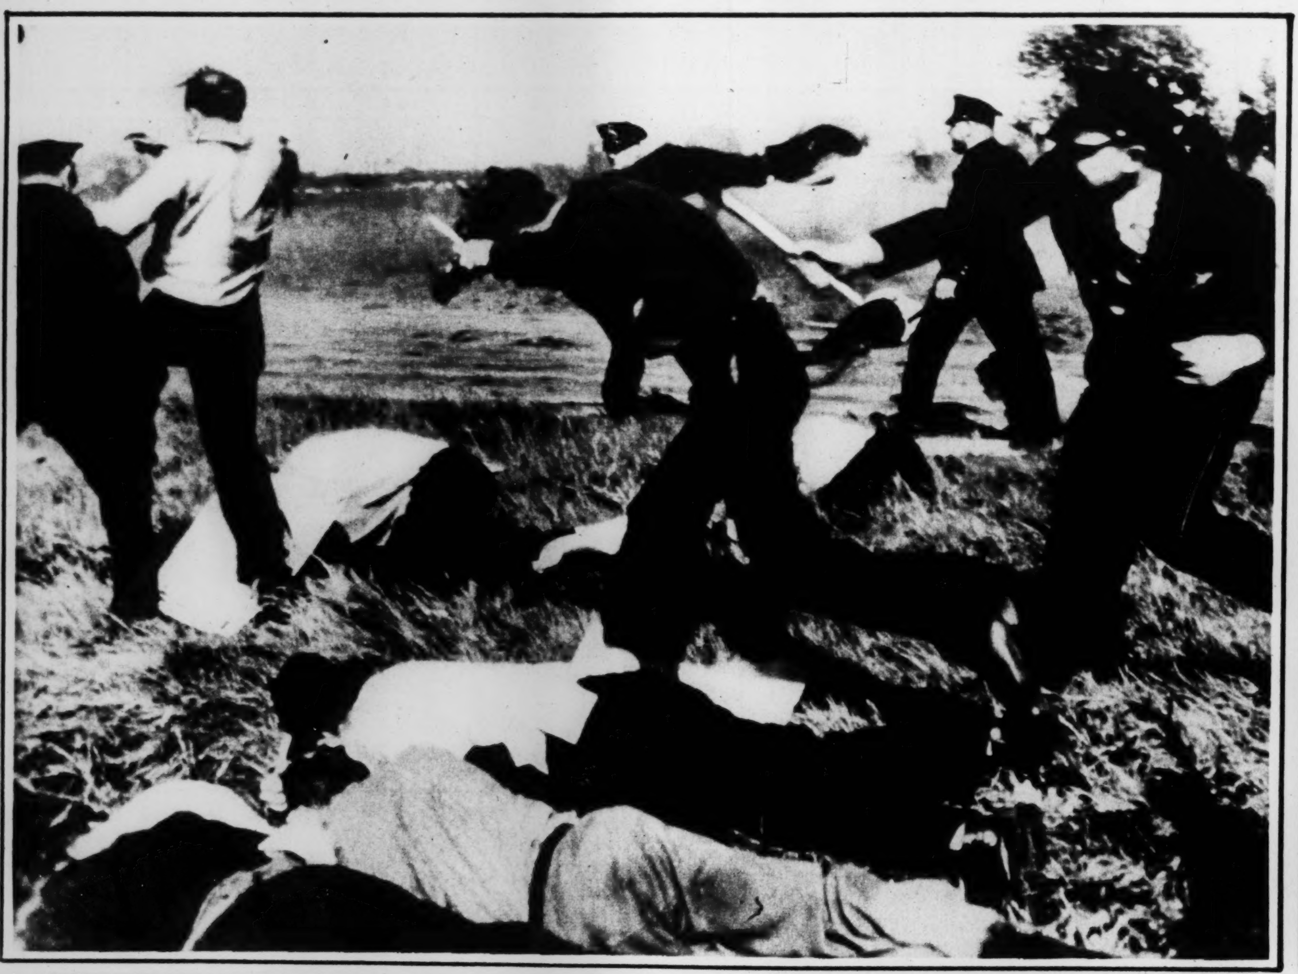
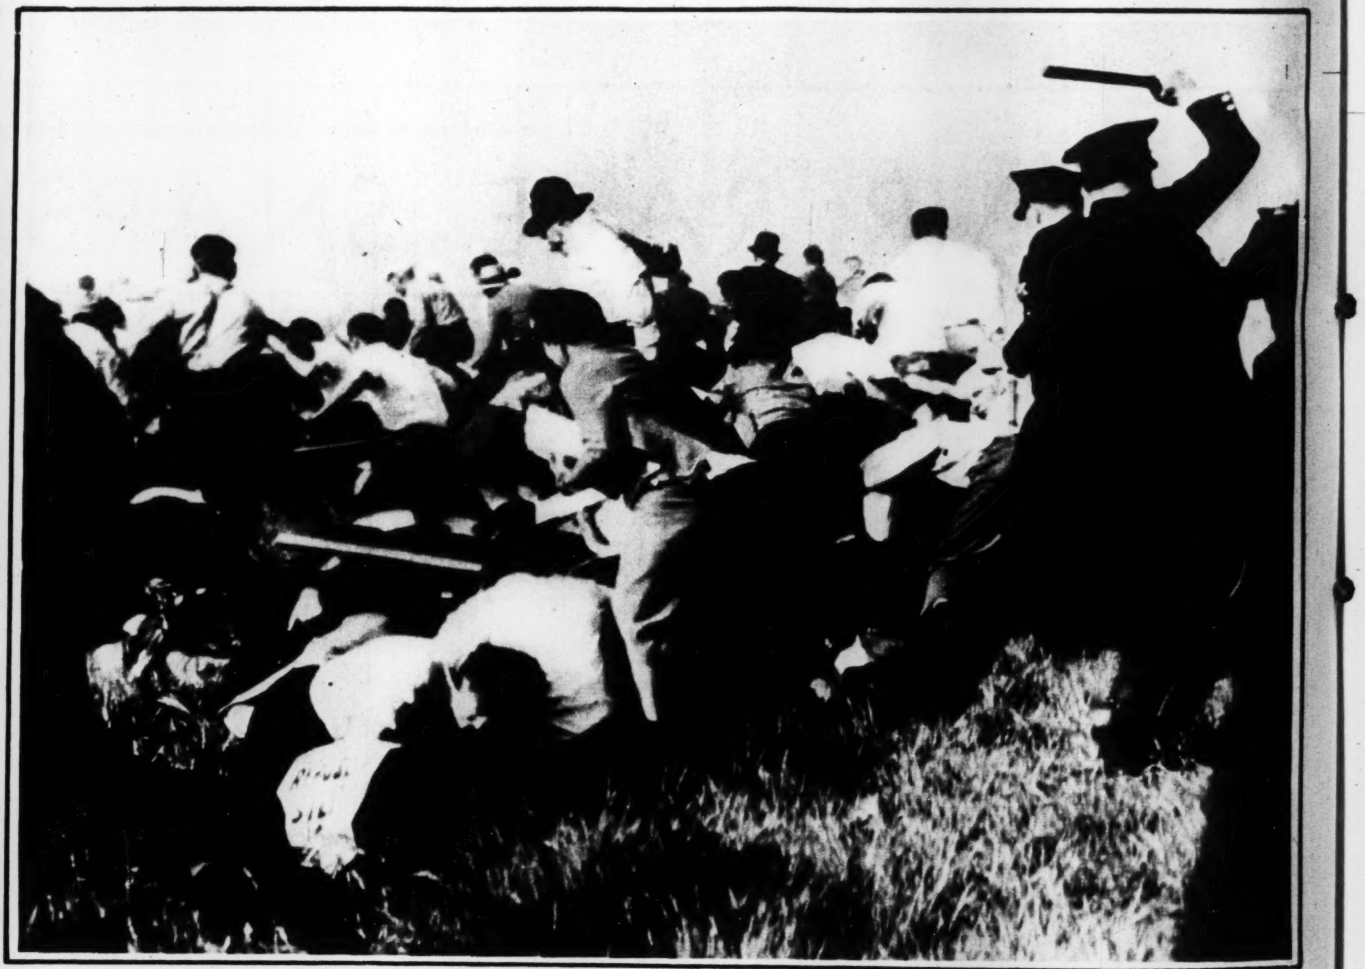
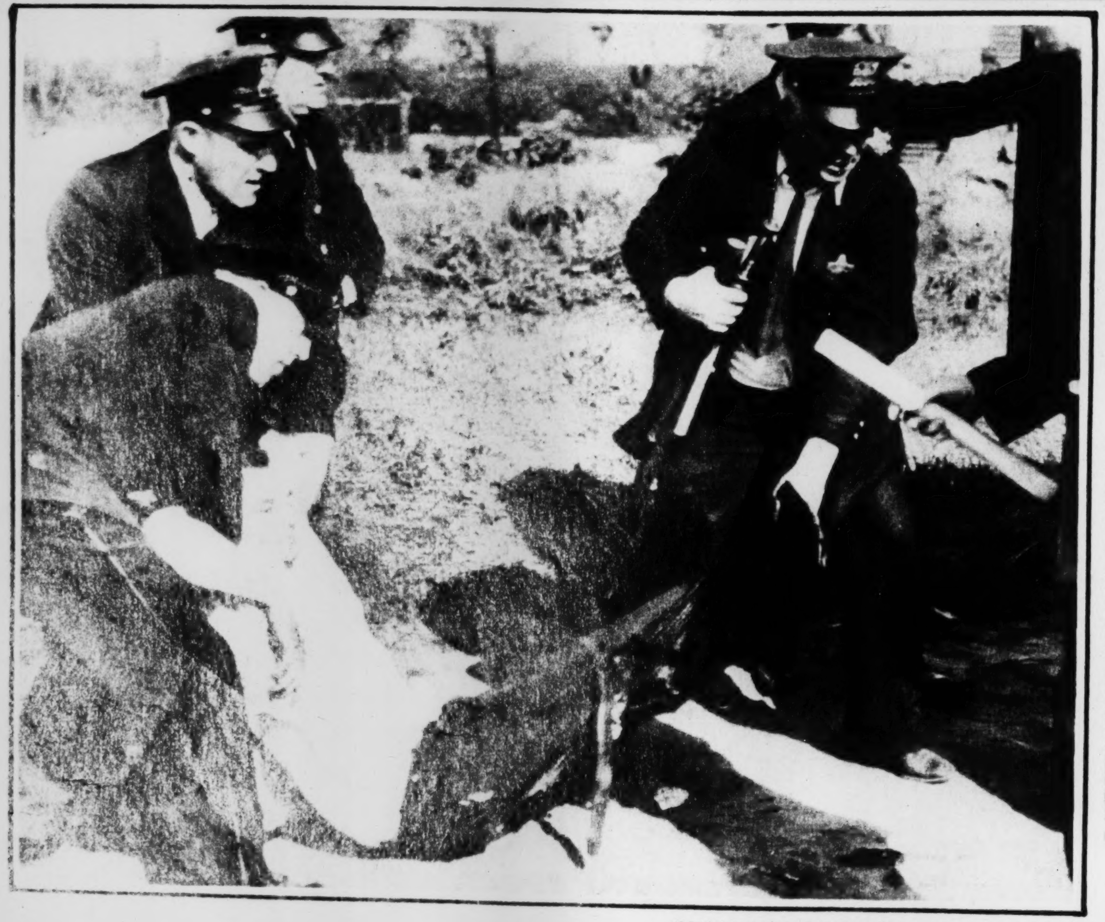
LABOR BATTLE in SOUTH CHICAGO



Beginning of the savage Memorial day conflict incident to a C I O strike at the South Chicago plant of the Republic Steel Corporation. Four persons were killed and more than 80 injured when 200 policemen, using clubs, guns and tear gas, dispersed a crowd of about 1000 strike sympathizers who were marching toward the steel plant. The fighting, in which 23 policemen were hurt, took place in a field two blocks from the plant.







Above, at left and right, demonstrators fleeing—and falling—before the swinging clubs of the charging police. Lower left, one of the victims being dragged to a patrol wagon. Lower right, a woman demonstrator protesting to police who are putting the finishing touches on the rout, while another woman huddles among the fallen.

"Oh that girl!"

A DEVASTATING WAY TO DESCRIBE A GIRL

A GIRL might just as well wear a tag when people refer to her as "Oh, that girl!"

For she is marked as a person unpleasant to be with—a person to be avoided because she carries the ugly odor of underarm perspiration on her person and clothing.

You can't expect people, men especially, to tolerate this in a girl, no matter how attractive she may be in other ways.

The smart modern girl knows that her underarms need special daily care. Soap and water alone are not enough.

And she knows the quick easy way to give this care. Mum!

Quick to use. Harmless to clothing. Half a minute, when you're dressing, is all you need to use Mum. Or use it after dressing, any time. For Mum is harmless to clothing.

Soothing to skin. It's soothing to the skin, too. You can use it right after shaving the underarms.

Doesn't prevent natural perspiration. And you should know this—that Mum prevents every trace of perspiration odor without affecting natural perspiration itself.

Don't run the risk of labeling yourself as "the girl who needs Mum." Use it regularly every day and you'll be safe! Bristol-Myers Co., 630 Fifth Ave., New York.

84 out of every 100 women, who compare Wonder Bread with other breads in the famous 1-2-3 store test, agree: WONDER BREAD IS BEST

SEE AND FEEL THE DIFFERENCE
Note the tenderer crust, the pure, snowy-white color of Wonder Bread. Then—rub your fingers over a slice. Note how smooth, slightly moist it is . . . close-knit for easy spreading. No holes, lumps or imperfections.

SMELL THE DIFFERENCE
Hold a slice of Wonder Bread close to your nose. And note that appetizing "wheaty" fragrance . . . so fresh and clean. Your nose, too, can tell you the remarkable difference between Wonder Bread and any other kind.

TASTE THE DIFFERENCE
Then—taste a bite of Wonder Bread slowly. Let it linger in your mouth . . . so that you get all its delicious full-flavored goodness. Compare the slo-baked flavor the Wonder Bakers have spent a fortune to bring you.

Chrysler IMPERIAL DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR... THE GREATEST OF THE EIGHTS!

CHRYSLER IMPERIAL FOUR-DOOR TOURING SEDAN

WIDE, DEEP, CHAIR-HIGH SEATS . . . GREATER HEAD ROOM AND LEG ROOM!

NOW IN THE MEDIUM-PRICE FIELD! . . .

FOR YEARS—and today—the name "Imperial" has represented the finest expression of Chrysler engineering. This year, you can buy this magnificent car at the lowest price in history.

Big . . . commandingly beautiful . . . the 1937 Imperial tops in performance, roominess and luxury Imperials of former years which sold in the $3,000 range.

LUXURY DEMANDS ROOM!
You're entitled to roomy luxury when you buy an eight. The Imperial gives it to you. It has the widest rear seat . . . the most head room . . . you'll find in any eight in this price field. Seats are made chair-high for real drawing room comfort.

AN INCOMPARABLE RIDE!
Three important factors contribute to the Imperial's amazing riding comfort. Scientific weight distribution, as only Chrysler provides it . . . individual front wheel springing . . . Aero Hydraulic Shock Absorbers that work like the landing mechanism of giant planes.

IMPERIAL IN PERFORMANCE!
The great eight-cylinder Imperial engine represents the culmination of Chrysler's engineering genius. With Floating Power, it's the smoothest, silkiest, most responsive power plant you ever rode behind.

For safety, you have Chrysler's time-tested hydraulic brakes . . . Safety All-Steel Bodies with beautiful one-piece steel roofs and safety plate glass. Upholstery and appointments are superb.

If you are going to buy in the fine-car class, get this famous Imperial for your money. Look at all the eights . . . compare them point by point. You'll come to just one conclusion . . . dollar for dollar, the 1937 Imperial is the greatest of them all.

Time payments to fit your purse on official Commercial Credit Company plan.

☆ CHRYSLER ROYAL . . . Invades the low-priced field . . . Ten body types.
☆ CHRYSLER IMPERIAL . . . Now in the medium-price field . . . Six body types.
☆ CHRYSLER AIRFLOW . . . America's most modern motor car . . . Sedan and Coupe.

HI, BROTHER! AND HOW GOES THE FISHING?
SO-SO!
UM---I REMEMBER THIS PEST FROM LAST YEAR!
NO DOUBT YOU HAVE HEARD STRANGE FISH STORIES AT ONE TIME OR ANOTHER,— BUT DID YOU EVER HEAR OF A MAN LIVING IN A WHALE FOR SIX YEARS?
I ONLY HEARD ABOUT JONAH!
WELL SIR,—YOU HAVE THE DISTINCTION OF SITTING NEXT TO A MAN WHO ACTUALLY LIVED INSIDE A WHALE FOR SIX YEARS!
YOU DID?
ONE DAY I CAME UPON AN 85-FOOT WHALE THAT WAS BEACHED BY A VIOLENT STORM!
AFTER A YEAR'S TIME THE SEA-GULLS HAD PICKED THE WHALE CLEAN, DOWN TO ITS GIGANTIC SKELETON!
I MADE A PARLOR OUT OF ITS SKULL AND THE RIBS MADE NATURAL STUDDING FOR MY BEDROOM AND KITCHEN!
WHALE INN
AND I SUPPOSE AT NIGHT YOU LIT UP YOUR WHALE COTTAGE WITH POWER FROM THEM ELECTRIC EELS I'VE READ ABOUT!
HM-M— NOT A BAD IDEA!—I'LL ADD THAT TO THE STORY NEXT TIME I TELL IT!

PLENTY, I TELL YOU. THE OTHER BABY'S COSTUME LOOKED SO MUCH WHITER AND NICER, I SIMPLY HAD TO GIVE HIM THE PRIZE.
SO MY CLOTHES LOOK PUNK. IT'S MY FAULT, EH? THANKS!
DON'T GET HUFFY. IT ISN'T YOUR FAULT. BUT IT'S TIME SOMEBODY TOLD YOU YOUR CLOTHES DO HAVE TATTLE-TALE GRAY. THEY'RE DINGY BECAUSE YOUR SOAP LEAVES DIRT BEHIND.
GEE, DORA··· I KNOW HOW IT IS. TATTLE-TALE GRAY ALMOST HAD ME WILD TILL I FOUND THE GRANDEST NEW WAY TO GET RID OF IT··· AND I WANT YOU TO TRY IT.
POOH! I'M SICK OF TRYING DIFFERENT SOAPS.
BUT YOU'VE NEVER TRIED ANYTHING LIKE MY KIND··· FELS-NAPTHA SOAP CHIPS! THEY'RE WONDERFUL! CURLS OF RICHER GOLDEN SOAP AND LOTS OF NAPTHA! THEY GET OUT DIRT LIKE MAGIC!
SAY, I'VE HEARD THE NEIGHBORS RAVE ABOUT THOSE NEW FLAKES. EVERYBODY SAYS THEY'RE EASIER ON HANDS.
SURE! THERE'S GLYCERINE IN 'EM. AND NO IRRITATING SNEEZY DUST! IF A SOAP HURTS YOUR NOSE, IMAGINE WHAT IT DOES TO YOUR CLOTHES!

GAIL! I'M SO GLAD TO SEE YOU! HOW ARE YOU?
WELL, TO TELL THE TRUTH, SUE, I'M BROKE--STRANDED! I HAVEN'T WORKED SINCE THEY FIRED ME AND GAVE YOU MY JOB!
GAIL, LISTEN! I'M LEAVING TO BE MARRIED. AND I KNOW YOU CAN HAVE THE JOB BACK IF--WELL... WON'T YOU SEE MY DENTIST ABOUT YOUR BREATH?
YOUR DENTIST? WHY... ALL RIGHT...
SUE ASKED ME TO TALK TO YOU ABOUT YOUR BREATH, GAIL. NOW MOST BAD BREATH COMES FROM DECAYING FOOD DEPOSITS IN HIDDEN CREVICES BETWEEN TEETH THAT AREN'T PROPERLY CLEANED. I ADVISE COLGATE DENTAL CREAM. ITS SPECIAL PENETRATING FOAM REMOVES THESE ODOR-BREEDING DEPOSITS.
COLGATE'S MAKES A DIFFERENCE ALL RIGHT! MY MOUTH FEELS CLEANER AND FRESHER ALREADY!
ONE MONTH LATER—THANKS TO COLGATE'S
YOU'RE CERTAINLY THE PERFECT SECRETARY, MISS DRAKE--IN EVERY WAY! I'M AFRAID YOU DESERVE A RAISE!
THANK YOU SO MUCH, MR. ALLEN!
AND NO TOOTHPASTE EVER MADE MY TEETH AS BRIGHT AND CLEAN AS COLGATE'S!
AND MOST BAD BREATH BEGINS WITH THE TEETH!
TESTS PROVE THAT 76% OF ALL PEOPLE OVER THE AGE OF 17 HAVE BAD BREATH!
Tested and Approved 2273 Good Housekeeping Bureau
COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM
20¢ LARGE SIZE Giant Size, over twice as much, 35¢
Now—NO BAD BREATH behind her SPARKLING SMILE!

Read how Colgate Dental Cream protects you

TESTS among 2,152 men and women (of all ages and from all walks of life) prove that 76% of all people over the age of 17 have bad breath! Tests also prove that most bad breath comes from improperly cleaned teeth!

Ordinary cleansing methods, which merely polish the exposed surfaces, fail to remove the decaying food deposits in hidden crevices between your teeth. And these deposits, tests prove, are the source of most bad breath, dull, dingy teeth, and much tooth decay.

But Colgate Dental Cream's special penetrating foam gets into every tiny crevice—emulsifying and washing away those food and acid deposits that cause bad breath. At the same time, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent cleans and brightens enamel—makes teeth sparkle!

So brush your teeth, gums, tongue with Colgate Dental Cream at least twice daily and have cleaner, brighter teeth—sweeter, purer breath.

THEY'RE STILL TALKING

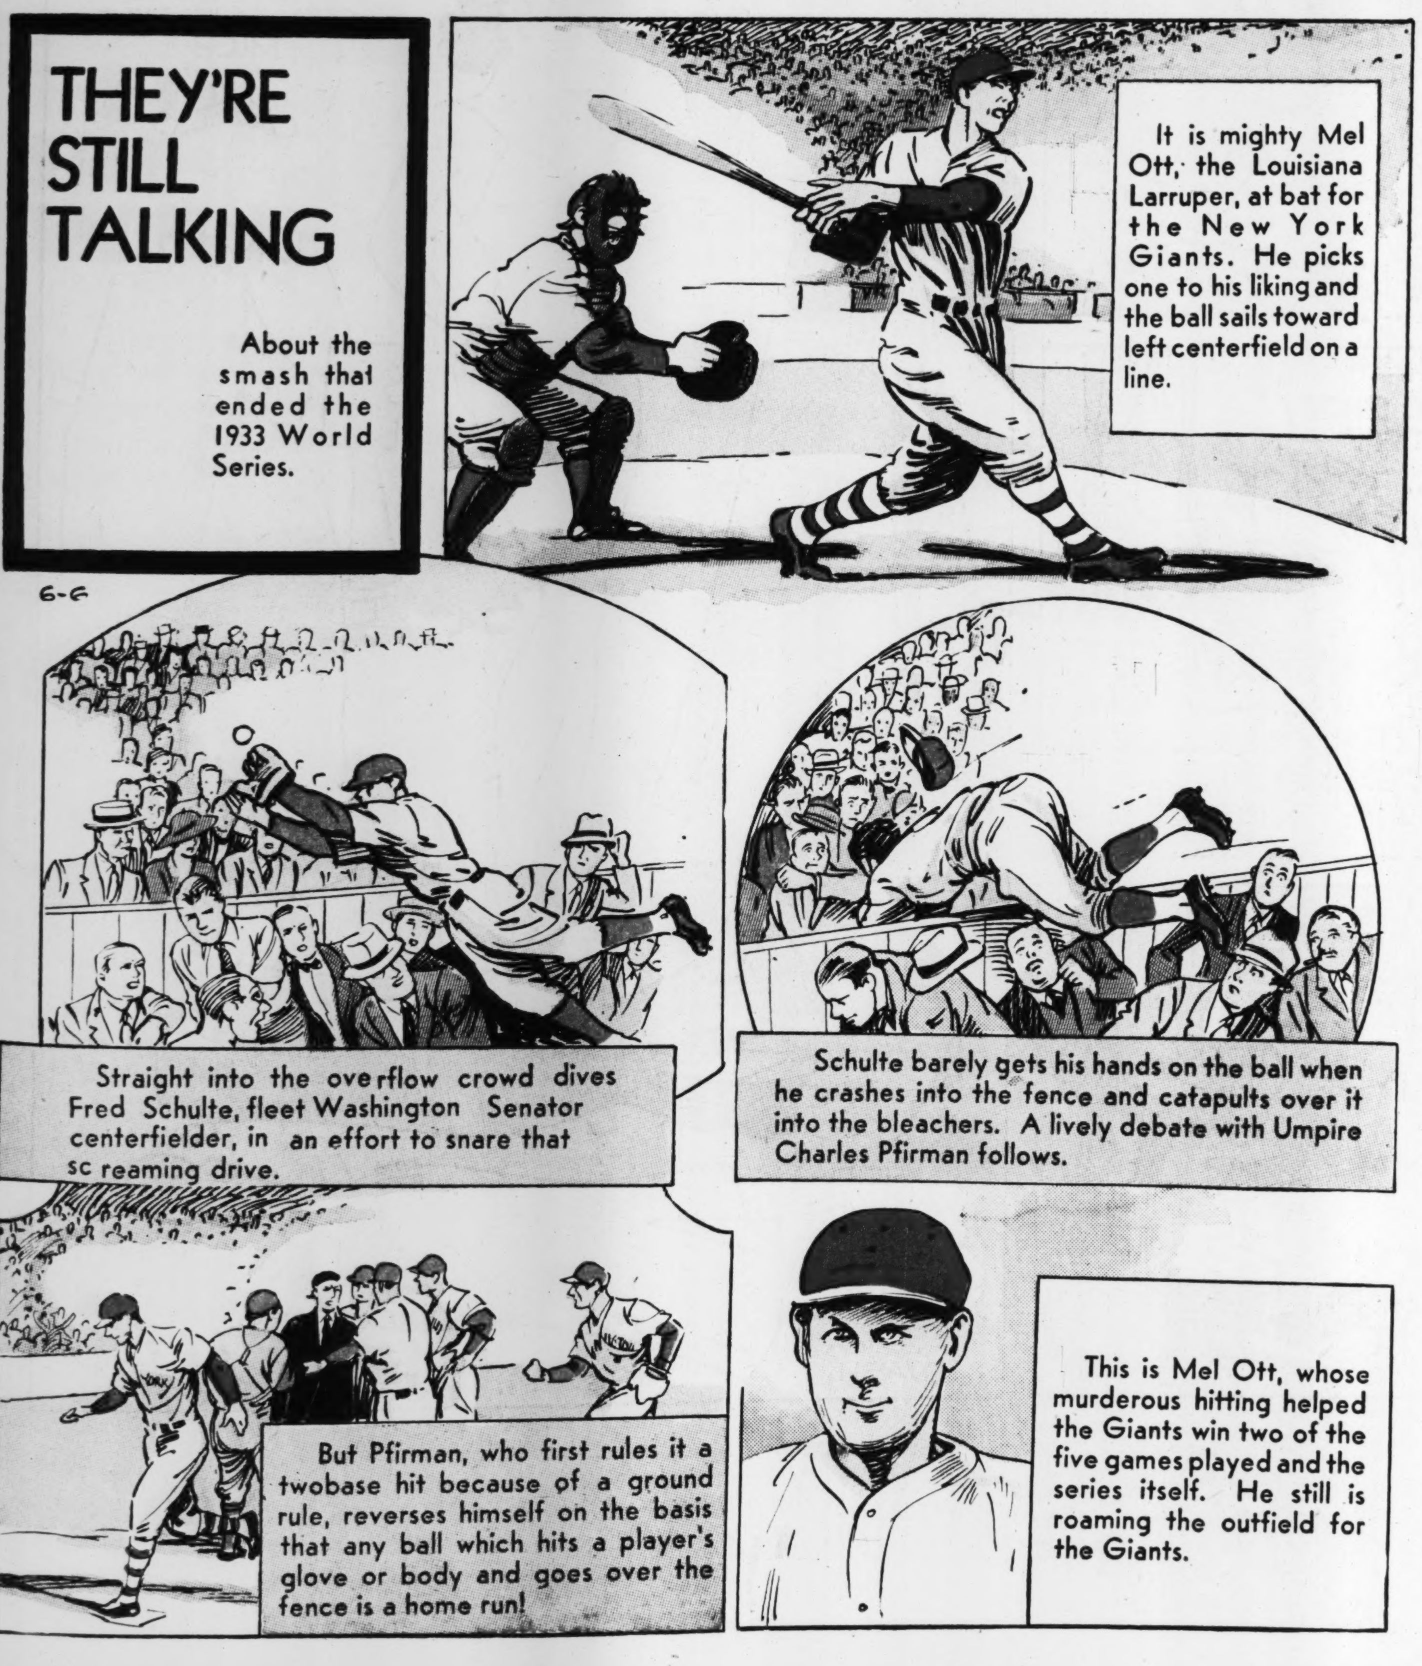
About the smash that ended the 1933 World Series.



It is mighty Mel Ott, the Louisiana Larruper, at bat for the New York Giants. He picks one to his liking and the ball sails toward left centerfield on a line.

Straight into the overflow crowd dives Fred Schulte, fleet Washington Senator centerfielder, in an effort to snare that screaming drive.

Schulte barely gets his hands on the ball when he crashes into the fence and catapults over it into the bleachers. A lively debate with Umpire Charles Pfirman follows.

But Pfirman, who first rules it a twobase hit because of a ground rule, reverses himself on the basis that any ball which hits a player's glove or body and goes over the fence is a home run!

This is Mel Ott, whose murderous hitting helped the Giants win two of the five games played and the series itself. He still is roaming the outfield for the Giants.

CAPT. HAWKS' NEW 1937 SKY PATROL

NEW CLUB-NEW ADVENTURES-NEW THRILLS-NEW PRIZES

CAPT. HAWKS' Time Ray

THE TRICK THAT FOILED KING KHUFU

The amazing Time Ray, which turns time backward or forward, has taken Capt. Hawks, famous speed flyer, and Tim and Patsy (both charter members of the new 1937 Sky Patrol) back thousands of years to the reign of King Khufu. Capt. Hawks and his young friends have, unknowingly, landed right in the King's private gardens where the beautiful Princess Iko is strolling.

WELCOME TO EGYPT, STRANGERS, I AM THE PRINCESS IKO.
WE ARE FROM A FAR-OFF LAND...
STOP! SEIZE THOSE INSOLENT PEOPLE WHO DARE SPEAK WITH MY SISTER!
AWAY WITH THEM! THROW THEM INTO THE NILE TO THE CROCODILES!
PSST! WEAR THIS SACRED SCARAB RING—IT BRINGS GOOD FORTUNE ALWAYS. PERHAPS IT WILL SAVE YOU!
HAWKS, TIM AND PATSY ARE BROUGHT TO THE KING

The Sacred Scarab! . . . For thousands of years an unfailing symbol of good fortune in the mysterious country of the Nile . . . Will the strange power of its secret charm save our friends from Khufu's terrible decree?

BEWARE OF HARMING US! WE HAVE SECRET POWERS! I CAN LEAP OVER THAT PYRAMID!
YOU LEAP OVER THE PYRAMID? HA, HA, HA! BUT PROCEED—IF YOUR BOAST BE FULFILLED, YOU SHALL ALL GO FREE!
I CATCH ON—HE'S GOING TO FLY OVER!
AND JUST TO MAKE IT MORE DIFFICULT, I'M GOING TO TAKE THIS MACHINE WITH ME!
GOSH, CAPTAIN FRANK—THERE ISN'T ROOM TO TAKE OFF!
IT'S A 100 TO 1 SHOT, BUT IT'S OUR ONLY CHANCE... MAYBE THIS LUCKY SCARAB RING WILL HELP!
A MIRACLE! HE'S UP IN THE AIR!
OH, OH, HE'S GOING TO HIT IT!
COME ON, GOOD LUCK RING, HELP HIM!

Quickly, Hawks opens dump valves—thus making plane light enough to clear the top.

HURRAY-HE'S OVER!
HE'S DUMPING THE FUEL-BOY, THAT'S SMART!
TRULY, THE MAN IS A MAGICIAN—SET THESE STRANGE PEOPLE FREE!
BACK IN 1937
GOSH, THAT WAS EXCITING!
YOU SURE HAD NERVE, CAPTAIN FRANK!
WELL, TIM, NERVE IS LARGELY A MATTER OF BEING IN GOOD CONDITION. THAT'S WHY I URGE ALL BOYS AND GIRLS TO EAT PLENTY OF POST'S BRAN FLAKES EVERY MORNING FOR BREAKFAST.

How Ovaltine helps boys and girls gain WEIGHT...

If your little boy or girl wants to gain weight, try this OVALTINE method that so many thousands of other mothers have found successful: Just give a large cupful of Ovaltine (hot or cold) at meals, or between meals—3 times a day.

It's a wonderful "builder." Here are the things Ovaltine does, to actually stimulate the natural sensation of appetite:—

What It Does

It supplies the appetite-promoting Vitamin B . . . It helps digest starches, and when the stomach empties of starches sooner, hunger returns quicker . . . It prevents the formation of heavy milk curds in the stomach. It, therefore, makes milk more digestible—as well as more palatable.

Whether your child likes milk or not, he'll probably like it with Ovaltine. Ovaltine is very nourishing in itself, too, you know. It supplies certain "protective" factors.

Get a can at your grocery or drug store. Naturally, it can't be sold with a guarantee . . . BUT don't you think it's worth a trial?

Start your child drinking it, promptly.

NEW 1937 RINSO GIVES 25 TO 50% MORE SUDS say washer owners everywhere

I BOUGHT A BOX OF THE NEW 1937 RINSO— I'M ANXIOUS TO TRY IT
THEY SAY IT GIVES 25 TO 50% MORE SUDS—EVEN IN HARDEST WATER. AND A LITTLE GOES SO MUCH FARTHER
Rinso
IT'S TRUE! LOOK! THE NEW RINSO GIVES HEAPS MORE SUDS AND THEY HAVE REAL BODY TO THEM
LATER
TALK ABOUT MIRACLES! THE NEW RINSO WASHES CLOTHES AT LEAST 5 SHADES WHITER THAN ORDINARY SOAPS
AND DID YOU NOTICE HOW LONG THE SUDS STAND UP?
NOT ONLY DOES RINSO GET CLOTHES WHITER—BUT SEE HOW BRIGHT THE COLORS ARE FROM NOW ON I'M GOING TO USE NOTHING BUT RINSO IN MY WASHER THAT NIGHT
—THE NEW RINSO WORKS LIKE A CHARM IN THE DISHPAN. GREASE GOES IN A JIFFY. IT'S KIND AS EVER TO HANDS AND SO ECONOMICAL
I DON'T KNOW MUCH ABOUT SOAP—BUT THIS PLATE SURE DOES SPARKLE
NEW 1937 RINSO IS ON SALE AT ALL GROCERS—IN THE SAME FAMILIAR PACKAGE
Rinso

Millions use these richer suds for tub washing, too—they soak out dirt safely

NO WASHER? Then the New 1937 Rinso is just the soap for you! It gives richer, longer-lasting suds even in water as hard as nails. And how these lively suds soak out dirt. In as little as 10 minutes they soak clothes amazingly clean—without hard scrubbing or boiling. Yet you can soak your clothes in Rinso suds for an hour—or overnight—and be certain that everything will be safe. This gentle "no-scrub" method makes clothes last 2 or 3 times longer. You'll save money. Rinso is recommended by the makers of 33 famous washers. Fine for dishes and all household cleaning. Keeps hands smooth, white and lovely. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Most women buy the big economical package.

MISS EARHART LANDS IN AFRICA AFTER CROSSING SOUTH ATLANTIC

Aviatrix Reaches St. Louis, Senegal, from Natal, Brazil, Making 1900-Mile Flight in 13 Hours and 19 Minutes.

HAD INTENDED TO GO TO DAKAR

Towns Are 163 Miles Apart — She Had Reported 'Everything Fine' in Radio Message After Her Takeoff.

By the Associated Press.

DAKAR, French Senegal, June 7.—Amelia Earhart landed at Saint Louis, Senegal, tonight at 7:35 o'clock (1:35 p. m. St. Louis time) after a flight from Natal, Brazil, across the South Atlantic.

Saint Louis, on the west coast of Africa, is 163 miles from Dakar.

She made the 1900-mile flight in 13 hours, 19 minutes.

Departure Made From Natal in Light Rain.

By the Associated Press.

NATAL, Brazil, June 7.—Amelia Earhart headed over the South Atlantic in a light rain today for Dakar, Senegal, her goal on the African continent in her flight around the world.

She left here at 12:16 a. m. St. Louis time and radioed more than four hours later that "everything is going fine."

The plane made a perfect takeoff. With the aviatrix was her navigator, Capt. Fred Noonan.

The monoplane had 850 gallons of gasoline and 80 gallons of oil aboard.

MISS EARHART'S STORY OF FLIGHT

By AMELIA EARHART.

(Copyright, 1937, New York Tribune, Inc.)

NATAL, Brazil, June 7.—Saturday night we had a hard sudden rain. Yesterday morning, while the field was well drained, the hard grass was heavy with dew, and several cows at the edge of the field at Fortaleza seemed to enjoy the grass more than did the Electra.

We hopped off from Fortaleza at 4:50 a. m. and arrived at Natal at 6:55. The weather was unsettled all the way. It was interesting country and seemed much dryer. High dunes on the shore shone with bright sand. We passed near Fortaleza's stately church, supposed to be one of the oldest in Brazil. It could be seen plainly.

We saw the airport at Natal almost before the town because it is so large, consisting of long marked runways, large hangars and living quarters. There are French, German and American planes here.

The French have been crossing the South Atlantic on regular schedule for several years. The service is now run twice a week, carrying mail, but no passengers. I talked with the crew of the next plane out and found the men preferred to fly early in the morning, since they expect the most difficult weather during the first 800 miles. I believe I shall rely on their experience.

Everyone here is co-operating. The French have two ships stationed in the South Atlantic, which give weather conditions. They have agreed to share their information with me.

Those who kindly helped to push the plane into the hangar when we landed were soaked by the rain for their pains. A shower fell just after we came down.

The soil here, reminiscent of Georgia or Virginia, is red. The houses, which are built of it, add a vivid touch to the landscape. Green trees face a gray-green sea.

At luncheon, I could hardly realize that I was in Brazil, for the food was so like that at home—corn on the cob and apple pie a la mode. Speaking of food, everyone took pity on us. When we left Fortaleza we had a present of a package of turkey sandwiches and cake. If this continues I shall certainly gain weight.

As I look out the window I can see two children playing in the sand. Beyond, the surf beats against a stranded wreck. I noticed a number of these along the coast. Shoals appear here and there about 25 miles off the shore.

I have not been in the center of Natal yet. I shall drive through there en route to the airport.

I would like to get a pair of sandals such as I see so many people wearing. It is easy to understand where this season's toeless and heelless shoes originated — somewhere around the Equator.
